Nixon Pushes Strong Arms Accord Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amid optimism over the SALT talks, President Nixon today called in his chief disarmament negotiator to hammer out a specific U.S. bid for an arms accord with the Soviet Union.

Both defensive antiballistic missiles and long-range offensive missiles seem likely to be included in the proposal which U.S. disarmament chief Gerald C. Smith will put forth on his return to the SALT—Strategic Arms Limitation Talks—at Vienna.

Some predict a limited agreement in principle may be reached by the two superpowers before the summer recess. It would take months, however, before any agreement could be formulated into a treaty.

Smith and two top aides at the Vienna talks flew into Washington Monday at an important point in the negotiations that began in Helsinki last fall and resumed in the Austrian capital two months ago.

The U.S. and Soviet envoys have been secretly exchanging views and concepts on how to clamp a lid on the spiraling big power nuclear arms race. The Americans believe the two sides should now get down to more specific propositions.

The latest official optimism about the Vienna proceedings came Tuesday from Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird. "The Strategic Arms Limitation Talks have, we think, moved along very well," the secretary told a London news conference.

One reason for the administration's hopeful tone has been what U.S. diplomats consider to be the Russians' business-like attitude in the closed negotiations.

The Kremlin has kept to its bargain of secrecy. Its negotiators have displayed sophisticated knowledge about modern strategic weapons. And, with a Communist congress due in Moscow this fall, some here believe the Russians will want to show something at home for their Vienna efforts.

Arthur Goldberg

Goldberg Wins In New York; Powell Beaten

NEW YORK (AP) — In a primary full of upsets and firsts, Democrats nominated former Supreme Court Justice Arthur J. Goldberg on Tuesday to oppose three-term Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Two veteran Democratic congressmen—Adam Clayton Powell and Leonard Farbstein—were defeated.

For the first time, the Democrats nominated a Negro, State Sen. Basil Paterson of Harlem, for lieutenant governor. Herman Badillo of the Bronx won a chance to become the state's first Puerto Rico-born congressman.

In his first bid for elective office, Goldberg, 61, defeated upstate millionaire Howard Samuels, 50. The state's first gubernatorial primary in nearly 50 years drew only 27 per cent of the Democrats despite perfect weather. The GOP had no statewide contests.

Another millionaire, Rep. Richard Ottinger of suburban Westchester County, won a four-man race to oppose GOP Sen. Charles E. Goodell, appointed by Rockefeller to complete the term of the late Robert F. Kennedy. Ottinger's massive spending for television advertising was the main issue.

Running against Ottinger were Paul O'Dwyer, Theodore Sorensen and Rep. Richard Max McCarthy.

Mideast Cease Fire Aim Of Government

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration is sounding out Israel and key Arab governments on a proposal designed to produce a Middle East cease-fire and revive U.N. efforts to negotiate a settlement.

The proposal has been discussed, according to available information, with Israel, Egypt, and Jordan. Other countries reportedly have been informed as well and Secretary of State William P. Rogers is due to discuss the proposal publicly this week.

Withdrawal Eyed

The U.S. initiative, it is understood, basically calls for Israeli withdrawal from most of the territory captured in the 1967 war in return for Arab commitments to accept Israel's existence and respect its borders. It comes as the Nixon administration is reported ready to sell new warplanes to Israel to offset increased military support to Egypt.

Israel asked for the planes last September and has pressed particularly hard for a decision since Soviet combat pilots began flying defensive patrols inside Egypt more than two months ago.

Israel May Get Jets

The Nixon administration, faced with warnings that a new sale of jets to Israel would further alienate the Arabs, has decided to make the vaguest possible announcement of its readiness to sell the Israelis at least part of what they want.

The emphasis, therefore, will be on the peace initiative, informants indicated, although U.S. officials are not optimistic about the outcome.

Rogers and President Nixon are known to have hoped the use of Soviet pilots in Egypt would create new interest in a peaceful settlement of the long Mideast conflict—instead of touching off a new and greater crisis.

Hence, in the administration's view the new approach to the Israelis and key Arab governments—and the parallel continuation of talks with Moscow on peace issues—is designed as considerably more than a diplomatic cover for the planes sale. It is, officials insist, a serious attempt to see whether the barriers to peace on both sides may be reduced.

Plan Almost Identical

Although the U.S. proposal covers much the same ground as a previous plan which fell through last year, administration advisers were reported somewhat encouraged Tuesday by what Israel Defense Minister Moshe Dayan, told a luncheon meeting with journalists.

Normally a hardliner, he said Israel should be able to give up some of the territory, chiefly Egyptian, won in the 1967 six-day war in return for peace with the Arabs.

Response To Dayan?

This appeared to be a public response by Dayan to U.S. pressure for concessions on the territorial issue and it was taken in Washington as indicating a positive attitude toward negotiations.

According to diplomatic informants Soviet authorities have told American officials that both of the big powers should press Middle Eastern governments to get into serious peace negotiations under the auspices of the U.N. without further delay.

The Russians are said to have argued this may be the best possible time for action.

U.S. Continues Air Raids Deep In Cambodia

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — The Cambodian military command disclosed today that American jet fighter-bombers, in an apparent major shift in U.S. policy, have attacked deep into Cambodia in direct support of Cambodian ground forces.

The announcement, which U.S. officials in Saigon would neither confirm nor deny, coincided with reports that North Vietnamese and Viet Cong units were marshalling east of Phnom Penh, and that heavy fighting had broken out again at Kompong Speu, 30 miles southwest of the Cambodian capital.

The U.S. air strikes helped break the month-long siege of Kompong Thom, a provincial capital 80 miles north of Phnom Penh, a Cambodian spokesman said. Neither the Pentagon nor the U.S. Command would comment, but this extension of the American air war appeared to be a sign of recognition by the United States that without some assist from strong U.S. firepower, the Cambodian forces might crumple under the Communist Command's growing pressure.

Maj. Am Rong, the Cambodian spokesman, said he could furnish no details on the exact location of attacks, the types of U.S. jets involved, when they first went into action or the results. But eyewitness reports on Tuesday from Kompong Thom and Skoun, another endangered Cambodian town, said U.S. propellor-driven OV10 aircraft had been marking targets for South Vietnamese jet fighter-bombers supporting Cambodian troops.

The U.S. Command in Saigon, apparently under strict orders from the Pentagon, has refused repeatedly to discuss U.S. air activity in Cambodia other than to repeat the Pentagon's admission Monday that American pilots were flying up to 100 miles inside Cambodia to attack North Vietnamese and Viet Cong supply lines.

The heckler, F. Paul Fromme, 21, a student at the university and member of the conservative Edmund Burke Society, bothered Kunstsler during his speech and stepped onto the speaker's platform. Toronto police later issued a warrant for Kunstsler's arrest after Fromm was reportedly knocked unconscious following the incident. (AP Wirephoto)

Asks Updating Of UN Charter

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Philippine Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, one of the nine surviving original signers of the U.N. charter here 25 years ago, says the document is in serious need of updating.

Romulo spoke at a news conference upon his arrival Tuesday to take part in ceremonies marking the United Nations' silver anniversary.

"When we wrote the charter, none of us knew anything about the atom bomb," Romulo said. "Also, the charter is designed for open aggression only. Since 1945, new kinds of aggression have appeared: aggression by propaganda, aggression by subversion. We need a better definition of aggression."

Romulo, 71, was the Philippine delegate to the united nations until 1956, General Assembly president in 1949 and Security Council president in 1951. He currently is foreign affairs secretary for his country.

Romulo said the original plan was for the big powers to establish peace and for the United Nations to maintain it through the charter and good will.

But after World War II "peace was never established," he said. "The superpowers really made the United Nations itself the battleground."

He said the United Nations needs more teeth and called specifically for general adherence to decisions by the International Court of Justice. He said the United States is among the countries which ignore the court.

U.S. Marine Found Innocent Of Murder

DA NANG, Vietnam (AP) — A young Marine accused of unpremeditated murder in the deaths of 16 Vietnamese women and children was found innocent today after testifying he shot neither them nor enemy soldiers in Vietnam.

When the acquittal was announced, Pfc. Thomas R. Boyd, 19, Evansville, Ind., jumped up, his cheeks stained by tears.

"Thank God!" he shouted, hugged his civilian attorney, Howard T. Trockman, and then dashed outside the courtroom where several members of his company were awaiting the verdict.

He had been charged in the deaths of the Vietnamese Feb. 19 at Son Thang village, 27 miles south of here. He had faced a maximum sentence of life imprisonment.

Among those waiting outside the courtroom was Boyd's company commander, Lt. Louis R. Amort, 23, Little Rock, Ark., and Pfc. Samuel G. Green. Boyd, both laughing and crying, threw his arms around both men.

Green 18, of Cleveland, Ohio, was one of four Marines charged in the Son Thang case and goes on trial July 20. He is charged with 16 counts of unpremeditated murder.

Boyd, whose case was tried before a military judge, testified that before he came to Vietnam last July, his pastor told him one of life's most important lessons was: "Thou shalt not kill."

Members of Boyd's platoon testified they never saw him kill anyone in combat.

Boyd was the second Marine to be tried for killing of five women and 11 children during a patrol in the village 27 miles south of Da Nang.

Pvt. Michael A. Schwarz, 21, Weirton, W.Va., was convicted Sunday of premeditated murder and sentenced to life imprisonment. His case is being appealed.

Alexander Dubcek Fired Second Time

VIENNA (AP) — Alexander Dubcek, spearhead of the reform wave in Czechoslovakia two years ago, was fired again today.

CTK, the official Czechoslovak news agency, announced that President Ludvik Svoboda had removed the former Communist party chief from his post as ambassador to Turkey. The announcement said he would be assigned to other duties but gave no further information.

Dubcek returned to Prague from Turkey in May, ostensibly because his mother was ill. But there were rumors he would lose his embassy and might even be brought to trial.

Ottawa Bombing Fatal To Worker

OTTAWA (AP) — A bomb explosion damaged a Defense Department building in downtown Ottawa today and killed one person.

It occurred on St. Jean Baptiste Day, a holiday dear to the heart of French-Canadians. Separatists seeking to split Quebec away from Canada have made it an occasion for demonstrations in the past.

The explosion ripped away most of a wall section outside the defense communications room and another just above. Windows were shattered in an area of several blocks, and streets were littered with broken glass.

The communications room bore the brunt of the blast, and Jeanne St. Germain, a worker there, was killed. Two persons were taken to Ottawa General Hospital with multiple cuts.

Big Ship Contract Could Mean Trouble

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy's award of its costliest contract to a Mississippi shipyard "is to literally thumb its nose at the House of Representatives," charges a congressman who wants to give a Northern facility a piece of the action.

"This matter is not over by a long shot," Rep. Louis C. Wyman, R-N.H., insisted Tuesday after the Navy announced Ingalls Shipbuilding Division at Pascagoula, Miss., had landed the contract for assembly-line construction of 30 new destroyers. Ingalls is a division of Litton Industries.

Disclosure of the award, worth a potential $2.1 billion to Litton and costing a total $2.55 billion including government-supplied radar equipment and weapons, came shortly after the Senate Armed Services Committee rejected Wyman's proposal that at least two shipyards be contracted to build the destroyers.

Mississippi Democrat John C. Stennis, the Senate Armed Services Committee chairman, said the Senate panel struck from the pending military procurement bill Wyman's House-approved rider to spread the business to at least two shipyards.

Although the Navy's decision gave no part of the contract to a competing shipyard in Bath, Maine, Adm. Nathan Sonenshein told a news conference Tuesday night the pact carries a clause providing actual construction could be subcontracted if Congress decides to put Wyman's rider back in the bill.

Sonenshein, commander of the Navy Ship Systems Command, contended the contract cost would rise $600 million if construction is divided between two yards.

He said the Navy settled on the new $130 million Mississippi facility so that identical ships could be built on an assembly-line basis.

Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., said the Navy's action brings "an economic bonanza to our people at an ideal moment in our battle to overcome the effects of Hurricane Camille."

Hart Suggests $7 Billion For Police Forces

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., proposed today $7 billion in assistance to local police forces over the next four years as part of an Onibus Crime bill package.

The administration, Hart said, currently is asking a one-year law enforcement appropriation of $480 million.

Hart asked that the Safe Streets Act, under which money is now channeled to law enforcement agencies be further amended to:

—Allow unlimited use of federal grant money to pay police salaries. Only a third of any grant now can be used for this purpose.

—Reduce the local share of a matching grant to 10 per cent, from the current 40 to 50 per cent.

—Allow more federal money to go directly to the cities, rather than to state governments.

Hart proposed that the omnibus bill also include:

—A proposal for drug addiction treatment and rehabilitation and increased funds for drug law enforcement.

—A proposal to move federal court trials up to within 60 days.

—A pornography control proposal.

—A federal reinsurance agency to enable inner city businesses to buy crime loss insurance.

—A federal program of life and disability insurance benefits for state and local law enforcement officers.

—A proposal to allow federal court action against anyone interfering with a citizens, right to free speech.

"The nation's crime problem, to a large degree, is the harvest of accumulated neglect and indifference to the urgent needs of our criminal justice system -a neglect that persists despite outrage and alarm at the crime rate," Hart said.

Col. Turner Dies, Was Top Speed Flyer In 1930s

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Col. Roscoe Turner, America's greatest speed flier of the 1930s, died Tuesday after a long illness. He was 74.

Turner was the only three-time winner of the Thompson Trophy back in the prop plane era. His pet lion "Gilmore" flew 25,000 miles with Turner in the early 1930s while the flier, a native of Corinth, Miss., was building up a reputation as a racer, an air show performer and a movie stunt pilot. Turner's movie credits included "Hell's Angels" and "Flight at Midnight."

He joined the Army ambulance service in World War I but transferred to the Army Air Corps and learned to handle both observation balloons and fighter planes.

He organized an aerial circus after the war and toured the South with a program that included stunt flying, wing walking and parachute jumps.

Kidnapings May Spark OAS Meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — Proposals to halt the current wave of Latin American political kidnapings are expected to spark sharp differences when the Organization of American States foreign ministers open their 13-day meeting this week.

The sessions open Thursday against a backdrop of kidnaping attempts against nine diplomats in Latin America over the last 10 months.

To counter diplomatic kidnapings, Argentina has proposed member nations impose "self-restraint" in granting asylum for political prisoners.

According to the Argentine theory, potential kidnapers would be less likely to abduct diplomats if there are no assurances it will result in the release of political prisoners.

Chile and Mexico have indicated opposition to the Argentine plan.

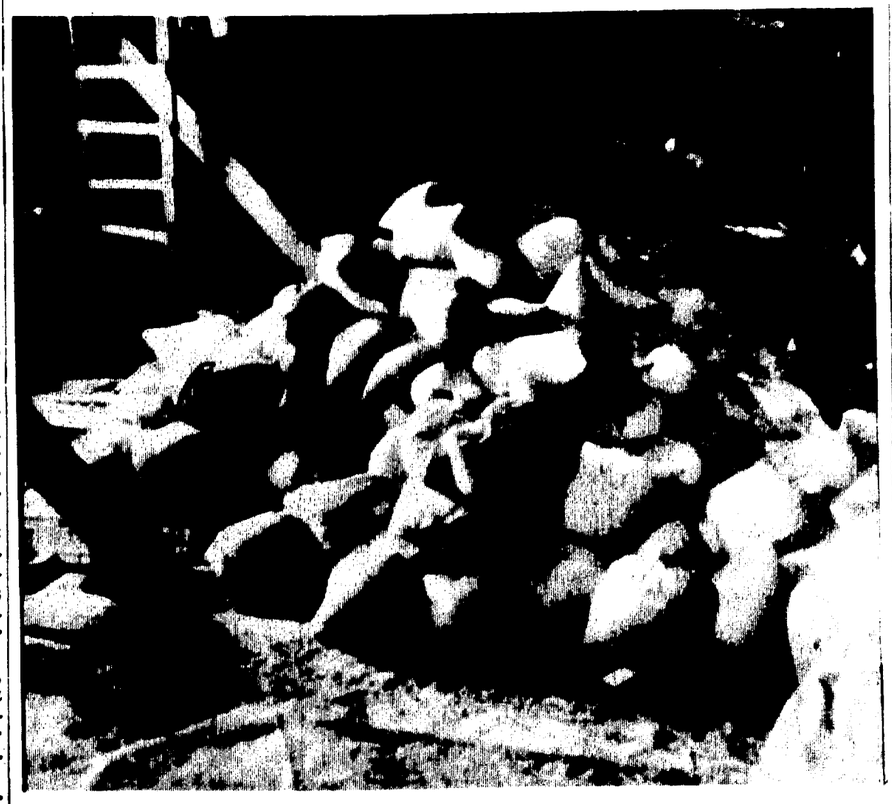

The permanent council of the 23-nation OAS formally condemned the use of violence as a political tool a month ago but left the question of what to do about it to the foreign ministers.

Nine diplomats, including three Americans, have been the targets of kidnaping attempts in Latin America since last September. Most have been released in exchange for the freedom of political prisoners.

Count Karl Von Spreti, West Germany's ambassador to Guatemala, was slain after the government refused to meet his captors' demands for the release of 22 prisoners and for ransom of $700,000.

The latest kidnaping victim, Ehrenfried von Holleben, West Germany's ambassador to Brazil, was freed last week after the government released 40 political prisoners.

The ministers also will consider the effect of the new OAS charter on the various social, political and economic bodies of the inter-American group.

WMU Will Honor Astronaut Trio

KALAMAZOO (AP) —Western Michigan University will award honorary degrees to Apollo 13 astronauts Capt. James A. Lovell Jr., Fred W. Haise Jr. and John L. Sweigert Jr. at its Aug. 14 commencement.

WMU President James W. Miller said the men will be honored for their courageous handling of their spacecraft after an in-space explosion of essential equipment forced the crew to abort its moon-landing mission and return to earth.

Apollo 13 "proved to the world that man is master of the machine and not a slave to it, a concept which much of our blase world elects to ignore," Miller said.

Col. Turner Dies, Was Top Speed Flyer In 1930s

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Col. Roscoe Turner, America's greatest speed flier of the 1930s, died Tuesday after a long illness. He was 74.

Turner was the only three-time winner of the Thompson Trophy back in the prop plane era. His pet lion "Gilmore" flew 25,000 miles with Turner in the early 1930s while the flier, a native of Corinth, Miss., was building up a reputation as a racer, an air show performer and a movie stunt pilot. Turner's movie credits included "Hell's Angels" and "Flight at Midnight."

He joined the Army ambulance service in World War I but transferred to the Army Air Corps and learned to handle both observation balloons and fighter planes.

He organized an aerial circus after the war and toured the South with a program that included stunt flying, wing walking and parachute jumps.

Kidnapings May Spark OAS Meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — Proposals to halt the current wave of Latin American political kidnapings are expected to spark sharp differences when the Organization of American States foreign ministers open their 13-day meeting this week.

The sessions open Thursday against a backdrop of kidnaping attempts against nine diplomats in Latin America over the last 10 months.

To counter diplomatic kidnapings, Argentina has proposed member nations impose "self-restraint" in granting asylum for political prisoners.

According to the Argentine theory, potential kidnapers would be less likely to abduct diplomats if there are no assurances it will result in the release of political prisoners.

Chile and Mexico have indicated opposition to the Argentine plan.

The permanent council of the 23-nation OAS formally condemned the use of violence as a political tool a month ago but left the question of what to do about it to the foreign ministers.

Nine diplomats, including three Americans, have been the targets of kidnaping attempts in Latin America since last September. Most have been released in exchange for the freedom of political prisoners.

Count Karl Von Spreti, West Germany's ambassador to Guatemala, was slain after the government refused to meet his captors' demands for the release of 22 prisoners and for ransom of $700,000.

The latest kidnaping victim, Ehrenfried von Holleben, West Germany's ambassador to Brazil, was freed last week after the government released 40 political prisoners.

The ministers also will consider the effect of the new OAS charter on the various social, political and economic bodies of the inter-American group.

WMU Will Honor Astronaut Trio

KALAMAZOO (AP) —Western Michigan University will award honorary degrees to Apollo 13 astronauts Capt. James A. Lovell Jr., Fred W. Haise Jr. and John L. Sweigert Jr. at its Aug. 14 commencement.

WMU President James W. Miller said the men will be honored for their courageous handling of their spacecraft after an in-space explosion of essential equipment forced the crew to abort its moon-landing mission and return to earth.

Apollo 13 "proved to the world that man is master of the machine and not a slave to it, a concept which much of our blase world elects to ignore," Miller said.

New Plan Generated To Starve Parochiaid

By DON HOENSHELL
Panax Staff Writer

LANSING — House Republicans plan to starve parochiaid to death by bargaining with their votes on a $92 million tax bill that Gov. Milliken needs to balance his 1971-72 budget.

The move is designed to block other major bills and a constitutional amendment that they estimate would cost $320 million.

Details of the strategy came out of a pre-session huddle of 27 House Republicans Monday night in the Capitol Park Motor Hotel here as pressure built for action on school aid.

Rep. Clifford H. Smart (R-Walled Lake), ranking Republican on the House education committee and its former chairman, presided at what others described as a "rump session."

School Bill Is Key

Smart said the massive state school aid bill, now compromised at $975 million and including $22 million for parochiaid, is the key to the plan but is not the only concern.

"There are some of us who opposed parochiaid but we ran up against The Establishment," he said.

There is no procedural way the $22 million for non-public schools can be taken out of the school aid bill, now in a House-Senate conference committee. Republicans have found a way—with the votes.

Smart and others inside the meeting said they would bargain to place a less costly school aid appropriation into a separate measure, the budget bill for the stte Department of Education.

This would take out parochiaid.

But to do it, they need enough anti-parochiaid votes to block passage of the bill repealing all but 12 per cent of the property tax credit now deducted from the state income tax.

Tax Bill Needed

Earlier in the day, House Speaker William A. Ryan said the tax bill would be needed to raise $92 million and balance the state budget at $1.762 billion, up $225 million from current spending.

Minority Republicans have 53 votes and the Democrats 57. Absentees or the flip flop of a small handful of pro-parochiaid votes would make the strategy work.

Smart said another Republican worry is the proposed constitutional amendment reducing the property tax ceiling for schools to 16 per cent of assessed valuation. The state average is 24 per cent. If voters approved, it would be effective next year.

Since this needs two-thirds votes of both Houses, or 74 votes in the House, Republicans could block it by holding back 17, assuming all 57 Democrats voted for it.

"This would take $4 billion out of the tax base and $320 million out of school budgets," Smart said. "If we put it on the ballot the way it's written we would be mandating the next legislature to a big tax increase or we'd be putting the schools in a box.

"We can't commit the next legislature to financing that kind of a bill."

Bargaining Lever

Smart said the group was also agreed to take a close look at special eduaction parts of the school aid bill, bus transportation and other sections.

"We're going to use the tax program as our lever in the bargaining," he said.

House Minority Leader Robert E. Waldron (R. Grosse Pointe) attended the meeting but refused to discuss it.

Rep. Russell H. Strange (R.-Mt. Pleasant), Republican caucus chairman, said he attended but would not go into detail on the agreement. He said:

"I had six of my seven school districts in Montcalm county represented in my office and the spokesmen all told me to hang tough against parochiaid."

He agreed that the agreement would not solve the problems of local districts who are bargaining with teachers on contracts for next fall.

But both he and Smart said the impact of any increase in school aid would not be felt locally until next March in any event so lawmakers have time to make changes.

The development, if pursued under ideal conditions, could sidetrack parochiaid and reverse the drive toward passage of the budget in time for a July 3 recess.

"That's our strategy," said Smart.

Miss America Day Planned

Miss America will be in Escanaba on Monday, July 13, for ceremonies dedicating the tower apartment for senior citizens, and arrangements for the events are being made by a local committee.

Gary LaPlante, city administrative assistant, said the committee will meet at 10:30 a.m. Thursday for further discussion of program planning.

Members of the committee besides LaPlante are James Barr, president of the Jaycees, sponsor of the event; John Bissell, Claude Tobin, John Dulek and Howard Smale. Other citizens are expected to be called upon as the planning progresses.

Miss America Pamela Eldred will arrive in Escanaba by plane Sunday afternoon, July 12, will spend Monday here, and will leave on Tuesday.

The committee is inviting Secretary of Housing and Urban Development George Romney to give the dedicatory address.

Rotary, Kiwanis and other service clubs of the community will meet jointly at Marco's at noon July 13 to greet Miss America as an honor guest.

MAN' S RELATIONSHIP TO nature — to the air, the water and the land — becomes a living reality to Summer Science campers, who are pictured here at work on a recreation project along the shore at Summer Island. Island Is 'World' To Science Campers

By CLINT DUNATHAN

On an island in Lake Michiagn is a school that is rapidly becoming a focal point for youth interested in the subject of evironmental health.

Summer Science Camp on Summer Island in Delta County will open its fourth season on July 27, with more students than ever before. Some will come from as far distant as Georgia and Florida.

Founder of the camp for high school youth interested in studying the natural sciences is Dan Stevens of Ann Arbor and Summer Island. His vision of a camp that combines study and an exciting vacation experience, inspired by a visit to beautiful Summer Island about 10 years ago, has became a busy reality.

Wildlife ecology, shoreline geology, historical archaeology, primary ecology, meteorology, and aquatic geology are included in the program stressing the natural sciences.

Man And His Future

"Our program includes those subjects now employed in approaches to environmental health," Stevens noted. "And the young people we are training are the type of people whose work and research are essential to man's future in the solution of environmental problems."

Rod Marlatt, one of the founders, is assistant director of the camp, and the "faculty" includes professors, graduate students, and instructors from a number of colleges and universities. Among the professional staff of nine will be instructors from Eastern Michigan University, Harvard, University of Michigan, Wayne State, Middlebury College, Vermont, and Michigan State University.

Since the camp is on an island, the auxiliary and maintenance people include men with experience in operating boats—the supply and transportation link with the mainland. Then there are cooks, of course, a nurse, and others on the staff.

There will be two sessions of Summer Science camp, each of four weeks, the first beginning June 27 and the second July 26. The 32 students at each session will come from Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, Maryland, Virginia, Georgia, Florida and Washington, D.C.

Four Area Students

Summer Science has received some favorable attention nationally, and has been favored with a gift of $60,000 from the Kresge Foundation for the construction of a hall. The building was started last year and is being completed this spring.

Six students will be at camp for the full eight weeks, including an Escanaba girl, Margie Mosenfelder, who is returning to continue an Independent study project in Archaeology. A first session camper will be her brother, Jim, who is interested in wildlife ecology. They are children of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mosenfelder.

Two other Escanaba area young people will attend Summer Science Camp as recipients of Rotary Club 50th anniversary special scholarship.

Karen Hivala of Escanaba Area Public High School and George Groos of Holy Name High School were selected by faculty representatives to receive the scholarships. George will attend the first session of the camp Karen the second; his interest is in geology, her's in archaeology.

Legion Chief Hits War Foes

MARQUETTE — J. Milton Patrick, national American Legion commander, has accused New York Mayor John Lindsay and Sen. Richard Goodell (R-N. Y.) of "creating disunity in the US by opposition to the war and attempting to make heroes of those who refuse to serve in it."

Patrick made the accusation at the annual Michigan legion convention in Marquette.

Patrick said that sending American troops into Cambodia was "the smartest move the president has made in the Southeast Asia War." He advocated continued use of American troops there after July 1 if warranted.

Theodore C. Marrs, deputy assistant secretary of defense, called Nixon's plan to use US troops in Cambodia a wise decision, despite its political repercussions. He said Nixon would keep his promises on troop withdrawls.

Delegates passed a resolution endorsing a $500 state bonus for Vietnam War veterans, the same as Michigan gave World War II and Korean War veterans.

Reiss Shipping Line To Be Sold

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)— The American Steamship Co., operator of a Great Lakes fleet, will sell the Reiss Steamship Co. of Sheboygan, Wis., within two years as a result of an antitrust action by the government against American.

Buffalo-based American acquired Reiss, owner of 12 vessels, for $14.5 million a year ago as a wholly owned subsidiary.

Adam E. Cornelius Jr., president of American, said Monday his firm and the U.S. Justice Department had agreed to a consent decree for the sale.

The Justice Department suit charged that American's acquisition of Reiss tended to reduce competition in the Great Lakes steamship industry.

Cornelius said the agreement by American to sell Reiss "does not constitute any admission of any antitrust law violations."

The derailed cars were loaded with pipe or crushed stone.

Bill Proposed To Cut Consumer Hazards

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee says he will push for a bill giving a new federal agency power to eliminate product hazards blamed for the deaths of 30,000 Americans and injuries to 20 million more.

Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., made the announcement prior to today's opening hearing on the recommendations of the National Commission on Product Safety.

The commission presented its final report to the President Tuesday and urged creation of a new agency to deal with product hazards that cost the nation more than $5.5 billion a year.

Ask 5 Member Agency

The study group recommended establishment of a five-member agency with exclusive authority in the field of consumer product safety. An advocate with responsibility to represent only consumers in proceedings before the new agency and other regulatory boards would be named.

The commission, appointed two years ago by former President Lyndon B. Johnson, concluded that no federal agency has authority to enforce safety standards for consumer products. It said state and local laws are nonexistent or ineffective and manufacturers generally have failed to take the lead in safety.

Federal Rate Stressed

"Because of the inadequacy of existing controls on product hazards, we find a need for a major federal role in the development and execution of methods to protect the American consumer," the commission said. "Manufacturers have it in their power to design, build and market products in ways that will reduce if not eliminate most unreasonable and unnecessary hazards."

The commission defined consumer products as those used in or around the home, except foods, drugs, cosmetics, cars, insecticides, firearms, cigarettes and certain flammable fabrics—products regulated by other federal agencies.

"The exposure of consumers to unreasonable consumer product hazards is excessive by any standard of measurement," the study agency said.

The commission, which goes out of business Oct. 1, recommended consumers be permitted to file federal court claims for treble damages, individually or in class actions, against manufacturers which intentionally violate safety standards.

Penalties Proposed

The proposed bill would allow civil penalties of up to $500,000 and criminal fines of up to $50,000 against manufacturers found in violation.

The proposed consumer product safety commission would have authority to seek injunctions against and recall consumer products which failed to meet safety standards.

Island Is 'World' To Science Campers

By CLINT DUNATHAN

On an island in Lake Michiagn is a school that is rapidly becoming a focal point for youth interested in the subject of evironmental health.

Summer Science Camp on Summer Island in Delta County will open its fourth season on July 27, with more students than ever before. Some will come from as far distant as Georgia and Florida.

Founder of the camp for high school youth interested in studying the natural sciences is Dan Stevens of Ann Arbor and Summer Island. His vision of a camp that combines study and an exciting vacation experience, inspired by a visit to beautiful Summer Island about 10 years ago, has became a busy reality.

Wildlife ecology, shoreline geology, historical archaeology, primary ecology, meteorology, and aquatic geology are included in the program stressing the natural sciences.

Man And His Future

"Our program includes those subjects now employed in approaches to environmental health," Stevens noted. "And the young people we are training are the type of people whose work and research are essential to man's future in the solution of environmental problems."

Rod Marlatt, one of the founders, is assistant director of the camp, and the "faculty" includes professors, graduate students, and instructors from a number of colleges and universities. Among the professional staff of nine will be instructors from Eastern Michigan University, Harvard, University of Michigan, Wayne State, Middlebury College, Vermont, and Michigan State University.

Since the camp is on an island, the auxiliary and maintenance people include men with experience in operating boats—the supply and transportation link with the mainland. Then there are cooks, of course, a nurse, and others on the staff.

There will be two sessions of Summer Science camp, each of four weeks, the first beginning June 27 and the second July 26. The 32 students at each session will come from Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, Maryland, Virginia, Georgia, Florida and Washington, D.C.

Four Area Students

Summer Science has received some favorable attention nationally, and has been favored with a gift of $60,000 from the Kresge Foundation for the construction of a hall. The building was started last year and is being completed this spring.

Six students will be at camp for the full eight weeks, including an Escanaba girl, Margie Mosenfelder, who is returning to continue an Independent study project in Archaeology. A first session camper will be her brother, Jim, who is interested in wildlife ecology. They are children of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mosenfelder.

Two other Escanaba area young people will attend Summer Science Camp as recipients of Rotary Club 50th anniversary special scholarship.

Karen Hivala of Escanaba Area Public High School and George Groos of Holy Name High School were selected by faculty representatives to receive the scholarships. George will attend the first session of the camp Karen the second; his interest is in geology, her's in archaeology.

Reiss Shipping Line To Be Sold

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)— The American Steamship Co., operator of a Great Lakes fleet, will sell the Reiss Steamship Co. of Sheboygan, Wis., within two years as a result of an antitrust action by the government against American.

Buffalo-based American acquired Reiss, owner of 12 vessels, for $14.5 million a year ago as a wholly owned subsidiary.

Adam E. Cornelius Jr., president of American, said Monday his firm and the U.S. Justice Department had agreed to a consent decree for the sale.

The Justice Department suit charged that American's acquisition of Reiss tended to reduce competition in the Great Lakes steamship industry.

Cornelius said the agreement by American to sell Reiss "does not constitute any admission of any antitrust law violations."

Railroad Service Back To Normal

SPRING ARBOR (AP)—Penn Central railroad service from Jackson to Elkhart, Ind., was restored Tuesday after railroad crews cleared the tracks of nine derailed cars from a 116-car, Detroit-bound freight train west of Spring Arbor in Concord Township.

Railroad officials said the cars tore up 300 feet of track before disconnecting at a siding.

The derailed cars were loaded with pipe or crushed stone.

Bill Proposed To Cut Consumer Hazards

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee says he will push for a bill giving a new federal agency power to eliminate product hazards blamed for the deaths of 30,000 Americans and injuries to 20 million more.

Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., made the announcement prior to today's opening hearing on the recommendations of the National Commission on Product Safety.

The commission presented its final report to the President Tuesday and urged creation of a new agency to deal with product hazards that cost the nation more than $5.5 billion a year.

Ask 5 Member Agency

The study group recommended establishment of a five-member agency with exclusive authority in the field of consumer product safety. An advocate with responsibility to represent only consumers in proceedings before the new agency and other regulatory boards would be named.

The commission, appointed two years ago by former President Lyndon B. Johnson, concluded that no federal agency has authority to enforce safety standards for consumer products. It said state and local laws are nonexistent or ineffective and manufacturers generally have failed to take the lead in safety.

Federal Rate Stressed

"Because of the inadequacy of existing controls on product hazards, we find a need for a major federal role in the development and execution of methods to protect the American consumer," the commission said. "Manufacturers have it in their power to design, build and market products in ways that will reduce if not eliminate most unreasonable and unnecessary hazards."

The commission defined consumer products as those used in or around the home, except foods, drugs, cosmetics, cars, insecticides, firearms, cigarettes and certain flammable fabrics—products regulated by other federal agencies.

"The exposure of consumers to unreasonable consumer product hazards is excessive by any standard of measurement," the study agency said.

The commission, which goes out of business Oct. 1, recommended consumers be permitted to file federal court claims for treble damages, individually or in class actions, against manufacturers which intentionally violate safety standards.

Penalties Proposed

The proposed bill would allow civil penalties of up to $500,000 and criminal fines of up to $50,000 against manufacturers found in violation.

The proposed consumer product safety commission would have authority to seek injunctions against and recall consumer products which failed to meet safety standards.

Mid-Month Auto Sales On Increase

DETROIT (AP) — Paced by record sales by industry giant General Motors Corp., the U.S. auto indsutry reported new car sales up sharply in the middle 10 days of June.

While sales for the year to date remain 8.2 per cent below the corresponding period of 1969, the four major U.S. automakers sold 13 per cent more cars in the June 11-20 period this year than last year.

GM, which dominates the industry with more than half of all domestic new car sales, reported selling 185,039 cars in the middle period of June, 35.7 per cent above the $26,365 sold in the period last year and eclipsing the record of 143,372 set in 1968.

Mack Worden, GM vice president-marketing, said that Chevrolet Division, GM's largest, ended a major sales incentive program June 20, while Pontiac and Buick Division have sales programs continuing until the end of the month.

American Motors Corp. also reported increased sales in the period.

Canada Ready With Pollution Fight Program

OTTAWA (AP) — Canada has committed itself formally to specific antipollution measures in the Great Lakes without a reciprocal agreement with the United States.

The action was taken Tuesday at a joint conference of Canadian and U.S. officials.

The Canadian commitments, some already announced, cover planning for spills of oil and hazardous materials, elimination of phosphates in detergents and modification of natural gas drilling in Lake Erie to conform with recommendations of the Canada - U.S. International Joint Commission.

A joint communique issued after the one - day conference said the United States still is making an intensive review of removing phosphates from detergents and no drilling for oil or gas is in progress in states bordering Lake Erie.

Need Awareness To Attain Goal Of Clean Water

What is the value of all the affluence, the pleasure in the "good life" if the air is no longer fit to breathe or the water fit to drink?

Kenneth Maki, director, water technology program, Bay de Noc Community College, posed the question in his discussion of "Water and Pollution" to the Rotary Club at its meeting at the House of Ludington Tuesday noon.

Joseph Laskar of the club's program committee introduced the speaker and the meeting was conducted by Thomas Straebel, Rotary Club president.

Maki offered the thought that Rotary and other service clubs might encourage public awareness of the pollution problems "and perhaps support organizations engaged in the environmental crusade."

Creeping Plague'

A graduate of Northern Michigan University, Maki has 10 years of associated experience including teaching, management and supervision of water purification programs. He will present a research report on the effects of phosphorous in activated sludge in Mexico City this coming September.

Although here in Northern Michigan we live in a virtually "pristine" environment compared to urban areas, there is a creeping pollution that edges nearer the north country, he said. Lake Michigan for example, was once clean its entire length; now it is less than half-clean.

The burden of man's pollution grows faster than nature or man can cope with it—"a creeping plague carried by winds and water"—and defies the beginning efforts at control, Maki noted.

Long On Words

What can be done about it? Maki advocated first of all that service clubs make pollution control one of their objectives, that they combine their effort with groups, and that they seek to bring local solutions to local problems.

Rotary and other organizations could adopt resolutions calling upon the federal government to keep its promises on pollution control financing, for Congress has been long on words and short on money, he said.

There is also the need to train the additional persons neded as technicians in the water quality program. In Michigan alone such "manpower needs" will triple in the next five years, he added.

More than all else, however, is the challenge to make the public aware that a problem exists and must be resolved, Maki said.

Pollution Grant

LANSING (AP)—The Department of Natural Resources, acting through the Water Resources Commission, has authorized a state grant of $130,000 toward a $260,000 water pollution abatement project at Laingsburg. Plans call for construction of intercepting sewers, a pumping station, two lagoons and a water retention pond.

AFTER THE FIRES cooled in Crescent City, Ill., this was the scene of destruction that followed the holocaust when tank cars exploded after a freight train was derailed. Most of the town's business section and many homes were destroyed by the fire and explosions. The town, with a population of 600 persons, is south of Chicago. There were no deaths reported despite the immense damage. (AP Wirephoto)

Raps President For Treatment Of U.S. Indians

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP) — The director of Indian studies at the University of California blasted the Nixon administration for its treatment of Indians Tuesday in a speech at Sault Ste. Marie.

Prof. Lehman Brightman, speaking at a three - day Indian Youth Conference at Lake Superior State College, said Nixon made campaign promises to reorganize the Bureau of Indian Affairs and to put Indians on the school boards at Indian schools.

But he said out of 226 Indian school boards only one has an Indian on it.

Brightman, a Sioux - Creek Indian, said, "We have the largest unemployment rate in the United States but the Bureau of Indian Affairs, hires approximately 20,000 people and more than half are not Indians."

He said, "We're the only race of people in the country with a special bureau over them."

Brightman said the country spends more money in Vietnam in a single day than "on all of the 600,000 Indians in the United States in one year."

O'Hara's Eligiblity Being Questioned

LANSING (AP — A fellow Democrat is challenging the eligibility of James G. O'Hara, D-Mich., seeking reelection in the 12th Congressional District.

Joseph G. Savage of Roseville, who filed as a Democratic aspirant for O'Hara's congressional seat, questioned the legal status of O'Hara's claimed residence in Michigan.

Savage said that although O'Hara lists his legal residence as Utica he maintains his sole residence at Alexandria, Va., near Washington.

Since 1967, Savage claimed, the former O'Hara residence in Utica has been leased out to another couple, Savage said he determined from personal interviews that O'Hara and his wife had not lived in, conducted business from or kept their personal effect in the Utica home since 1967.

Savage asked the Board of State Canvassers to declare the nominating petitions filed by O'Hara invalid.

Bernard Apol, state elections director, said the matter was being researched through the attorney general's office.

County Planning Road Relocation At Fayette Park

One of the first steps toward the relocation of County Road 483 around Fayette State Park, preliminary to the construction by the state of a new park entrance roadway and parking lot, is being taken by the Delta County Road Commission.

The Commission has given legal notice of the abandonment of that portion of County Road 483 through the state park area, and the so-called "by-pass" county road east of the park will become a part of the primary county road system.

In its resolution of abandonment the Commission notes that the Department of Natural Resources is "to proceed with the construction of a new network of roads within the boundaries" of the park, and cites further that the "by-pass" road back of the park is "a shorter route" for through traffic.

Plans for the construction of a new entrance roadway and parking area for Fayette park were outlined by Rep. Charles H. Varnum (R-Manistique) in Escanaba recently.

He said that $100,000 for that work is available to the Department; that $130,000 in recreation bond funds is allocated for a visitor center; bringing the total funds for Fayette projects to $230,000.

Hopefully, the state is expected to invite bids for the improvements this year.

Attendance at Fayette park is expected to go about 15 per cent above last year's total of 111,000 visitors, said Park Manager James Kent. Slow in starting this spring, the number of visitors the past two weeks is now above that of a year ago and is increasing rapidly to erase the deficit.

Camping at Fayette is already up by about 25 per cent, but because of the expansion of the campground in the past couple of years there is not expected to be a "turn away" situation develop, Kent said.

The condition of County Road 483 from U. S. 2 to Fayette Park continues to be a deterrent to traffic, although some of the rougher sections are being repaired.

The Delta County Commissioners have petitioned the State Highway Commission to take over the 17 miles of County Road 483 to the park and maintain it as a state trunkline.

Voting At 18

The Voting Rights Bill which includes a provision for lowering the legal age in all states to 18 was signed Tuesday by President Nixon. In signing the bill, the president directed the attorney general to seek a quick court test of the Constitutionality of the 18-year-old vote.

Like leading spokesman for both political parties, President Nixon was in favor of granting the right to vote to 18-year-olds. But he favored doing it by Constitutional amendment—like the 15th Amendment established the right to vote regardless of "race, color or previous condition of servitude" and the 19th Amendment which granted suffrage to women.

Congress was aware of the Constitutional question surrounding the matter of granting voting rights of 18, 19 and 20-year-olds. It took cognizance of this by including a provision in the bill for a quick court test of whether Congress has the power to fix voting ages by statute. Article 10 of the Constitution provides the problem, specifying that "The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people.

It is that provision of the Constitution that allows Georgia and Kentucky to allow 18 year olds to vote, that permits Alaska to allow 19 year olds to vote and that permits 20-year-old Hawaiian residents to vote.

Despite the Constitutional question, however, the President signed the bill because it includes more than just the 18-year-old provision. The bill originally was designed to extend the key provisions of the Voting Rights Act of 1965—an act which resulted in adding nearly a million blacks to the electorate in the deep South—and a veto by the president would have cancelled those provisions, too.

The right to vote at age 18 has been favored by most politicians for years. The question was placed on the ballot on Michigan just two years ago and the U. S. House of Representatives in sending the bill to the president favored the provvisions 272 to 132. Among those voting in favor of the measure was Rep. Philip E. Ruppe, Houghton Republican. Michigan's delegation favored the bill 13-6.

Even Vice President Spiro Agnew, who has strongly criticized some young people for some of their behavior, went on record supporting their right to vote upon reaching the age of 18. In a speech on the same day the House passed the bill, Agnew said:

"If a man is old enough to serve his nation at arms at 18, is he not old eonugh to vote? If a woman is considered mature enough to enter a lifetime contract of marriage at 18, is she not matrue enough to vote? . . . Once our young people are permitted the privilege of sounding off at the polls, there will be less need to sound off in the streets. They'll have the chance to be counted where it counts."

Eighteen-year-olds not only are considered old enough to fight for their country, they also are considered old enough to work and pay taxes, to stand trial in adult courts and to otherwise accept most of the obligations of an adult.

The action of the Congress and the President was on the right track. And if it's ruled unconstitutional by the Supreme Court, then an amendment to the Constitution is necessary.

A dramatic decline in the early-summer visitor atendance at the Soo Locks is generally reflected in the business economy of Sault Ste. Marie, according to a survey conducted by the Sault Evening News. The number of visitors climbing the three observation stations at the locks is nearly 15,000 under the total for the time last year. An actual count of each person climbing one of the observation platforms is maintained by electronic counters at each of the stations. Attendance at the locks is down to 72,057 from 87,221 up to this date in 1969. Locks officials say that last year was a banner season, with a total of 899,200 persons climbing the platforms to see the ship movement in the locks. Motel operators, restaurant and gasoline service station proprietors say that business for 1970 is down about 22 per cent from last year. Tourist business was "way down," one service station owner said, although his local business is holding steady.

'Ethnic American' Is Ready To Start Revolt

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

In the late years of the nineteenth century William Graham Sumner, America's pioneer sociologist, wrote a famous essay on the "Forgotten Man."

The Forgotten Man was the long-suffering lower middle-class citizen who worked hard at his job, paid his bills and his taxes, built a house for himself with perhaps a second story to rent out to somebody else, and invariably found himself mulcted by the politicians to support pressure groups of one type or another who might or might not need the money. Some 50 years later Franklin D. Roosevelt misappropriated and perverted the title of the Sumner essay to cover the "third of the nation" that paid no taxes.

Well, it is a long time since we have heard of — or from — the original Forgotten Man.

But the other day, at a conference called by the Urban Task Force of the United States Catholic Conference in Washington, D.C., he reappeared in a new guise as the "ethnic American." (There are 40 million of these "ethnics," of recent European descent.)

And he found a spokesman, or rather a spokeswoman, in Barbara Mikulski of the Southeast Community Organization of Baltimore. She laid it on the line as a member of the "white ethnic working class" in accents that almost exactly paralleled the Sumner rhetoric.

* * *

"The ethnic American," she said, "is sick of being stereotyped as a racist and dullard by phony white liberals, pseudo black militants and patronizing bureaucrats. He pays the bill for every major government program and gets nothing or little in the way of return . . . He has worked hard all his life to become a 'good American;' he and his sons have fought on every battlefield — and he is made fun of because he likes the flag.

"The ethnic American is overtaxed and underserved at every level of government . . . Being a home owner, he shoulders the rising property taxes . . . yet he enjoys very little from these unfair and burdensome levies . . . If he wants to buy in the 'old neighborhood' he cannot get an FHA loan . . . His income of $5,000 to $10,000 per year makes him 'near poor.'

"He is the victim of both inflation and anti-inflationary measures . . . The public and private institutions have made him frustrated by their lack of response to his needs. At present he feels powerless in his daily dealings with and efforts to change them."

* * *

Sometimes the "ethnics" whose cause has been so eloquently presented by Miss Mikulski react in what the Rev. Paul Asciolla, an Italian-American newspaper editor from Chicago, calls "spastic" terms. They feel their jobs and homes are threatened by the blacks. But they aren't really racist. They don't want to go to George Wallace.

The danger, however, is that they will be driven to him for want of understanding by the "phony white liberals, the pseudo black militants and patronizing bureaucrats."

The dilemma of the "ethnic" American has been dramatically pinpointed by the recent election in Newark, N.J., where Kenneth Gibson, a Negro, easily defeated the incumbent Mayor Hugh Addonizio, of Italian background, in a runoff election to become the first black mayor of a big Northeastern city.

Gibson, an engineer, is a decent person, and we may be certain that he means it when he says he wants to bind up the community's wounds, to promote harmony, an dto reverse the trend of decay that is to be found in all the central cities of the nation. But his slate failed to win the Newark City Council, which stands six-to-three against him.

It will take more than easy promises to keep Newark from experiencing terrible troubles in the near future. Anthony Imperiale, a Councilman who heads a militant white North Ward Citizens Committee, is the very image of the "ethnic American" that was mentioned by Miss Mikulski in her "Forgotten Man" speech in Washington. Imperiale is rough, an expert at karate, and he doesn't trim his words. He seethes with a sense of injustice.

* * *

"I saw voters intimidated by the Black Panthers," he said in a post-election talk. And then came the clincher, which tells us what has happened to the U.S. "If anyone comes to our home to burn, loot or riot," he said, "I'm going to protect my home . . . Don't make this city turn into a bomb. If they start it, we'll finish it."

In other words, Imperiale is ready for "protective violence." The Black Panthers formed their original organization in the San Francisco Bay Area around this very concept of "protective violence" when they ostentatiously "picked up the gun." So we have the tinder laid on both sides, ready for the "defensive" match.

The psychological atmosphere is enough to terrify anyone. It won't dissipate until the "phony white liberals, the pseudo black militants and patronizing bureaucrats" mentioned by Miss Mikulski wake up to what they have done to poison our seats of learning and our communications with their misunderstanding of all our "Forgotten Men."

Will they wake up in time? I'd like to think so, but I have all my fingers crossed.

Rightful Owner Gets Back $50,000

GRAND RAPIDS (AP)—More than $50,000 found by two grade school pupils May 1 has been returned to its rightful owner.

Police said the money was returned to a guardian for the elderly woman whose savings of a lifetime were found in a table under layers of moldering cardboard.

An attorney for the woman said she suffers memory lapses. He said she and her late husband had saved the money at home after losing some of their savings in a bank failure during the depression.

Lower Voting In State Could Be Up To People

LANSING (AP)—Scarcely 24 hours after President Nixon signed into law a bill lowering the voting age to 18, the Michigan Senate has agreed to ask the people whether the state should change its voting age.

The Senate voted 27-6 Tuesday for a proposed constitutional amendment that would lower Michigan's voting age to 18.

The concept won approval in the House earlier.

Which Version?

But before voters decide the question in the November election, lawmakers must decide which version of the amendment should receive full legislative endorsement

Voters could express their sentiments only if the House passes the Senate proposal, introduced by Sen. Anthony Stamm, R-Kalamazoo, or if Senate acts on the House version, sponsored by Rep. Jackie Vaughn III, D-Detroit.

Michigan voters rejected a similar proposal by a nearly 2-1 margin in 1966.

Campus Unrest Cited

In early Senate discussion of the change, some lawmakers predicted that recent campus unrest and violence could boost that margin to 5-1 against a lower voting age."

There was no debate on the proposal Tuesday, however, as it squeaked through the senate with only one vote more than the two-thirds majority needed for passage.

Gov. William Milliken had urged the Senate late last week to approve the proposal.

Nixon signed the voting rights bill, including the lowered voting age provision, Monday. At the same time, however, he directed the attorney general to seek a speedy court test of the constitutionality of the 18-year-old vote provision.

Nixon Supports Move

The President has voiced support for the lower voting age, but said he believes that change should be made through an amendment to the U. S. Constitution.

State officials, meanwhile, say Michigan should endorse its own constitutional amendment—if it wants a lower voting age—in order to avert confusion during court tests of the federal bill.

In other action, Tuesday, the Michigan Senate approved a House-passed bill that would allow 18-year-olds to serve as delegates to state and national political party conventions.

The measure, passed 22-11, was sponsored by Vaughn.

Also passed and returned to the House for concurrence in minor amendments was a bill to lower the state aid penalty on schools that fail to conduct classes 180 days a year—as is required for full aid payments.

Section Deleted

The state currently reduces payments at the rate of two days' school aid for one day lost. Under the bill that had already been passed in the House, that reduction would be cut to one day's school aid for one day lost.

The bill further deletes a section of law that makes Saturday a mandatory school holiday. Senators passed the bill 31-3.

Opening lead—two of hearts.

This deal occurred in a team match. At both tables the contract was three notrump, but at one table it was made while at the other it was defeated.

At the first table, declarer followed low from dummy on the heart lead and won East's ten with the jack. When he then played the king of diamonds, West won with the ace and shifted to a low club. As a result, the defenders cashed four club tricks and South went down one.

At the second table, declarer also played low from dummy on the heart lead, but when East produced the ten, South won with the king!

This declarer realized that the contract would be in danger if West had the ace of diamonds and East had the ace of clubs. Moreover, he reasoned that if he won the trick with the jack West would almost surely shift to a club upon taking the ace of diamonds, since West would realize that South had the hearts triply stopped.

When declarer played a diamond at trick two, West won with the ace and led another heart. He naturally thought East had the jack, since it was difficult for him to imagine that South would win the opening lead with the king if he had the jack.

The ruse having succeeded, and with the contract now fully under control, declarer followed low from dummy, thus recovering the trick he had deliberately lost on the opening lead and finally winding up with ten tricks.

Whether West should have fallen into declarer's trap is not at issue. The real point of interest is that the second declarer was perfectly willing to relinquish a heart trick in order to increase his chance for the contract. He could afford to spurn the extra trick because it was not vital to his cause.

RUPPE REPORTS

Last week, the House of Representatives cleared for the President, legislation which would give the vote to the 18-year old. (The President signed the bill) While I had reservations about this provision of the Voting Rights Act, I supported the measure.

I have had the opportunity to speak with a number of young people, both in Northern Michigan, and at universities across the nation. It has become apparent to me that the vast majority of our young people are responsible, well-informed, and concerned with current events. I think that these upstanding young men and women, who have not received the national attention given to a radical minority, should have the opportunity to express their opinions in the ballot box. I further feel that our young men, who must defend our nation all over the world, should have the chance to help elect the national leaders who could determine their fate. For these reasons, I have continually supported a lowering of the voting age.

I had introduced legislation earlier this Congress, to provide for the 18-year-old vote by means of a Constitutional amendment. Such an amendment would have required the ratification of three-fourths of our states; I felt that the states should participate in the decision to lower the voting age nationally. However, my legislation did not pass through the House Judiciary Committee to the floor of the House.

I felt it necessary to support the Voting Right Act amendment, as the only current alternative. Our youth are deeply and personally affected by such issues as the war in Vietnam and the Selective Service system. Until now, they have had little opportunity to express their views constructively. I am convinced that the new right to vote will provide them with a means of registering their opinions, while stimulating an early interest in their civic responsibilities.

Ann Landers

Bragging Mate May Be Shortchanged

Dear Ann Landers: What can a woman do with a husband who refuses to live within his income? He brags to everyone that he is going to buy his daughter a car for graduation when our own car isn't paid for yet.

The bills came yesterday and I see he bought himself another new suit and six new shirts. When I asked what was wrong with the shirts he has, he said, "They are white. Nobody wears white shirts any more." I told him a package of dye costs 25c and I would dye his shirts red or green if that's what he wants. He got mad and yelled and pounded on the table. I had to close the windows. My neighbor already has told me she feels sorry for me.

My husband never lets on when he's going to buy something. I learn of it when he brings home the box or when I see the bills. If I complain he says, "You're getting nervous." Of course I'm getting nervous. Who wouldn't get nervous being in debt all the time? I work at a part-time job to make extra money and all my extra money goes on his back. The minute I pay one bill, he runs up three more. At times I get so mad I swear I'll never again use my money to pay another bill of his, but if I don't pay his bills his name will be ruined in this town and it's my name and the kids' name, too. What do you see ahead for me? — Sea Of Debt

Dear Sea: More of the same. Your husband is an irresponsible juvenile. He also sounds like a compulsive buyer, which is a sickness. Tell him you are closing all joint charge accounts and if he wants to charge he can open an account under his name. When the bills come, the stores will dun HIM and not you. This might not be a cure but it puts the burden where it belongs.

* * *

Dear Ann Landers: My mother-in-law was one of the loveliest, kindest women who ever lived. The sorrow of her life was the poor relationship she had with her step-daughter, Martha.

Martha was out of control from early childhood and no one could get along with her. My mother-in-law had the patience of Job to live under the same roof with that hellcat. Martha is now 26 years old, has her own apartment and no one ever sees her unless she needs something.

The day my mother-in-law passed away, Martha went to her house and helped herself to all the choice silver, china and jewelry. She took the finest oil paintings off the wall and carted them off.

My husband is furious. He had heard his mother say many times that she wanted me to have her lovely things. He is threatening to sue his stepsister. I told him I would not permit it. Material things don't mean that much to me. Please back me up. He is on a rampage. — Blue Grass

Dear B. G.: I agree with you. But I do feel a lawyer should talk to Martha about a more equitable distribution of your mother-in-law's possessions since your husband has some legal rights.

How sad that your lovely mother-in-law didn't put her good intentions down on paper — in the form of a will. She could easily have made certain her possessions would be distributed as she wished them to be.

The danger, however, is that they will be driven to him for want of understanding by the "phony white liberals, the pseudo black militants and patronizing bureaucrats."

The dilemma of the "ethnic" American has been dramatically pinpointed by the recent election in Newark, N.J., where Kenneth Gibson, a Negro, easily defeated the incumbent Mayor Hugh Addonizio, of Italian background, in a runoff election to become the first black mayor of a big Northeastern city.

Gibson, an engineer, is a decent person, and we may be certain that he means it when he says he wants to bind up the community's wounds, to promote harmony, an dto reverse the trend of decay that is to be found in all the central cities of the nation. But his slate failed to win the Newark City Council, which stands six-to-three against him.

It will take more than easy promises to keep Newark from experiencing terrible troubles in the near future. Anthony Imperiale, a Councilman who heads a militant white North Ward Citizens Committee, is the very image of the "ethnic American" that was mentioned by Miss Mikulski in her "Forgotten Man" speech in Washington. Imperiale is rough, an expert at karate, and he doesn't trim his words. He seethes with a sense of injustice.

"I saw voters intimidated by the Black Panthers," he said in a post-election talk. And then came the clincher, which tells us what has happened to the U.S. "If anyone comes to our home to burn, loot or riot," he said, "I'm going to protect my home . . . Don't make this city turn into a bomb. If they start it, we'll finish it."

In other words, Imperiale is ready for "protective violence." The Black Panthers formed their original organization in the San Francisco Bay Area around this very concept of "protective violence" when they ostentatiously "picked up the gun." So we have the tinder laid on both sides, ready for the "defensive" match.

The psychological atmosphere is enough to terrify anyone. It won't dissipate until the "phony white liberals, the pseudo black militants and patronizing bureaucrats" mentioned by Miss Mikulski wake up to what they have done to poison our seats of learning and our communications with their misunderstanding of all our "Forgotten Men."

Will they wake up in time? I'd like to think so, but I have all my fingers crossed.

Rightful Owner Gets Back $50,000

GRAND RAPIDS (AP)—More than $50,000 found by two grade school pupils May 1 has been returned to its rightful owner.

Police said the money was returned to a guardian for the elderly woman whose savings of a lifetime were found in a table under layers of moldering cardboard.

An attorney for the woman said she suffers memory lapses. He said she and her late husband had saved the money at home after losing some of their savings in a bank failure during the depression.

Lower Voting In State Could Be Up To People

LANSING (AP)—Scarcely 24 hours after President Nixon signed into law a bill lowering the voting age to 18, the Michigan Senate has agreed to ask the people whether the state should change its voting age.

The Senate voted 27-6 Tuesday for a proposed constitutional amendment that would lower Michigan's voting age to 18.

The concept won approval in the House earlier.

Which Version?

But before voters decide the question in the November election, lawmakers must decide which version of the amendment should receive full legislative endorsement.

Voters could express their sentiments only if the House passes the Senate proposal, introduced by Sen. Anthony Stamm, R-Kalamazoo, or if Senate acts on the House version, sponsored by Rep. Jackie Vaughn III, D-Detroit.

Michigan voters rejected a similar proposal by a nearly 2-1 margin in 1966.

Campus Unrest Cited

In early Senate discussion of the change, some lawmakers predicted that recent campus unrest and violence could boost that margin to 5-1 against a lower voting age."

There was no debate on the proposal Tuesday, however, as it squeaked through the senate with only one vote more than the two-thirds majority needed for passage.

Gov. William Milliken had urged the Senate late last week to approve the proposal.

Nixon signed the voting rights bill, including the lowered voting age provision, Monday. At the same time, however, he directed the attorney general to seek a speedy court test of the constitutionality of the 18-year-old vote provision.

Nixon Supports Move

The President has voiced support for the lower voting age, but said he believes that change should be made through an amendment to the U. S. Constitution.

State officials, meanwhile, say Michigan should endorse its own constitutional amendment—if it wants a lower voting age—in order to avert confusion during court tests of the federal bill.

In other action, Tuesday, the Michigan Senate approved a House-passed bill that would allow 18-year-olds to serve as delegates to state and national political party conventions.

The measure, passed 22-11, was sponsored by Vaughn.

Also passed and returned to the House for concurrence in minor amendments was a bill to lower the state aid penalty on schools that fail to conduct classes 180 days a year—as is required for full aid payments.

Section Deleted

The state currently reduces payments at the rate of two days' school aid for one day lost. Under the bill that had already been passed in the House, that reduction would be cut to one day's school aid for one day lost.

The bill further deletes a section of law that makes Saturday a mandatory school holiday. Senators passed the bill 31-2.

Opening lead—two of hearts.

This deal occurred in a team match. At both tables the contract was three notrump, but at one table it was made while at the other it was defeated.

At the first table, declarer followed low from dummy on the heart lead and won East's ten with the jack. When he then played the king of diamonds, West won with the ace and shifted to a low club. As a result, the defenders cashed four club tricks and South went down one.

At the second table, declarer also played low from dummy on the heart lead, but when East produced the ten, South won with the king!

This declarer realized that the contract would be in danger if West had the ace of diamonds and East had the ace of clubs. Moreover, he reasoned that if he won the trick with the jack West would almost surely shift to a club upon taking the ace of diamonds, since West would realize that South had the hearts triply stopped.

When declarer played a diamond at trick two, West won with the ace and led another heart. He naturally thought East had the jack, since it was difficult for him to imagine that South would win the opening lead with the king if he had the jack.

The ruse having succeeded, and with the contract now fully under control, declarer followed low from dummy, thus recovering the trick he had deliberately lost on the opening lead and finally winding up with ten tricks.

Whether West should have fallen into declarer's trap is not at issue. The real point of interest is that the second declarer was perfectly willing to relinquish a heart trick in order to increase his chance for the contract. He could afford to spurn the extra trick because it was not vital to his cause.

RUPPE REPORTS

Last week, the House of Representatives cleared for the President, legislation which would give the vote to the 18-year old. (The President signed the bill) While I had reservations about this provision of the Voting Rights Act, I supported the measure.

I have had the opportunity to speak with a number of young people, both in Northern Michigan, and at universities across the nation. It has become apparent to me that the vast majority of our young people are responsible, well-informed, and concerned with current events. I think that these upstanding young men and women, who have not received the national attention given to a radical minority, should have the opportunity to express their opinions in the ballot box. I further feel that our young men, who must defend our nation all over the world, should have the chance to help elect the national leaders who could determine their fate. For these reasons, I have continually supported a lowering of the voting age.

I had introduced legislation earlier this Congress, to provide for the 18-year-old vote by means of a Constitutional amendment. Such an amendment would have required the ratification of three-fourths of our states; I felt that the states should participate in the decision to lower the voting age nationally. However, my legislation did not pass through the House Judiciary Committee to the floor of the House.

I felt it necessary to support the Voting Right Act amendment, as the only current alternative. Our youth are deeply and personally affected by such issues as the war in Vietnam and the Selective Service system. Until now, they have had little opportunity to express their views constructively. I am convinced that the new right to vote will provide them with a means of registering their opinions, while stimulating an early interest in their civic responsibilities.

Ann Landers

Bragging Mate May Be Shortchanged

Dear Ann Landers: What can a woman do with a husband who refuses to live within his income? He brags to everyone that he is going to buy his daughter a car for graduation when our own car isn't paid for yet.

The bills came yesterday and I see he bought himself another new suit and six new shirts. When I asked what was wrong with the shirts he has, he said, "They are white. Nobody wears white shirts any more." I told him a package of dye costs 25c and I would dye his shirts red or green if that's what he wants. He got mad and yelled and pounded on the table. I had to close the windows. My neighbor already has told me she feels sorry for me.

My husband never lets on when he's going to buy something. I learn of it when he brings home the box or when I see the bills. If I complain he says, "You're getting nervous." Of course I'm getting nervous. Who wouldn't get nervous being in debt all the time? I work at a part-time job to make extra money and all my extra money goes on his back. The minute I pay one bill, he runs up three more. At times I get so mad I swear I'll never again use my money to pay another bill of his, but if I don't pay his bills his name will be ruined in this town and it's my name and the kids' name, too. What do you see ahead for me? — Sea Of Debt

Dear Sea: More of the same. Your husband is an irresponsible juvenile. He also sounds like a compulsive buyer, which is a sickness. Tell him you are closing all joint charge accounts and if he wants to charge he can open an account under his name. When the bills come, the stores will dun HIM and not you. This might not be a cure but it puts the burden where it belongs.

★ ★ ★

Dear Ann Landers: My mother-in-law was one of the loveliest, kindest women who ever lived. The sorrow of her life was the poor relationship she had with her step-daughter, Martha.

Martha was out of control from early childhood and no one could get along with her. My mother-in-law had the patience of Job to live under the same roof with that hellcat. Martha is now 26 years old, has her own apartment and no one ever sees her unless she needs something.

The day my mother-in-law passed away, Martha went to her house and helped herself to all the choice silver, china and jewelry. She took the finest oil paintings off the wall and carted them off.

My husband is furious. He had heard his mother say many times that she wanted me to have her lovely things. He is threatening to sue his step-sister. I told him I would not permit it. Material things don't mean that much to me. Please back me up. He is on a rampage. — Blue Grass

Dear B. G.: I agree with you. But I do feel a lawyer should talk to Martha about a more equitable distribution of your mother-in-law's possessions since your husband has some legal rights.

How sad that your lovely mother-in-law didn't put her good intentions down on paper — in the form of a will. She could easily have made certain her possessions would be distributed as she wished them to be.

New Directory Is Distributed

The 1970 edition of the city directory for Escanaba and Gladstone has been distributed to subcribers by the publishers, R. L. Polk & Co., St. Paul, Minn.

The new edition lists 13,185 personal end business names in the Escanaba - Gladstone area, including Rapid River and Wells, with 18 continued as the minimum listing age. The count considers the combined names of man and wife as only one name, the publishers explained.

The directory shows occupation or business connection, marital status and name of wife, whether head of house or roomer, names and titles of proprietors and officers of corporations, and other items of information.

Special regular features of the new directory include the designations of tenant-owned and rented homes; telephone number listings by streets and houses; telephone numbers in numerical order; and the zip code numbers shown on the street and avenue guide.

The variety of business in the area is indicated in the yellow pages, which range alphabetically downward from Abstracters to Yarns-Retail.

First and last on the new roster are A-1 Auto Paint and Supply and Michael Zunich.

Administration Has Second Thoughts About PRR Loan

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Penn Central railroad loan guarantee, pure and simple, was just too hot a political potato.

Like a bridegroom with second thoughts after a hasty proposal, the Nixon administration left the property-rich but cash-poor railroad waiting at the church door. Without the $200 million the government promised, the road went bankrupt.

Question Remains

The questions remaining: Why did the administration make the promises? Why did it back out? What happened in between?

"I think one of the problems was that this is an administration with a lot of big business people and a lot of bankers," says a top congressional aide in the thick of the negotiations.

"They run to the thinking of being in the business community, rather than the government community. They felt there was nothing better they could do for the country than help out banks and get them out of trouble."

The administration backed away from the loan, the aide says, because it "could never have defended the decision publicly. Apparently cooler heads prevailed. There was the chance that the government would lose sizeable sums."

Political Mischief?

And a top official, who helped carry the ball for the White House, says "What really scared people was the potential for political mischief."

On one side was the administration with its friends, old ties and sympathies to big business —a vulnerable target on that score alone. On the other was a Congress, prodded by an unwavering Texas Democrat, unwilling to be criticized for possibly tossing away $200 million—or maybe more—in an election year.

According to the congressional aide, the decision was made in the high councils of government to help out the Penn Central "and then they went looking for a law to grant a loan under."

The vehicle decided on was the 1950 Defense Production Act, which provided a small or medium contractor could get a government guarantee to buy supplies necessary to carry out a specific contract. The act had never been used to bail out an ailing company.

Official Explains

The administration official explains the concern was that bankruptcy and receivership could disrupt the already inefficient operations of the Pennsy with serious repercussions on the financial market.

"The whole thing came up suddenly," he said. "The railroad began talking to Kennedy and Volpe in May."

Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy was at the May 7-10 gathering of the Business Council at Hot Springs, Va. Another who was there was Stuart T. Saunders, a Kennedy friend and Penn central board chairman until fired June 8.

Banking and railroad officials also met with Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe that month.

Despite wide knowledge in the financial community about the railroad's troubles, the efforts of bankers with the government went publicly unreported until June 9. At that time the White House called in a number of congressional leaders into the office of Senate Minority Leader Hugh Scott.

"They (the administration) arrived with large flip charts," says the congressional aide. "It was like a corporate session. They described the plight of the railroad and the seriousness of it and told of plans for the loan guarantee."

Expresses Concern

The aide says Texas Democrat Wright Patman, chairman of the House Banking and Currency Committee, expressed serious concern whether the Defense Department had the authority to lend the money. "To the Banking and Currency Committee it seemed a weird interpretation of the act as well as all the other questions it raised."

The administration official says Patman raised few questions at the meeting.

The official adds that "we went into the whole thing with a high degree of confidence we would get legislation" from Congress for $750 million loan guarantee authority to help the Penn Central and other railroads. The Defense Department would have been let off its $200 million hook once that authority was obtained.

"The whole thing hinged on the fact that the Defense Production Act would only be used for a short period," the official says, "on the theory it was the only power that the administration had.

"We had a definite interest in keeping the railroad running."

Confidence that Congress would buy the package, the official says, was prompted in part by the fact that Congress once before had set up such a fund—for the Interstate Commerce Commission between 1958 and 1963.

The Penn Central got a $24 million loan under the old ICC authority.

But Patman was still concerned. On June 11 he wrote Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, "the guarantee of hundreds of millions of dollars of capital to this corporation appears very risky under the figures presented by the administration . . . ."

Report Procedures

He told the board he wanted a report on its procedures in its investigation of the credit-worthiness of the Pennsy. And, Patman announced, his committee would hold hearings into the matter the week of June 22.

But on June 17, a committee staffer says, "we learned they had completed it (the loan investigation) and a courier was on a plane from New York with the papers, flying here to be met by someone from the Fed.

"He was going to meet him at the airport and drive to the Pentagon. It was really cloak and daggerish. They were continuing with the process despite the planned investigation. With the flight from New York we felt they were speeding things up to get around the investigation."

That night, Patman and five other members of his committee wired Navy Secretary John Chafee, urging "that you delay any final action on this matter until after the House Banking and Currency Committee has had a chance to thoroughly investigate this proposal."

At 8 a.m. the following morning, Patman telephoned David M. Packard, deputy secretary of defense, trying to persuade Packard to reconsider the plan.

Proposal Considered

The next day, June 19th, also at 8 a.m., Packard called back to say he had considered the proposal and felt he had to go ahead. Patman said he would rule that day.

That morning, at a committee hearing, Patman asked Comptroller Elmer Staats to investigate the entire matter. Staats promised the General Accounting Office would begin that afternoon.

There were continuous high level meetings among administration officials that day.

"The growing feeling that afternoon was that the political aspects began to outweigh the positive asset," says an administration official. "What really scared people was the potential for political mischief. We knew they'd make hay out of connections and bankers' interests, the involvement of Nixon's old law firm."

Pentagon Backs

At 4:40 p.m. Patman again got a call from Packard. The deal was off. An announcement would be made shortly.

"In the light of growing uncertainty regarding the enactment of legislation," the Pentagon announcement said, it was decided not to go ahead with the guarantee. The White House was aware of the decision, a Defense Department spokesman said.

You can clean without phosphates.

No-phosphate products

Here are seven Amway products that contain absolutely no phosphate. Seven detergent and laundry products that will clean everything in your house, around your house, in your garage. . . including laundry. . .without putting one ounce of phosphate down your drain. Your independent Amway Distributor will show you how to use Amway's famous organic liquid detergent, L.O.C., along with Anti-Soil, Fabric Softener and Liquid drifab for your laundry, Dish Drops for your kitchen, and Car Wash for your garage. With no-phosphate products, clothes may not remain as white and bright as you're used to. . .but these Amway products will get your clothes truly clean and soft. . .make them water and soil resistant. . .even remove stubborn stains. . . without using one speck of phosphate.

Very low-phosphate products

And there are three more heavy duty Amway cleaners that contain such small amounts of phosphate as to be insignificant in ecology. Industroclean and Zoom (less than 1¼ %)* make short work of cleaning toughest grease and grime on walls, floors, tile, machinery. Redu (under 3%)* bleaches out stubborn stains from clothes and fixtures. *(phosphate expressed as P_2O_5)

Low-phosphate yield concentrates

And when you use automatic laundry and dishwashing machines and need the high performance cleaning capability that only products containing phosphate can give. . .then you will clean best, most economically, yet use minimum phosphate by using these five concentrated products Amway makes for these special purposes. Percentages of phosphate by weight or volume are not a meaningful comparison . . .it's "grams per washload" that count. And, if you follow the Amway package directions for minimum amount use, you will use far less of Amway Concentrates than of ordinary cleaners, and put less phosphate in the water. Compare these Amway "grams of phosphate per washload" figures of Amway's current production with other brands of the same type of product:

	APPROX. PHOSPHATE PER WASHLOAD (P_2O_5) GMS.	OZ.	PHOSPHATE % BY WEIGHT (P_2O_5)
SA-8 Laundry Detergent in top-loaders	88-142	3/8	28.5%
SA-8 Laundry Detergent in side-loaders	5-38	1/6	23.9%
Tri-Zyme Enzyme Pre-soak	10	1/3	20%
Dry Chlorine Bleach: in top-loaders	5	1/6	14.9%
Dry Chlorine Bleach: in side-loaders	2-10	1/12	14.9%
Smashing White Pre-soak Softener	10-12	1/3	14.81%
Dishwasher Compound for Machines	3-20	1/6	24.9%

Remember — it's not "phosphate in the box" or "phosphate on the shelf" that counts. . .it's phosphate "down the drain" that you are concerned about.

Amway's heavy duty formulas are so concentrated and so high in cleaning power that you need only small amounts to do the work. Of course, Amway uses only biodegradable surfactants in all of its detergent products. But whenever possible Amway also uses phosphate substitutes in its formulas to the extent they are available in the world market. So whether you feel you should use no phosphate, or very little phosphate, or low yield phosphate products. . . your independent Amway Distributor can serve you, right in your home, with the best products to do every cleaning and laundry job.

In the forefront for clean water.

Administration Has Second Thoughts About PRR Loan

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Penn Central railroad loan guarantee, pure and simple, was just too hot a political potato.

Like a bridegroom with second thoughts after a hasty proposal, the Nixon administration left the property-rich but cash-poor railroad waiting at the church door. Without the $200 million the government promised, the road went bankrupt.

Question Remains

The questions remaining: Why did the administration make the promises? Why did it back out? What happened in between?

"I think one of the problems was that this is an administration with a lot of big business people and a lot of bankers," says a top congressional aide in the thick of the negotiations.

"They run to the thinking of being in the business community, rather than the government community. They felt there was nothing better they could do for the country than help out banks and get them out of trouble."

The administration backed away from the loan, the aide says, because it "could never have defended the decision publicly. Apparently cooler heads prevailed. There was the chance that the government would lose sizeable sums."

Political Mischief?

And a top official, who helped carry the ball for the White House, says "What really scared people was the potential for political mischief."

On one side was the administration with its friends, old ties and sympathies to big business —a vulnerable target on that score alone. On the other was a Congress, prodded by an unwavering Texas Democrat, unwilling to be criticized for possibly tossing away $200 million—or maybe more—in an election year.

According to the congressional aide, the decision was made in the high councils of government to help out the Penn Central "and then they went looking for a law to grant a loan under."

The vehicle decided on was the 1950 Defense Production Act, which provided a small or medium contractor could get a government guarantee to buy supplies necessary to carry out a specific contract. The act had never been used to bail out an ailing company.

The administration official says Patman raised few questions at the meeting.

Very low-phosphate products

And there are three more heavy duty Amway cleaners that contain such small amounts of phosphate as to be insignificant in ecology. Industroclean and Zoom (less than 1¼%)* make short work of cleaning toughest grease and grime on walls, floors, tile, machinery. Redu (under 3%)* bleaches out stubborn stains from clothes and fixtures. (*phosphate expressed as P_2O_5)

Low-phosphate yield concentrates

And when you use automatic laundry and dishwashing machines and need the high performance cleaning capability that only products containing phosphate can give. . .then you will clean best, most economically, yet use minimum phosphate by using these five concentrated products Amway makes for these special purposes. Percentages of phosphate by weight or volume are not a meaningful comparison . . .it's "grams per washload" that count. And, if you follow the Amway package directions for minimum amount use, you will use far less of Amway Concentrates than of ordinary cleaners, and put less phosphate in the water. Compare these Amway "grams of phosphate per washload" figures of Amway's current production with other brands of the same type of product:

	APPROX. PHOSPHATE PER WASHLOAD (P_2O_5) GMS.	OZ.	PHOSPHATE % IN PKG. AS (P_2O_5)
S-A-8 Laundry Detergent: in top-loaders	11-1/2	1/3	23.5%
S-A-8 Laundry Detergent: in side-loaders	5-3/4	1/6	23.5%
Tri-Zyme Enzyme Pre-soak	10	1/3	20%
Dry Chlorine Bleach: in top-loaders	5	1/6	14.94%
Dry Chlorine Bleach: in side-loaders	2-1/2	1/12	14.94%
Smashing White Pre-soak Softener	10-1/2	1/3	14.81%
Dishwasher Compound for Machines	3-2/3	1/8	24.9%

Remember — it's not "phosphate in the box" or "phosphate on the shelf" that counts. . .it's phosphate "down the drain" that you are concerned about.

Amway's heavy duty formulas are so concentrated and so high in cleaning power that you need only small amounts to do the work. Of course, Amway uses only biodegradable surfactants in all of its detergent products. But whenever possible Amway also uses phosphate substitutes in its formulas to the extent they are available in the world market. So whether you feel you should use no phosphate, or very little phosphate, or low yield phosphate products. . . your independent Amway Distributor can serve you, right in your home, with the best products to do every cleaning and laundry job.

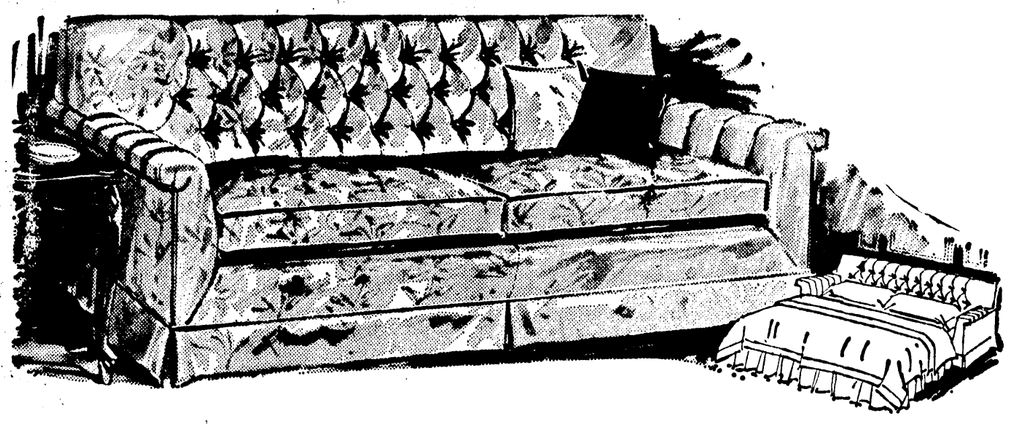

In the forefront for clean water.

Government Workers Are Truthful About Economy

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Nobody in government tampers with economic statistics to suit political ends. That is the proud reputation government workers seek to uphold, and it is generally agreed they uphold it well.

The May unemployment figure of 5 per cent, for example, obviously shocked and discomforted the administration, but it was released on schedule, as it generally is.

And figures showing a sharp rise in the cost of living followed by one day—and somewhat undermined—President Nixon's attempt to assure Americans that his anti-inflation campaign was close to the mark.

Errors Possible

Error, however, is another thing, and two highly regarded professors believe there is a huge one in the compilation of the Wholesale Price Index, one of the most widely followed barometers of inflation.

The index, they say, continues to rise lately when it should be falling. It is making the Nixon administration anti-inflation effort look poorer than it is. And it may even be upsetting Federal Reserve Board policy.

Stigler Confident

The thesis is put forth by George Stigler of the University of Chicago and James Kindahl of the University of Massachusetts and is to be published June 26 as "The Behavior of Industrial Prices" by the National Bureau of Economic Research.

Says Stigler, "I am absolutely confident that there has been extensive price cutting during the slowdown of the past six to eight months: but these cuts have not showed up in the government's WPI."

This means, Stigler adds, that the Federal Reserve has had imperfect data on which to base monetary policy. It means also that other government agencies have been misled in charting gross national product and productivity.

The problem, as the authors see it, is that the venerable WPI is based on prices that sellers list in their catalogs, taking into account only standard discounts.

Buyers Pay Less

However, the authors argue, buyers actually pay less through special discounts, tie-in sales, introductory offers, shipping concessions and so on.

They suggest that the index be adjusted for these more subtle discounts and other variables. Buyers, they feel, would be able to supply more accurate data than sellers. Then there should be a Buyers' Price Index.

Analysts at the Bureau of Labor Statistics are said to be interested in running a pilot study of the Stigler-Kindahl proposal but have been unable to convince Congress to supply the estimated $100,000 needed.

Won't Reduce Prices

The authors comment that a buyers' index might more accurately reflect a slowdown in the economy and explain the puzzling inertia of the Wholesale Price Index to reflect this slowdown.

Businessmen today may continue to list prices at a certain level, they say, rather than reduce them officially because of a feeling that inflation may continue and that the government may act one day to control further price hikes.

Senators Backing Safety Air Bag For Automobiles

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twenty senators joined Tuesday in a letter to Transportation Secretary John Volpe urging him to stand by his proposal to require all cars sold after Jan. 1, 1972 to be equipped with an inflatable safety air bag.

Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, chairman of the Senate consumer subcommittee, said he had circulated the letter because of what he termed mounting industry pressure to delay implementation of the proposed inflatable occupant restraint system popularly known as the air bag.

The senator's letter to Volpe said they had been informed his office had concluded "the air bag system, in its present state of development, has high reliability and will be effective in protecting occupants in most crash situations."

Upper Peninsula Students Tops In Acheivement

LANSING (AP) — Detroit's massive public school system produced the lowest scores in the first statewide assessment of student achievement according to preliminary findings released Tuesday by the State Board of Education.

Students in the Upper Peninsula scored highest on the tests, which were given to fourth and seventh grade students last winter, the board said.

The board released only very general findings Tuesday, but said that by the end of next month, every school board in the state would be given a school-by-school report on test scores in its district. Those results would not be made public by the state, the board said, but added that local administrators would be encouraged to report the results to the public.

Suggests Probe Of Rail Carriers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two congressmen have called for an investigation of all the nation's rail carriers following Penn Central's reorganization under bankruptcy laws.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits and Rep. Ogden Reid, New York Republicans, reported they would seek a joint congressional investigation. Moments earlier Javits announced he was prepared to introduce a bill to set up a $750-million loan guarantee program for railroads.

A similar bill has been introduced in the House.

The Penn Central reorganized under an order issued by U.S. District Judge C. William Kraft Jr. in Philadelphia.

Transportation Secretary John Volpe said he thinks the railroad will continue to operate normally if the bankruptcy case is handled properly.

The announcement of the reorganization caused a flurry of trading on the New York Stock Exchange Monday and the price of the stock closed at $6.50, down $4.63. Trading was delayed because of an influx of orders until just before the market's close, when 450,000 shares changed hands.

Hospital Group Director Swings Back At Nader

LANSING (AP) — Ralph Nader's charges of accidental hospital electrocution of patients are "totally alien to the truth" in Michigan, according to H. Allan Barth, executive director of the Michigan Hospital Association.

Nader, known for his crusades in behalf of the consumer, accused hospitals in a Detroit speech June 16 of electrocuting 5,000 patients each year through faulty use of electrical equipment. Hospitals and physicians are covering up the true causes of deaths by usually atributing them to cardiac arrests, Nader also charged.

"Constant research, inspections and improvements are going on ceaselessly in all of our hospitals in Michigan to absolutely guarantee that every safety precaution is used for the welfare of our patients," Barth said Tuesday in reply to Nader's comments.

"If reported correctly," Barth said, "Mr. Nader's charges are totally alien to the truth as it exists, at least in Michigan."

3 Reappointments

LANSING (AP)—Gov. William Milliken has reappointed three members of the State Board of Boiler Rules for terms ending June 30, 1974. Renamed were John Johnston of Ferrysburg, Neil Vierson Jr. of Grand Rapids and Clarence Locke of Milford.

Court Will Rule Of Grand Rapids' Official's Ouster

GRAND RAPIDS (AP) — City commissioners will go to court in an effort to remove Comptroller Jack Harper from his office because the comptroller is running for the State Legislature.

The commission voted 4-2 Tuesday to seek court action against Harper on grounds that the City Charter forbids holding city office while running for another post.

Harper has argued that he is a candidate for nomination in the Democratic primary Aug. 4. He is seeking a Michigan House seat from the 93rd District.

Jackie Gleason Granted Divorce

NEW YORK (AP) — Jackie Gleason has been awarded a divorce from his wife of 34 years, ending a precedent-setting case.

The decree was granted recently in state Supreme Court.

Genevieve Gleason obtained a legal separation from the comedian in 1954 on an uncontested charge of abandonment.

Under legal precedent in the state, only she could have begun a divorce action because he was viewed by the law as the guilty party.

However, in 1967 a new law added a two-year legal separation as a ground for divorce.

In the Gleason case, the state's highest court, the Court of Appeals, held for the first time that if the couple were legally separated for that time, it made no difference which partner initially had been designated guilty.

Mrs. Gleason will receive more than $100,000 a year in alimony.

A-Power Plant Running Into More Trouble

KALAMAZOO (AP) — Federal regulations could mean closing a nuclear plant on Lake Michigan, even if the Atomic Energy Commission allows it to open this year, an AEC hearing was told Tuesday.

Bert Atwood, a representative of the Department of the Interior, made the comment as hearing began on Consumers Power Company's Palisades plant near South Haven. The company is seeking an operating license from the AEC.

In a statement representing what he said are the views of the secretary of the interior, Atwood contended that the Palisades plant must conform to state and federal water quality standards or its license will terminate April 3, 1973.

However, Atwood conceded that no federal water quality standards have yet been established.

And Atwood said Michigan's present standards governing discharges of heated water into Lake Michigan are not acceptable to the Interior Department.

Atwood contended that the Palisades plant, as it is now designed, "will not be able to comply with state-federal standards when they are approved."

He would not specify what the standards for discharging heated water will be. Present plans call for the Palisades plant to discharge water at from 25 to 28 degrees warmer than that of Lake Michigan.

Eight other witnesses testified on the first day of the hearings. Only one, Donald Hanson, chairman of the Van Buren County Board of Commissioners, urged the hearing board to grant the operating license.

Hanson spoke of the jobs and power supplies the plant would provide, but other speakers warned of what they said were possible dangers from its discharges.

Examination Set For Detroit GI In Murder Case

JACKSON (AP)— Army Pvt. Frank K. Young, 21, of Detroit faced a July 2 preliminary examination today in connection with the beating death of a Wayne County social worker killed on a mercy mission to help a foster mother.

Young, stationed at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., was charged Tuesday with the death of Mrs. Carole Ann Christoff, 24, of Ann Arbor, whose body was found near an abandoned farmhouse west of here Monday. She died in a hospital early Tuesday.

Jackson County police theorized Mrs. Christoff picked up a hitch-hiker in her car en route to her Ann Arbor home from Detroit. Young was arrested in Mrs. Christoff's car near M-99 and I-94 near the Jackson-Calhoun County line. He was being held on an open charge of murder.

Takes PR Post

DETROIT (AP) — John W. Hushen, press secretary to Sen. Robert Griffin, R-Mich., and former Detroit News reporter, was named today as director of public information for the U.S. Department of Justice.

Atty. Gen. John M. Mitchell announced Hushen would replace current information officer, Jack C. Landau, in the $35,500-a-year job.

Jackie Gleason Granted Divorce

NEW YORK (AP) — Jackie Gleason has been awarded a divorce from his wife of 34 years, ending a precedent-setting case.

The decree was granted recently in state Supreme Court.

Genevieve Gleason obtained a legal separation from the comedian in 1954 on an uncontested charge of abandonment.

Under legal precedent in the state, only she could have begun a divorce action because he was viewed by the law as the guilty party.

However, in 1967 a new law added a two-year legal separation as a ground for divorce.

In the Gleason case, the state's highest court, the Court of Appeals, held for the first time that if the couple were legally separated for that time, it made no difference which partner initially had been designated guilty.

Mrs. Gleason will receive more than $100,000 a year in alimony.

A-Power Plant Running Into More Trouble

KALAMAZOO (AP) — Federal regulations could mean closing a nuclear plant on Lake Michigan, even if the Atomic Energy Commission allows it to open this year, an AEC hearing was told Tuesday.

Bert Atwood, a representative of the Department of the Interior, made the comment as hearing began on Consumers Power Company's Palisades plant near South Haven. The company is seeking an operating license from the AEC.

In a statement representing what he said are the views of the secretary of the interior, Atwood contended that the Palisades plant must conform to state and federal water quality standards or its license will terminate April 3, 1973.

However, Atwood conceded that no federal water quality standards have yet been established.

And Atwood said Michigan's present standards governing discharges of heated water into Lake Michigan are not acceptable to the Interior Department.

Atwood contended that the Palisades plant, as it is now designed, "will not be able to comply with state-federal standards when they are approved."

He would not specify what the standards for discharging heated water will be. Present plans call for the Palisades plant to discharge water at from 25 to 28 degrees warmer than that of Lake Michigan.

Eight other witnesses testified on the first day of the hearings. Only one, Donald Hanson, chairman of the Van Buren County Board of Commissioners, urged the hearing board to grant the operating license.

Hanson spoke of the jobs and power supplies the plant would provide, but other speakers warned of what they said were possible dangers from its discharges.

Examination Set For Detroit GI In Murder Case

JACKSON (AP)— Army Pvt. Frank K. Young, 21, of Detroit faced a July 2 preliminary examination today in connection with the beating death of a Wayne County social worker killed on a mercy mission to help a foster mother.

Young, stationed at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., was charged Tuesday with the death of Mrs. Carole Ann Christoff, 24, of Ann Arbor, whose body was found near an abandoned farmhouse west of here Monday. She died in a hospital early Tuesday.

Jackson County police theorized Mrs. Christoff picked up a hitch-hiker in her car en route to her Ann Arbor home from Detroit. Young was arrested in Mrs. Christoff's car near M-99 and I-94 near the Jackson-Calhoun County line. He was being held on an open charge of murder.

Takes PR Post

DETROIT (AP) — John W. Hushen, press secretary to Sen. Robert Griffin, R-Mich., and former Detroit News reporter, was named today as director of public information for the U.S. Department of Justice.

Atty. Gen. John M. Mitchell announced Hushen would replace current information officer, Jack C. Landau, in the $35,500-a-year job.

He said the Indians would move into the lighthouse at 2 p.m. in action similar to the Indian takeover of Alcatraz Island off San Francisco, earlier this year.

Richard Ruppenthal, district ranger for the Hiawatha National Forest, an area including the lighthouse, said he is conferring with his superiors about response to the Indians planned seizure.

Tax Rates Higher For Phone Firms

LANSING (AP) — Michigan telephone companies will be paying more than $4 million more in property taxes this year because of higher state valuation announced by the Board of Assessors.

The board, which fixes the value of certain utilities for property taxing, announced Monday that the final 1970 assessed valuations of the utilities reached an all-time high of more than $1.078 billion, compared with $1.012 billion for 1969.

Total taxes on the 1970 vaulation amount to nearly $51.03 million, compared with a total of $46.6 million for 1969, the board reported.

The board said 1970 assessed property valuation for Michigan's telephone and telegraph companies totaled nearly $865.1 million, up nearly $67 million from last year.

Valuation for express companies totaled $1.05 million this year, compared with $950,000 for 1969.

Valuation was down for railroad companies ($55,000), car loaning companies ($1.3 million) and sleeping car companies ($5,000).

In addition, penalty points for traffic violations could be charged against either license. Thus, truckers could collect up to 24 penalty points over a two-year period, instead of the present maximum of 12 from both personal and on-the-job violations.

The 56-49 House roll call, exactly the minimum required for passage, came Tuesday after rejection of numerous amendments aimed at scuttling or restricting the new latitude proposed for cabbies, deliverymen, cross-country haulers and others in similar jobs.

Opponents moved a reconsideration vote today on the issue. One even called for Milliken to veto the bill. "I'd have no respect for the governor if he didn't veto this legislation," said Rep. Edgar Geerlings, R-Muskegon.

But Milliken's decision on the bill—he could let it become law without signing it—could not be made simply on the issue of party loyalties. The bill's prime sponsors in the Senate are GOP Appropriations Committee Chairman Charles O. Zollar of Benton Harbor and Democratic Minority Leader George S. Fitzgerald.

Opponents charged the bill circumvents the state's traffic safety program and pointed to statements from the federal highway administration's bureau of motor carriers, Michigan State Police and Secretary of State James M. Hare opposing it.

Under a federal decision effective Jan. 1, truckers whose licenses are suspended or revoked would face being barred by the Motor Carriers Bureau from interstate hauling.

The Michigan Traffic Safety Association, a private agency interested in driving and transportation affairs, said in its June 19 bulletin that Michigan Teamsters were attempting "to ram the bill through ... to reduce the risk of a driver receiving the federal penalty."

Some legislators also deplored what they hinted had been a bit of ramming by Majority Democrats, particularly House Speaker William A. Ryan, who sent the bill to the Committee on Roads and Bridges instead of Public Safety.

Rep. James Tierney, D-Garden City, public safety chairman, opposed the bill, and a member of his committee, Rep. Quincy Hoffman, R-Applegate, charged the bill had been reported out when no Republicans were present at the committee's meeting.

Rep. Raymond Smit, R-Ann Arbor, who sponsored most of the defeated amendments to curb the special privilege, said the bill "demonstrates the dismal performance of traffic safety in this state."

Supporters contended, however, that truck drivers, better and more careful because of professional pride and long practice, deserved special consideration.

Rep. Harold Ziegler, one of the few House Republicans to support the bill, said, "to compare the 5,000 miles a year that my 80-year-old mother drives against the 300,000 miles of the average trucker is absurd. They need a double standard and they should have it," he said.

Hormone Use Said Lowering Beef Quality

WASHINGTON (AP) — Widespread use of an artificial hormone in fattening cattle has lowered the quality of beef sold to consumers, according to officials of several meat packing firms.

But government officials, hormone manufacturers and other cattle industry sources dispute the packers' contention.

The hormone—known as DES—is fed to an estimated three-fourths of the 40 million cattle slaughtered annually in the United States.

Because it has caused cancer in laboratory animals, the amount of the hormone added to cattle feed is limited by federal law. The law also states "no residues" of DES are allowed in meat reaching consumers, and that no additives are permitted which harm the animal being fed them.

However, Agriculture Department records show that its inspectors have detected residues of the hormone in about 1 of every 200 cattle checked. Meat with residues is condemned when found, but one government official said "I don't see how you can keep it all out."

Several meat packers said in interviews that the hormone, also known as diethylstilbestrol or stilbestrol, reduces beef quality.

"Meat today is not up to the texture of meat as we've known it over the years," said one Los Angeles packing house executive. "We took it up with government meat inspectors and they said soft and mushy meat had no harmful effects. But you wonder."

Cal Santare of the Western States Meat Packers Association says stilbestrol has a tendency to dissolve the marbling fat in beef. "The meat is very soft and watery," he said.

Elections At-A-Glance

By The Associated Press

New York Primary

Arthur J. Goldberg, 61, former Supreme Court justice, Tuesday defeated upstate plastics millionaire Howard Samuels, 50, for the Democratic nomination to face Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller this fall.

Rep. Richard L. Ottinger was the victor in a four-man senatorial primary to oppose GOP Sen. Charles E. Goodell. State Sen. Basil Paterson of Harlem became the first Negro nominated for lieutenant governor in the state.

Veteran Reps. Adam Clayton Powell and Leonard Farbstein, both of Manhattan, lost bids for renomination.

S.C. Congressional

Rep. John L. McMillan won Democratic renomination, defeating Dr. Claud Stephens, a Negro by a wide margin in a runoff election.

Antiwar Vote

A resolution on the Boulder, Colo., municipal election ballot which urged prompt withdrawal of U.S. forces from Southeast Asia was defeated by 289 votes-4,690 to 4,401.

GM Offers Lunch To Nader's Unit

DETROIT (AP)—The leader of a Ralph Nader team that plans to investigate General Motors Corp. has received an invitation for lunch on Thursday from GM President Edward N. Cole.

John Finch, head of the team, said he received the invitation when he called Cole for an appointment.

Interviews are planned with the directors of other auto companies as well, Finch said.

A second-year law student at the University of Michigan, 26-year-old Finch heads the General Motors Improvement Project (GMIP) a team of 10 "Nader's Raiders" who will inquire into GM's "corporate responsibility" this summer.

Finch said his group wanted to talk to the other auto magnates to determine how GM's policies affect them.

Finch's appointment as head of the team was announced Saturday by Nader himself. Finch said he has already been working on preliminary spadework since mid-March.

Other members of the team include six law students, a business student and an undergraduate in sociology.

2 Filibusters Could Hinder Senate Work

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, already embarked on an unusual two-shift day, faces an even more unusual prospect—the possibility of having two filibuster—like debates going at the same time.

The chance arose Tuesday with the start of debate on a $4.5-billion education appropriations bill that carries three House-passed riders aimed at slowing school desegregation.

Debate began in the early evening after the Senate, under a special agreement to split its time, spent another fruitless day arguing a proposal to curb Indochina spending. Republicans have blocked a vote on that for more than a month.

Within two hours, however, the education debate broke off after Republican Leader Hugh Scott moved to strike a House-imposed rider legalizing the freedom-of-choice approach to school desegregation.

"I served notice there would be no vote tonight," said Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., who was active in losing efforts to retain the same amendments in education bills for the past two years.

Allen, who held the floor for days at a time in those earlier battles, denied any intention to filibuster.

He added, however, that he and other Southern Democrats expected to have quite a bit to say when debate resumed.

Allen and others also are expected to speak at length before allowing votes on efforts to strike the other two riders, outlawing busing of school children.

Market Recovers After Slow Start

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market recovered much of its sharp losses in moderately active trading today.

By noon, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 0.41 at 697.70. Early in the session the Dow average had been off more than 8 points.

Analysts attributed the sharp early slide to investor concern, about the possibility of further corporate liquidity problems in the wake of Penn Central's bankruptcy petition.

They said some selling interest that was on the decline was beginning to move back into the market.

Some analysts said part of the selling was emotional, although a genuine corporate liquidity problem existed.

Penn Central was up ⅝ at 8 by midday, however.

Declines still overwhelmed advances at noon on the New York Stock Exchange, with losing issues leading gainers by more than 4 to 1.

The Big Board ticker tape ran one minute behind shortly before noon.

Tax Rates Higher For Phone Firms

LANSING (AP) — Michigan telephone companies will be paying more than $4 million more in property taxes this year because of higher state valuation announced by the Board of Assessors.

The board, which fixes the value of certain utilities for property taxing, announced Monday that the final 1970 assessed valuations of the utilities reached an all-time high of more than $1.078 billion, compared with $1.012 billion for 1969.

Total taxes on the 1970 vaulation amount to nearly $51.03 million, compared with a total of $46.6 million for 1969, the board reported.

The board said 1970 assessed property valuation for Michigan's telephone and telegraph companies totaled nearly $865.1 million, up nearly $67 million from last year.

Valuation for express companies totaled $1.05 million this year, compared with $950,000 for 1969.

Valuation was down for railroad companies ($55,000), car loaning companies ($1.3 million) and sleeping car companies ($5,000).

Hormone Use Said Lowering Beef Quality

WASHINGTON (AP) — Widespread use of an artificial hormone in fattening cattle has lowered the quality of beef sold to consumers, according to officials of several meat packing firms.

But government officials, hormone manufacturers and other cattle industry sources dispute the packers' contention.

The hormone—known as DES—is fed to an estimated three-fourths of the 40 million cattle slaughtered annually in the United States.

Because it has caused cancer in laboratory animals, the amount of the hormone added to cattle feed is limited by federal law. The law also states "no residues" of DES are allowed in meat reaching consumers, and that no additives are permitted which harm the animal being fed them.

However, Agriculture Department records show that its inspectors have detected residues of the hormone in about 1 of every 200 cattle checked. Meat with residues is condemned when found, but one government official said "I don't see how you can keep it all out."

Several meat packers said in interviews that the hormone, also known as diethyistilbestrol or stilbestrol, reduces beef quality.

"Meat today is not up to the texture of meat as we've known it over the years," said one Los Angeles packing house executive. "We took it up with government meat inspectors and they said soft and mushy meat had no harmful effects. But you wonder."

Cal Santare of the Western States Meat Packers Association says stilbestrol has a tendency to dissolve the marbling fat in beef. "The meat is very soft and watery," he said.

Elections At-A-Glance

By The Associated Press

New York Primary

Arthur J. Goldberg, 61, former Supreme Court justice, Tuesday defeated upstate plastics millionaire Howard Samuels, 50, for the Democratic nomination to face Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller this fall.

Rep. Richard L. Ottinger was the victor in a four-man senatorial primary to oppose GOP Sen. Charles E. Goodell. State Sen. Basil Paterson of Harlem became the first Negro nominated for lieutenant governor in the state.

Veteran Reps. Adam Clayton Powell and Leonard Farbstein, both of Manhattan, lost bids for renomination.

S.C. Congressional

Rep. John L. McMillan won Democratic renomination, defeating Dr. Claud Stephens, a Negro by a wide margin in a runoff election.

Antiwar Vote

A resolution on the Boulder, Colo., municipal election ballot which urged prompt withdrawal of U.S. forces from Southeast Asia was defeated by 289 votes-4,690 to 4,401.

GM Offers Lunch To Nader's Unit

DETROIT (AP)—The leader of a Ralph Nader team that plans to investigate General Motors Corp. has received an invitation for lunch on Thursday from GM President Edward N. Cole.

John Finch, head of the team, said he received the invitation when he called Cole for an appointment.

Interviews are planned with the directors of other auto companies as well, Finch said.

A second-year law student at the University of Michigan, 26-year-old Finch heads the General Motors Improvement Project (GMIP) a team of 10 "Nader's Raiders" who will inquire into GM's "corporate responsibility" this summer.

Finch said his group wanted to talk to the other auto magnates to determine how GM's policies affect them.

Finch's appointment as head of the team was announced Saturday by Nader himself. Finch said he has already been working on preliminary spadework since mid-March.

Other members of the team include six law students, a business student and an undergraduate in sociology.

2 Filibusters Could Hinder Senate Work

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, already embarked on an unusual two-shift day, faces an even more unusual prospect—the possibility of having two filibuster—like debates going at the same time.

The chance arose Tuesday with the start of debate on a $4.5-billion education appropriations bill that carries three House-passed riders aimed at slowing school desegregation.

Debate began in the early evening after the Senate, under a special agreement to split its time, spent another fruitless day arguing a proposal to curb Indochina spending. Republicans have blocked a vote on that for more than a month.

Within two hours, however, the education debate broke off after Republican Leader Hugh Scott moved to strike a House-imposed rider legalizing the freedom-of-choice approach to school desegregation.

"I served notice there would be no vote tonight," said Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., who was active in losing efforts to retain the same amendments in education bills for the past two years.

Allen, who held the floor for days at a time in those earlier battles, denied any intention to filibuster.

He added, however, that he and other Southern Democrats expected to have quite a bit to say when debate resumed.

Allen and others also are expected to speak at length before allowing votes on efforts to strike the other two riders, outlawing busing of school children.

Market Recovers After Slow Start

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market recovered much of its sharp losses in moderately active trading today.

By noon, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 0.41 at 697.70. Early in the session the Dow average had been off more than 8 points.

Analysts attributed the sharp early slide to investor concern, about the possibility of further corporate liquidity problems in the wake of Penn Central's bankruptcy petition.

They said some selling interest that was on the decline was beginning to move back into the market.

Some analysts said part of the selling was emotional, although a genuine corporate liquidity problem existed.

Penn Central was up ⅝ at 8 by midday, however.

Declines still overwhelmed advances at noon on the New York Stock Exchange, with losing issues leading gainers by more than 4 to 1.

The Big Board ticker tape ran one minute behind shortly before noon.

GLADSTONE

Pet Casket Firm Expands In City

A firm which has been operated out of the president's basement is expanding and being relocated.

Hoegh Pet Casket Co., a division of Hoegh Industries, Inc., is moving into a building at 901 Minesota Ave. formerly owned by Mrs. John Wahowiak, whose late husband operated a shoe repair shop.

Denis Hoegh, president of the firm, pointed out that the building is being remodeled to accommodate the manufacture of pet caskets and will include a show room. He said response to national advertising has been good.

Founded in 1959

The caskets are constructed with four styrene shells, two of which are cemented together for the bottom and two for the top. The lid is made to fit in a groove in the bottom. A special adhesive is used to seal the casket. Two sizes are marketed.

The company was founded in 1959 by Roy Gaddis, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, nationally famous for his dog racing teams and his ability to train animals. Upon the death of his lead dog in 1959, Gaddis designed a special pet casket as a memorial to his dog and many of his friends and associates requested that he make one for their pets. Molds were made and the company was founded.

Purchases Business

In 1966 Hoegh, then an employe of the company, purchased the business and it was incorporated in Michigan.

Dennis J. Hoegh

Hoegh operated from the basement of his home at 505 Minneapolis Ave. until purchasing the building on Minnesota Ave. which will provide adequate space.

Lloyd Nyberg, 1123 Michigan Ave., is vice president of the industry. The corporation was formed by a group of businessmen from Escanaba and Gladstone.

The company deals directly with pet cemeteries throughout the world reached through advertisements in leading national and pet magazines.

Hoegh plans to exhibit at the Pet Industry Distributors Association show at the Conrad Hilton Hotel in Chicago July 17.

Stock Prices Off 18 Points

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices plummeted Tuesday as repercussions of the Penn Central bankruptcy petition swept through Wall Street.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks fell 18 points to close at 689.11, a 2.51 per cent loss.

Analysts said investors were showing mounting concern over the financial position of other companies in light of the Penn Central's decision Sunday to file a bankruptcy petition for its railroad subsidiary.

Investor worries over Chrysler, for example, led to a large influx of orders that delayed trading until late in the afternoon, analysts said.

Although the company said it was operating on a profitable basis, it closed off $2.63 at $16.63.

When trading is delayed because of a large influx of orders, it generally means there is an imbalance of buy and sell orders and a price cannot be arrived at on the trading floor.

Penn Central, which did not open until the closing bell, gained $1.12 to $7.60. Analysts said they could not explain the stock's increase.

After the close of trading, the New York Stock Exchange Board of Governors announced the suspension in trading of 21 railroad bonds and six railroad stocks indirectly involved with Penn Central.

Exchange officials said Penn Central Transportation Co., the subsidiary, had notified the exchange it was not certain it could guarantee the interest and principle on some of the bonds. The exchange said the other bonds and stocks were issued by railroads whose incomes are partially derived from track leases to Penn Central.

The exchange said trading in the common stock of Penn Central Co., the parent company, was not suspended. It said Penn Central Transportation Co. bonds would continue to be traded under a special designation.

Pet Casket Firm Expands In City

A firm which has been operated out of the president's basement is expanding and being relocated.

Hoegh Pet Casket Co., a division of Hoegh Industries, Inc., is moving into a building at 901 Minesota Ave. formerly owned by Mrs. John Wahowiak, whose late husband operated a shoe repair shop.

Denis Hoegh, president of the firm, pointed out that the building is being remodeled to accommodate the manufacture of pet caskets and will include a show room. He said response to national advertising has been good.

Dennis J. Hoegh

Founded in 1959

The caskets are constructed with four styrene shells, two of which are cemented together for the bottom and two for the top. The lid is made to fit in a groove in the bottom. A special adhesive is used to seal the casket. Two sizes are marketed.

The company was founded in 1959 by Roy Gaddis, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, nationally famous for his dog racing teams and his ability to train animals. Upon the death of his lead dog in 1959, Gaddis designed a special pet casket as a memorial to his dog and many of his friends and associates requested that he make one for their pets. Molds were made and the company was founded.

Purchases Business

In 1966 Hoegh, then an employe of the company, purchased the business and it was incorporated in Michigan.

Hoegh operated from the basement of his home at 505 Minneapolis Ave. until purchasing the building on Minnesota Ave. which will provide adequate space.

Lloyd Nyberg, 1123 Michigan Ave., is vice president of the industry. The corporation was formed by a group of businessmen from Escanaba and Gladstone.

The company deals directly with pet cemeteries throughout the world reached through advertisements in leading national and pet magazines.

Hoegh plans to exhibit at the Pet Industry Distributors Association show at the Conrad Hilton Hotel in Chicago July 17.

Stock Prices Off 18 Points

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices plummeted Tuesday as repercussions of the Penn Central bankruptcy petition swept through Wall Street.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks fell 18 points to close at 689.11, a 2.51 per cent loss.

Analysts said investors were showing mounting concern over the financial position of other companies in light of the Penn Central's decision Sunday to file a bankruptcy petition for its railroad subsidiary.

Investor worries over Chrysler, for example, led to a large influx of orders that delayed trading until late in the afternoon, analysts said.

Although the company said it was operating on a profitable basis, it closed off $2.63 at $16.63.

When trading is delayed because of a large influx of orders, it generally means there is an imbalance of buy and sell orders and a price cannot be arrived at on the trading floor.

Penn Central, which did not open until the closing bell, gained $1.12 to $7.60. Analysts said they could not explain the stock's increase.

'Yippo' May Mean 'Yippee' For U.P. Timber Producers

A machine by the impossible name of "Yippo" might well cause Upper Peninsula small woods producers to yell "Yippee!" if tests continue to show favorable results.

"Yippo" in Finnish means piece-worker and two Finnish residents of Rock are responsible for the development of this piece of machinery, which is a portable delimber and bucker for pulpwood productions. Upper Great Lakes Timber, Inc., UPCAP and friends have been helpful to Clayton Kanerva and Robert Koski, who claim they did not invent but "devised" Yippo.

Clayton Kanerva

One of the major problems facing Upper Peninsula woods industry is how producers can gear themselves to produce the pulpwood which will be needed as a result of Mead's expansion and expansion plans for other mills in the area.

Robert Koski

Orders Increase

One such operation is K & K (Kanerva and Koski) of Rock. They have been timber producers and with Koski's particular inventive mechanical mind, they opened their own machine shop primarily for the maintenance of their own equipment.

As other operators, in a variety of ways, found a source for their own maintenance needs, K & K found itself with a growing load of maintenance orders. They sought business and came up with orders from such widely divergent places as K. I. Sawyer AFB for ground equipment maintenance and White Pine Copper for personnel cars.

As they found their own timber operations restricted by small contracts and limited stumpage, and harassed by decreasing availability of labor supply (the disappearing piece worker) they turned to their own inventive area to discover what kind of processor they might create. They had worked with Emil Gafner of Escanaba and some of his suggestions have been invaluable to them.

Cost Problem

The big problem of the producer in meeting the higher woods demand is that mechanization is the prime answer. But this means higher capital costs, and many producers cannot meet the financial demands of expensive equipment.

K & K set to work on a low cost unit. They could not come up with one that would demand from $40,000 to $100,000 which is the price range for most of the sophisticated models now on the market.

The results of their efforts was Yippo — a portable unit which can be towed to any location. This machine will handle an entire tree, limbs and all, that have been cut in any stand and skidded to a landing from which Yippo operates.

Full trees are inserted into the processor, with a loader attached to the machine, and the tree is drawn through a set of blades which delimb it, into a saw which cuts it into standard 100-inch lengths and then drops to pieces into a cradle, from which they can be loaded into truck or pulp deck.. With cradles at either side, it is possible to process two species at the same time and sort them while the machine is in operation. The Yippo processor can be handled by one man.

Cuts Man Power

Benefits from such a machine are many. It cuts down the number of men required, when manpower is in short supply. One man can process 15 to 20 cords of pulpwood a day provided, of course, the stand has the capacity to bring that supply to the machine. Thirteen cords a day for such an operation is considered the breakeven point. The entire operation of felling, skidding and machine processing can be done by three men, in contrast to the five to seven required by conventional methods.

The machine will sell for well under $20,000 and would be the only equipment a small producer would need in addition to his own skidder which is basic machinery for any operation.

Machine Mobile

"We have built a very mobile machine, one which can be moved from place to place with a pick-up truck, and easily towed on the highway with a dolly attachment that goes with the unit," said Bob Koski.

Clayton Kanerva, the other partner, pointed out "Like most of us in northern Michigan we have been searching for new answers for the man seeking to make his living in the woods. Timber, Inc., has put it correctly — we need new answers for more production, for more efficiency, better pay and profits. And this involves a master question: How do you do all this in the face of the disappearing woods piece workers.

"While we have a metal fabricating plant, our woods problems have been highly important to us. It was natural, then, we would turn to our resources within the metal shop for some of the answers," he said.

Get Assistance

"With the wonderful assistance of UPCAP we were able to negotiate loans to put our metal shop on a modern basis. With the assistance of Timber, Inc., we have been able to test Yippo on other acreages. Emil Gafner made the valuable suggestion we add the delimber to the original bucker.

"Both Bob and I are aware of the availabilities on the present market. But they were too rich for our blood, and, we knew, far beyond the budgetary abilities of most of the producers in the Upper Peninsula. With such equipment a breakeven point was out of sight. With Koski's inventive turn of mind, we looked to our own shop and successively came up with a skidder, then a combination skidder and bucker and, finally, Yippo was born, combining the capacities of skidding, delimbing and bucking, plus cradling for loading facilitation."

There is more to the K & K story.

The machine has been tested and technical reports are available for the trade. It will be further tested and there is every indication Yippo will meet many of the answers. It is not the complete answer, but for K & K it means no return to the old days and the old methods, and it means an opportunity to stay in the black on all its operations.

Hope For Rock

But a human interest story goes beyond that.

Robert Koski and Clayton Kanerva are products of Rock, a small town. Its main street dwindles into a lane between abandoned farms that were once productive farm units supporting families. Some of these are now retirement houses for people who still like the rural atmosphere, find the quiet tempo of a small community to their liking and the low-budget living compatible with low incomes.

And Rock's youngsters graduate from high school and look elsewhere for employment—and for opportunity. The farms remain abandoned, the small business is slowly fading out.

Kanerva, however, remembers the days when, as a boy, he used to see farms and farm crops instead of deserted homes and land returning to wild grass and second growth.

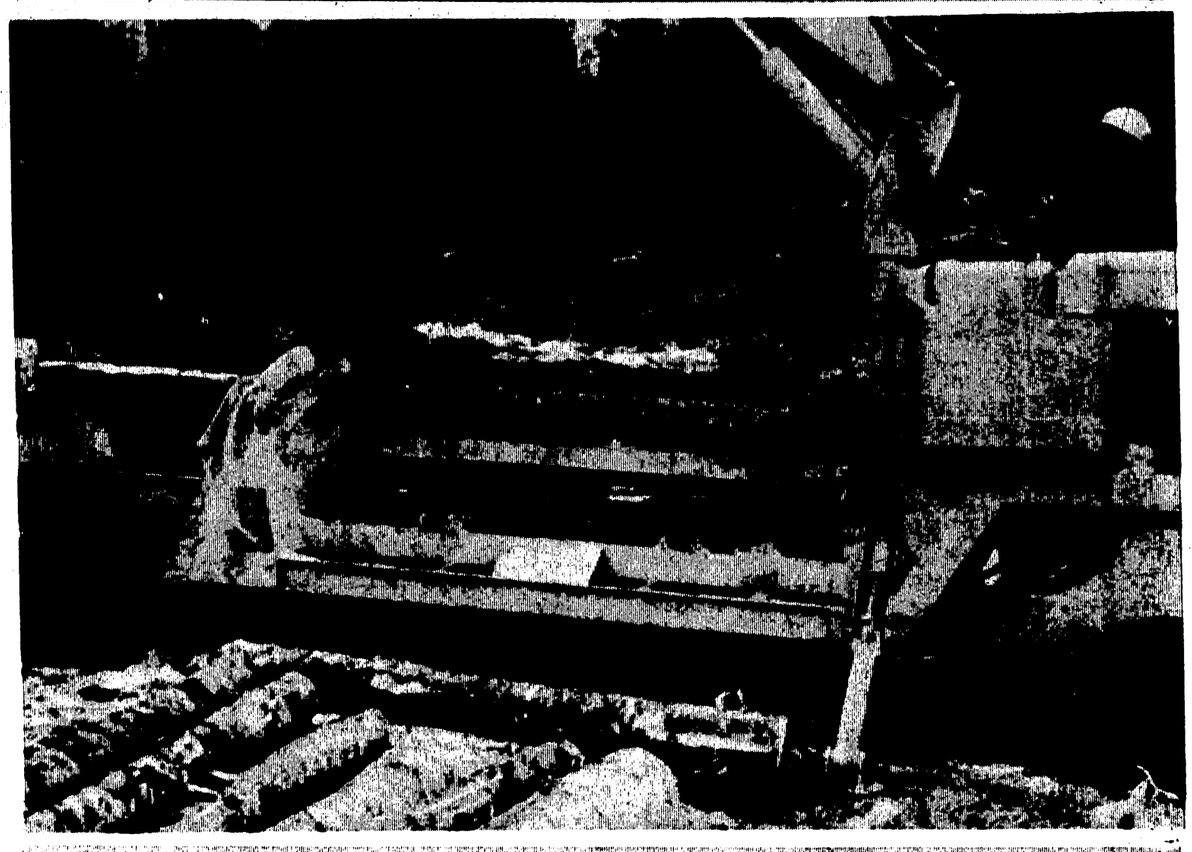

Crossroads of U.P.?

He would like to see it change and he would want to help make the change possible. He wants to see Rock the cross roads of the Peninsula, located as it is almost in the geographic center of the north straits country. He would want to see farms again, a bustling community a place for high school graduates to find that employment and opportunity they now seek elsewhere.

Whether Koski and Kanerva live to see this dream come true is a question. But "Yippo" could mean a location in Rock for an established business. It could mean just a couple more men being hired, a few more families being located and supported. It could mean a great service for the area.

Then maybe, Kanerva, at heart himself a piece-worker, and Bob Koski, who feels deeply the same dreams Kanerva discusses, maybe the two of them might just live to see a mechanical piece worker — the Yippo — help make that dream come true.

THE 'YIPPO' TIMBER HARVESTING MACHINE developed by K&K Manufacturing Co. of Rock has shown great promise in efforts to speed up timber harvesting. Top, an entire tree is carried to the machine. Center, the tree is sawed into standard lengths. Below, the delimbed pulpwood logs are piled.

Bargain-Hunting On Sunday Hectic Affair

By SHIRLEY CHRISTIAN

NEW YORK (AP— We met on the D-train platform of the Columbus Circle subway station.

I was late. I'm always late. I've been late for Jim Garrison and the Queen of England, so it doesn't upset me.

"We were taking the next train whether you were here or not," said Sue, who I suspect was a 6-month baby.

Thus began the quest to find fashion success on a Sunday morning on the Lower East Side.

Narrow, dirty Orchard Street already was jammed when we arrived. We started searching out the promised bargain spots. Everyone else was doing the same.

We fought our way into the first shop and started shoving back the dresses on the packed racks. Mary was ecstatic.

"This is $90 on Fifth Avenue," she said and pointed to a $60 tag on one of those things with the see-through midriff.

Three-piece pants suits hung on racks above us with enticing $7 price tags. Mary tried on the skirt and jacket and stood before a mirror.

"That's an Eisenhower jacket," I said. "My mother used to have one."

Mary, who still has a "Ted in '72" button, couldn't resist the bargain, even for politics.

At the next stop, a man was selling dresses outside for $2.

"They'll cost $5 inside," he yelled as we went through the door.

The outer room was pandemonium, the second room was twice as bad, and to get there we had to squeeze through a hall about three feet wide crowded with racks of clothes and people going both directions.

People were ripping dresses off hangers and yelling for saleswomen. Ten or more people were lined up outside each of the tiny dressing rooms, and impatient men waited around the edges. One desperate woman undressed and began trying on dresses in the midst of it all.

The crowd took away our enthusiasm, and we fought our way to the sidewalk, almost as crowded by now.

We stopped at the entrance to a handbag store. "Too many people inside. You'll have to wait," said a man at the door. "Fire laws, you know."

We waited, and waited, and waited some more. He finally signaled us inside. We took a number —— No. 164, and an uncountable number ahead of us. Another wait.

I edged up to a counter and started to look at the five or six purses lined up on top.

"Those are my wife's bags," snapped a male voice at my elbow.

Next to us, a woman with a Norell scarf over her shoulder was waving two crisp, one hundred dollar bills to get a salesman's attention.

Sue finally bought a handbag. "Eight dollars cheaper than uptown," she bragged.

Tart Cherry Crop Increase Expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — This year's crop of tart cherries in five Great Lakes states is expected to total 147,200 tons, an increase of eight per cent from 1969 and 14 per cent more than 1968 output, says the Agriculture Department.

Production was estimated larger in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Wisconsin but down one per cent in Michigan because of poor weather conditions, the department said.

The five-state area accounts for most of the nation's tart cherry production, estimated nationally this year at 156,850 tons.

Changes Proposed In Ads Concerning Workers' Sex

DETROIT (AP) — The Michigan Civil Rights Commission has taken steps to remove from newspaper want ad sections all classifications by sex.

The commission is warning 400 private employment agencies and all Michigan employers that they will be prosecuted for unlawful discrimination if they continue to advertise job openings in classified columns under the headings "Male", "Female", "Men" or "Women".

The commission is sending the agencies and employers a directive informing them that all advertisements must "be placed in a position or worded in such a manner as to make it apparent that jobs are available without regard to sex."

While ordering newspapers to revise their want ad sections to eliminate the sex classifications, the commission directive reminds employers that law prohibits age and sex discrimination unless "based on law, regulation, the requirement of any federal or state training or employment program or on a bona fide occupational qualification."

The commission said it reserves sole right to determine when a "bona fide occupational qualification" permits an employer to refer to sex in his ad.

Michigan Jobless Number 224,000

DETROIT (AP)— Michigan's percentage of unemployed remained at 6.2 in mid-May, unchanged from a month earlier, with 224,000 reported idle over the state as a whole.

The Detroit area unemployment rate was 5.8 per cent for both months, with 101,600 reported idle in mid-May.

Michigan's unemployment rate is fifth highest in the nation, according to the State Employment Security Commission.

The commission reported unemployment compensation paid out in May totaled $18.2 million, bringing 1970 payments to $104.3 million and lowering available funds for benefits to $600.3 million.

The state's total labor force was reported to have been 3,581,800 in mid-April and to have advanced to 3,600,700 by mid-May, with entrance of college and high school graduates accounting for most of the gain.

Good Street Lighting Essential For Safety

NEW YORK (AP) — Are your community's streets adequately lighted? If they're not, the consequences can be fatal, says the Street and Highway Safety Lighting Bureau.

Less than 10 per cent of America's residential streets are adequately lighted the Bureau reports, adding that the rate of violent crime and of auto accidents is many times higher on dark than on well illuminated streets.

The Bureau offers the following advice in judging a community's street lighting:

1. Check to see that fixtures are at least 20 to 30 feet above the roadway. This assures adequate lighting coverage.

2. Are light poles more than 150 feet apart? In a well-designed system, the interval between lights is 150 feet or less.

3. Make sure that the fixture reflects light directly on the street and that it is open on the bottom.

4. For proper lighting, the light should shine downward in a cone shape, extending up and down the street. It should not be concentrated around the pole.

5. Light poles should be simple and uncluttered. Esthetic considerations aside, signs on poles, although sometimes difficult to avoid, may be lethal if there is an accident.

6. Finally, from a distance, look up and down the street to make sure that the light covers the road and the sidewalk uniformly, and does not just form puddles under each pole. Check to see whether objects or persons can be seen halfway between pole locations.

If your street doesn't measure up to the guidelines, the Bureau suggests that you and your neighbors mount a campaign for improvement. Begin by consulting your city engineer, police chief, Chamber of Commerce and local utility.

Michigan, Ohio Battle Over Lake Line Differences

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Michigan has until Sept. 1 to file briefs in its federal court dispute with Ohio over the water boundary between the two states.

At stake in the prolonged dispute are rights to minerals under 210 square miles of Lake Erie's murky bottom.

Michigan claims its border with Ohio extends into the lake at just a slight angle to the land border as established in the Northwest Ordinance of 1787. Ohio says the border runs into the lake at a 45 degree angle to the land line.

U.S. District Judge Albert Marais, sitting in Toledo, gave Michigan until Sept. 1 to present its case in briefs at a hearing Monday.

DEAD ALEWIFE AND SMELT line the shore of Lake Michigan near Thompson west of Manistique where this photograph was taken by Daily Press correspondent Mrs. Eleanor LaButte of Garden. "The stench and flies are as revolting as this pollution, which is visible for miles," she reports.

Thanks for paying promptly!

When your carrierboy comes to collect, please make sure you're ready. With the right change, if possible. He'll appreciate it with a broad smile and a "Thank you". You see, because he is in business for himself, your newspaperboy depends on the full collection of his route for his full profit. Repeat calls mean extra work with no extra profit. So—give the boy a break. And thanks!

Dave Manders, Kingsford's gift to pro football, will be starting his seventh season in the professional grid ranks and is ready to make a determined bid to regain a starting berth at center for the Dallas Cowboys. The former Flivver and Michigan State standout lost his starting position in 1967 after being injured in an exhibition game against the San Francisco 49ers. Manders, who stands 6-2 and weighs 248 pounds, is ready to make an all out effort to unseat Malcolm Walker from the starting berth.

Possible Cutbacks In Banger Sports

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Possible cutbacks in the University of Wisconsin's intercollegiate athletic program were under discussion Tuesday following criticism of the school's athletic department expenditures.

Athletic Director Elroy Hirsch was unavailable for comment on a report from the State Bureau of Audit which cited deterioration of physical plant and an overabundance of athletic staff positions.

But William H. Aspinwall, department business manager, said Hirsch has been considering the reduction of up to a half dozen sports to a "club" level in an effort to cut costs.

Aspinwall listed the non-income producing sports which might be dropped as gymnastics, fencing, crew, tennis and golf. He said cutbacks were also being considered in track, swimming, wrestling and baseball.

Michigan State pitchers Larry Ike, freshman from Grand Rapids Ottawa Hills, and Phil Fulton from Alma each posted 8-3 won-lost records during the 1970 season.

'Suitcase' George Brunet

Ex-Copper Country Hurler Stops Floundering Tigers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cesar Gutierrez, who set a major league record by hitting seven for seven Sunday failed to collect a hit as the Tigers went down to defeat 6-2 at the hands of the Washington Senators Tuesday night.

The Bengals face the Senators again tonight in the nation's capital.

George Brunet, who is from Allouez in the Copper Country and the only U.P. player in the major leagues, is now Washington's well-traveled starting southpaw. Brunet has turned stopper for Ted Williams' slumping Senators and apparently found a home at the age of 36.

Helps Snap Slump

Brunet, who came to the Senators from Seattle-Milwaukee in a winter deal, has played in 15 minor league cities and with eight major league clubs, helped Washington snap a five-game losing streak Tuesday night, beating Detroit 6-2.

The left-handed evened his record at 5-5, scattering six hits in seven innings before leaving for a pinch runner. He also gave Washington its only other victory in nine games, whipping the Minnesota Twins 3-1, last Monday.

Brunet, a 6-foot-1, 205-pounder who lives in Anaheim, made his pro debut in 1953 at Shelby, N.C., and has since been to such spots as Seminole, Okla., Crowley, La., Vancouver, B.C., and Hawaii.

He finally made it to stay in the majors in 1964 with the then Los Angeles Angels and was voted their all-time left-hander by Angel fans.

Tuesday night, Brunet's supporting cast of Tim Cullen, Paul Casanova and Wayne Comer, provided the punch.

Lolich Beaten

Cullen stroked a solo homer, Casanova, a two-run shot and Comer drilled a two-run double in the Senator's seventh inning that finished Tigers' starter Mickey Lolich. Mike Epstein also unloaded a solo roundtripper for the Senators.

Lolich, Detroit's ace left-hander, hasn't won since May 26 and has only two victories in two months as his record fell to 6-8.

His run-scoring single drove in both runs off Brunet in the fourth.

In tonight's game Detroit's Earl Wilson (4-4) is scheduled to be on the mound opposing the Nats Jim Bosman (6-6).

The Tigers are now nine games behind Al East leading Baltimore with only one week remaining before D-day, the return of suspended pitcher Denny McLain.

McLain is posted to hurl the July 1 Detroit-New York game at Tiger stadium.

Aaron Tests Eyes With Loud Fouls

By HANK AARON
Of Altnta Braves

The most important thing for a young hitter to learn is that he must be aggressive at the plate. Don't be lazy at the plate. Attack the baseball.

I believe that you must go out and get the ball, hit when it's out in front rather than wait until it passes the plate.

When I'm at the plate I watch different things that certain pitcher's do. For instance, take an Abernathy. Ted was with Cincinnati last year and got in a lot of games (78) and now he's with the Cubs.

He is the most unorthodox pitcher in baseball. He throws the ball from way down under, and sometimes fools you by bringing his motion from the direction of third base. He's strictly a relief pitcher and you don't see him too much. But with him I watch his left knee and try to pick the ball up from there. You get a better chance to watch this motion from the on deck circle. It's always good to study a pitcher when you're standing or kneeling in the "on deck" circle.

With some pitchers I try to pick the ball up from their shoulders and with some others I try to pick it up from their waistline. It all depends on how the pitcher is delivering the ball.

I try to hit the ball back through the middle but even then I try to hit the ball hard, whether it's over the plate, inside or outside. Some of the better hitters tell you when you're in a slump to try to hit the ball up the middle. That will help you to keep your head still.

But I like to get in there and hit the ball real hard. I like to hit it foul a couple of times, but real hard, and then I feel like I have my eye on the ball.

Henry Aaron
A .313 Career Hitting

Some hitters get set for the fastball and then adjust to the curve. It all depends on the type of pitcher you are facing. When Sandy Koufax was pitching you had to just hope you could hit anything he threw up there. It's the same way with Bob Gibson. He's fast and he's always moving the ball around. Tom Seaver and Juan Marichal are that way, too.

With some pitcher I look to hit their curve ball and then I find I can hit their fastball. That's only because they are not that overpowering.

When I'm in the batter's box, or even in the on deck circle, I'm always studying the pitcher. Once I put on the uniform I'm steadily concentrating on the pitcher.

Snyder Named Tennis Instructor

The recreation department announced today that Bob Snyder will serve as instructor for the tennis program sponsored by the City of Escanaba this summer.

Snyder was a member of the Escanaba Area High School tennis team for several years and took second place honors in the Great Northern Conference singles competition in 1969 and placed third in the U. P. high school singles tournament. Snyder was runnerup in the Michigan - Wisconsin Tennis Open in the Boys 18 and under division and took third place in the Mens doubles class last year.

He was on the freshman tennis team at the University of Wisconsin, Madison, this past spring and will be a candidate for the varsity team next year.

Registration for tennis lessons will begin at the Catherine Bonifas Civic Center on Thursday, June 25, at 9 o'clock in the morning and continue during the day from Monday to Friday next week.

The program is offered to all boys and girls 9 to 16 years of age who are interested in learning to play tennis. All phases of the game will be approached from the position of the beginner and special emphasis will be given to basic fundamentals. Participants will be taught forehand, backhand, footwork, serving and scoring.

Boys and girls 9 to 12 will be enrolled in the beginners division and youngsters 13 to 16 will be included in the junior class.

Participants are expected to furnish their own rackets and to pay a one dollar ball fee. Classes will be conducted at Royce Park and Ludington Park starting on Monday, June 29, at 9:30 a. m. Headquarters will be at Royce Park and anyone interested is asked to report there next Monday.

Former Wolverine Leads Golf Tourney

CHARLEVOIX (AP) — Former University of Michigan golfer Tom Pendlebury outshot 278 other entrants with a fine 35-34—69 Tuesday to lead at the halfway point of qualifying for the 59th Michigan Amateur Golf Championship.

The bulging field was to be trimmed to the low 63 and ties today with the final 18-hole qualifying round of medal play held at both the Belvedere Golf Club in Charlevoix and Shanty Creek Lodge about 20 miles south. Match play begins Thursday at Belvedere.

Defending champ Pete Green of Franklin, who is exempt from qualifying, fired a 35-35—70 at the 6,453-yard Shanty Creek course, joining five others at 70 Tuesday. Belvedere is 6,611 yards, and both courses are par 72.

Pendlebury, a young schoolteacher from Trenton, "ought to be a pro. He's unbelievable," according to one of his playing partners, Chuck Bond of Flint.

"The way he was playing he could have shot a 64 just as easily as a 60," said Bond, who finished 40-37—77.

"I think he would have given (Tony) Jacklin a good run for his money," he added, referring to Britisher Jacklin's weekend victory in the U.S. Open Championship in Minnesota.

Pendlebury qualified for the U.S. Public Links Championship just prior to his trip to Charlevoix.

Bunched with Green at 70 were Dr. Wayne Kramer of Flint, Gene Hunt of Grand Blanc, Melvin "Bud" Stevens of Livonia, Steve Presser of Huntington Woods and Jack VanEss of Grand Rapids. All but VanEss shot their rounds at Shanty Creek.

Stevens is a three-time winner of the Michigan Amateur. Other former champions competing are Bill Newcomb, U-M golf coach from Ann Arbor, Glenn Johnson of Grosse Isle and Don Stevens of Birmingham.

Newcomb shot a 37-34—71, Johnson 36-35—71, Don Stevens 41-37—78, and Bud Stevens 35-35—70.

Those with 75 or better Tuesday stood the best chance of qualifying, with the cut probably to be made at about 150-151 for 36 holes.

Last year's runnerup, Mike Fedewa of Portland, fired a 36-39—75 at Shanty Creek Tuesday. As a 19-year-old last year, he surprised everyone by reaching the finals only to lose to Green 3 and 1.

Milwaukee Edges Sagging Twins

By The Associated Press

Pinch hitter Gus Gil cracked a two-out, two-run double in the ninth inning to give the Milwaukee Brewers a narrow 4-3 triump over the Minnesota Twins.

In other American League contests, Boston ripped Baltimore 6-1, Kansas City nudged Oakland 7-5, and Chicago drilled California 7-3.

Gil slammed his game-winning hit off reliever Ron Perranoski, who had just entered the game.

"I was looking for a fast ball down the middle. That's where it was," Gil said. And Perranoski agreed.

"I got behind 0-and-2 and had to come in with a fast ball," the left-hander said. "I didn't want to walk him. You need a shock like this so that you won't think the game is as easy as it looks."

Roof Homers

Phil Roof connected for a bases-empty homer for the Brewers while George Mitterwald had a two-run shot for the Twins.

Ray Culp fired a three-hitter and the Red Sox smashed 12 hits, including home runs by Tony Conigliaro and Rico Petrocelli to snap the Orioles' winning streak at five games.

Conigliaro's two-run homer—his 14th of the season—keyed a three-run Boston fifth off loser Jim Palmer, 10-4, making it easy for Culp, 6-7, who struck out eight.

Lou Piniella's bases-loaded fly ball fell for a triple and keyed a four-run Kansas City first inning and Cookie Rojas socked his first homer of the season as the Royals took a 5-1 edge over the A's after two innings.

A's Defeated

Joe Keough's two-run single in the fifth proved the difference while Reggie Jackson, who misjudged Piniella's drive, drilled his 10th circuit of the season for the A's.

Bill Melton slugged a three-run homer and Syd O'Brien added a bases-clearing double, giving rookie right-hander Jerry Janeski his seventh triumph of the season in Chicago's triumph over the Angels.

Babe Ruth Note

Officers and team managers of the Babe Ruth League will meet Thursday night at 7:30 at the Civic Center to make plans for the Tag Day Promotion.

Bill Singer Shakes Off Illness, Blanks Braves 7-0

By The Associated Press

After he beat hepatitis, the Atlanta Braves were hardly a problem for Bill Singer.

Singer, making only his third start after spending 52 days on the disabled list recuperating from hepatitis, pitched hitless ball for 7 2-3 innings Tuesday night as Los Angeles trimmed Atlanta 7-0.

Clete Boyer busted up Singer's no-hit bid with a two-out single in the eighth and the weary Dodger right-hander was immediately lifted. Pete Mikkelsen, from whom Singer contracted the liver disease in spring training, finished up, allowing the Braves' other hit in the ninth.

Devils Attitude

Until Boyer's single, Singer had allowed only one base runner, walking Hank Aaron in the fourth. "I just had a devil may care attitude," said Singer. "I guess that's why I did so well. The hepatitis boy got 'em."

Elsewhere in the National League Monday, New York edged Chicago 12-10 in 10 innings, Montreal nipped Philadelphia 2-1, Pittsburgh rapped St. Louis 7-2, Cincinnati trimmed San Francisco 5-3 and Houston edged San Diego 2-1.

The Mets rallied for the tying runs with two out in the ninth on a single by Ken Boswell and then beat the Cubs in the 10th on Duffy Dyer's two-run homer.

Chicago, which dropped its fourth straight, overcame a seven-run New York fourth with five runs in the fifth. Billy Williams cracked four hits and drove in four runs for the Cubs, who had their National League East lead trimmed to 1½ games over New York.

Claude Raymond bailed Dan McGinn out of a ninth inning jam to preserve Montreal's victory over Philadelphia.

McGinn was working on a six-hit shutout when Rick Joseph and Jim Hutto opened the ninth with singles. Oscar Gamble sacrificed and Raymond came on. He surrendered one run on an infield hit by Ron Stone but then got Danny Doyle and Larry Bowa to end it.

Expos Win

The Expos scored the deciding run in the fifth when McGinn singled and came around on Marv Staehle's double.

Bob Robertson drove in three runs with a triple and two doubles leading Pittsburgh past St. Louis. Bob Moose went all the way, scattering nine hits.

Robertson's two-run triple keyed a five-run Pirate burst in the first inning.

Cincinnati used home runs by Tony Perez, Hal McRae and Lee May to whip San Francisco. Willie McCovey had a two-run shot for the Giants.

The victory kept the Reds a fat nine games ahead of LA in the National League West.

Jack Billingham stopped San Diego on eight hits, pitching Houston past the Padres.

Jimmy Wynn doubled and scored the first run of the game in the seventh and then doubled again to drive in the Astros' winning tally in the eighth.

Possible Cutbacks In Banger Sports

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Possible cutbacks in the University of Wisconsin's intercollegiate athletic program were under discussion Tuesday following criticism of the school's athletic department expenditures.

Athletic Director Elroy Hirsch was unavailable for comment on a report from the State Bureau of Audit which cited deterioration of physical plant and an overabundance of athletic staff positions.

But William H. Aspinwall, department business manager, said Hirsch has been considering the reduction of up to a half dozen sports to a "club" level in an effort to cut costs.

Aspinwall listed the non-income producing sports which might be dropped as gymnastics, fencing, crew, tennis and golf. He said cutbacks were also being considered in track, swimming, wrestling and baseball.

'Suitcase' George Brunet

Ex-Copper Country Hurler Stops Floundering Tigers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cesar Gutierrez, who set a major league record by hitting seven for seven Sunday failed to collect a hit as the Tigers went down to defeat 6-2 at the hands of the Washington Senators Tuesday night.

The Bengals face the Senators again tonight in the nation's capital.

George Brunet, who is from Allouez in the Copper Country and the only U.P. player in the major leagues, is now Washington's well-traveled starting southpaw. Brunet has turned stopper for Ted Williams' slumping Senators and apparently found a home at the age of 36.

Helps Snap Slump

Brunet, who came to the Senators from Seattle-Milwaukee in a winter deal, has played in 15 minor league cities and with eight major league clubs, helped Washington snap a five-game losing streak Tuesday night, beating Detroit 6-2.

The left-handed evened his record at 5-5, scattering six hits in seven innings before leaving for a pinch runner. He also gave Washington its only other victory in nine games, whipping the Minnesota Twins 3-1, last Monday.

Brunet, a 6-foot-1, 205-pounder who lives in Anaheim, made his pro debut in 1953 at Shelby, N.C., and has since been to such spots as Seminole, Okla., Crowley, La., Vancouver, B.C., and Hawaii.

He finally made it to stay in the majors in 1964 with the then Los Angeles Angels and was voted their all-time left-hander by Angel fans.

Tuesday night, Brunet's supporting cast of Tim Cullen, Paul Casanova and Wayne Comer, provided the punch.

Lolich Beaten

Cullen stroked a solo homer, Casanova, a two-run shot and Comer drilled a two-run double in the Senator's seventh inning that finished Tigers' starter Mickey Lolich. Mike Epstein also unloaded a solo roundtripper for the Senators.

Lolich, Detroit's ace left-hander, hasn't won since May 28 and has only two victories in two months as his record fell to 6-8.

His run-scoring single drove in both runs off Brunet in the fourth.

In tonight's game Detroit's Earl Wilson (4-4) is scheduled to be on the mound opposing the Nats Jim Bosman (6-6).

The Tigers are now nine games behind Al East leading Baltimore with only one week remaining before D-day, the return of suspended pitcher Denny McLain.

McLain is posted to hurl the July 1 Detroit-New York game at Tiger stadium.

Snyder Named Tennis Instructor

The recreation department announced today that Bob Snyder will serve as instructor for the tennis program sponsored by the City of Escanaba this summer.

Snyder was a member of the Escanaba Area High School tennis team for several years and took second place honors in the Great Northern Conference singles competition in 1969 and placed third in the U. P. high school singles tournament. Snyder was runnerup in the Michigan - Wisconsin Tennis Open in the Boys 18 and under division and took third place in the Mens doubles class last year.

He was on the freshman tennis team at the University of Wisconsin, Madison, this past spring and will be a candidate for the varsity team next year.

Registration for tennis lessons will begin at the Catherine Bonifas Civic Center on Thursday, June 25, at 9 o'clock in the morning and continue during the day from Monday to Friday next week.

The program is offered to all boys and girls 9 to 16 years of age who are interested in learning to play tennis. All phases of the game will be approached from the position of the beginner and special emphasis will be given to basic fundamentals. Participants will be taught forehand, backhand, footwork, serving and scoring.

Boys and girls 9 to 12 will be enrolled in the beginners division and youngsters 13 to 16 will be included in the junior class.

Participants are expected to furnish their own rackets and to pay a one dollar ball fee. Classes will be conducted at Royce Park and Ludington Park starting on Monday, June 29, at 9:30 a. m. Headquarters will be at Royce Park and anyone interested is asked to report there next Monday.

Aaron Tests Eyes With Loud Fouls

By HANK AARON
Of Altnta Braves

The most important thing for a young hitter to learn is that he must be aggressive at the plate. Don't be lazy at the plate. Attack the baseball.

I believe that you must go out and get the ball, hit when it's out in front rather than wait until it passes the plate.

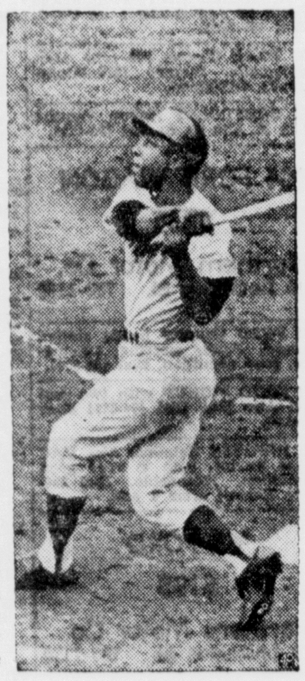

When I'm at the plate I watch different things that certain pitcher's do. For instance, take an Abernathy. Ted was with Cincinnati last year and got in a lot of games (78) and now he's with the Cubs.

He is the most unorthodox pitcher in baseball. He throws the ball from way down under, and sometimes fools you by bringing his motion from the direction of third base. He's strictly a relief pitcher and you don't see him too much. But with him I watch his left knee and try to pick the ball up from there. You get a better chance to watch this motion from the on deck circle. It's always good to study a pitcher when you're standing or kneeling in the "on deck" circle.

With some pitchers I try to pick the ball up from their shoulders and with some others I try to pick it up from their waistline. It all depends on how the pitcher is delivering the ball.

I try to hit the ball back through the middle but even then I try to hit the ball hard, whether it's over the plate, inside or outside. Some of the better hitters tell you when you're in a slump to try to hit the ball up the middle. That will help you to keep your head still.

But I like to get in there and hit the ball real hard. I like to hit it foul a couple of times, but real hard, and then I feel like I have my eye on the ball.

Henry Aaron
A .313 Career Hitting

Some hitters get set for the fastball and then adjust to the curve. It all depends on the type of pitcher you are facing. When Sandy Koufax was pitching you had to just hope you could hit anything he threw up there. It's the same way with Bob Gibson. He's fast and he's always moving the ball around. Tom Seaver and Juan Marichal are that way, too.

With some pitcher I look to hit their curve ball and then I find I can hit their fastball. That's only because they are not that overpowering.

When I'm in the batter's box, or even in the on deck circle, I'm always studying the pitcher. Once I put on the uniform I'm steadily concentrating on the pitcher.

Former Wolverine Leads Golf Tourney

CHARLEVOIX (AP) — Former University of Michigan golfer Tom Pendlebury outshot 278 other entrants with a fine 35-34—69 Tuesday to lead at the halfway point of qualifying for the 59th Michigan Amateur Golf Championship.

The bulging field was to be trimmed to the low 63 and ties today with the final 18-hole qualifying round of medal play held at both the Belvedere Golf Club in Charlevoix and Shanty Creek Lodge about 20 miles south. Match play begins Thursday at Belvedere.

Defending champ Pete Green of Franklin, who is exempt from qualifying, fired a 35-35—70 at the 6,453-yard Shanty Creek course, joining five others at 70 Tuesday. Belvedere is 6,611 yards, and both courses are par 72.

Pendlebury, a young schoolteacher from Trenton, "ought to be a pro. He's unbelievable," according to one of his playing partners, Chuck Bond of Flint.

"The way he was playing he could have shot a 64 just as easily as a 60," said Bond, who finished 40-37—77.

"I think he would have given (Tony) Jacklin a good run for his money," he added, referring to Britisher Jacklin's weekend victory in the U.S. Open Championship in Minnesota.

Pendlebury qualified for the U.S. Public Links Championship just prior to his trip to Charlevoix.

Bunched with Green at 70 were Dr. Wayne Kramer of Flint, Gene Hunt of Grand Blanc, Melvin "Bud" Stevens of Livonia, Steve Presser of Huntington Woods and Jack VanEss of Grand Rapids. All but VanEss shot their rounds at Shanty Creek.

Stevens is a three-time winner of the Michigan Amateur. Other former champions competing are Bill Newcomb, U-M golf coach from Ann Arbor, Glenn Johnson of Grosse Isle and Don Stevens of Birmingham.

Newcomb shot a 37-34—71, Johnson 36-35—71, Don Stevens 41-37—78, and Bud Stevens 35-35—70.

Those with 75 or better Tuesday stood the best chance of qualifying, with the cut probably to be made at about 150-151 for 36 holes.

Last year's runnerup, Mike Fedewa of Portland, fired a 36-39—75 at Shanty Creek Tuesday. As a 19-year-old last year, he surprised everyone by reaching the finals only to lose to Green 2 and 1.

Milwaukee Edges Sagging Twins

By The Associated Press

Pinch hitter Gus Gil cracked a two-out, two-run double in the ninth inning to give the Milwaukee Brewers a narrow 4-3 triump over the Minnesota Twins.

In other American League contests, Boston ripped Baltimore 6-1, Kansas City nudged Oakland 7-5, and Chicago drilled California 7-3.

Gil slammed his game-winning hit off reliever Ron Perranoski, who had just entered the game.

"I was looking for a fast ball down the middle. That's where it was," Gil said. And Perranoski agreed.

"I got behind 0-and-2 and had to come in with a fast ball," the left-hander said. "I didn't want to walk him. You need a shock like this so that you won't think the game is as easy as it looks."

Roof Homers

Phil Roof connected for a bases-empty homer for the Brewers while George Mitterwald had a two-run shot for the Twins.

Ray Culp fired a three-hitter and the Red Sox smashed 12 hits, including home runs by Tony Conigliaro and Rico Petrocelli to snap the Orioles' winning streak at five games.

Conigliaro's two-run homer—his 14th of the season—keyed a three-run Boston fifth off loser Jim Palmer, 10-4, making it easy for Culp, 6-7, who struck out eight.

Lou Piniella's bases-loaded fly ball fell for a triple and keyed a four-run Kansas City first inning and Cookie Rojas socked his first homer of the season as the Royals took a 5-1 edge over the A's after two innings.

A's Defeated

Joe Keough's two-run single in the fifth proved the difference while Reggie Jackson, who misjudged Piniella's drive, drilled his 10th circuit of the season for the A's.

Bill Melton slugged a three-run homer and Syd O'Brien added a bases-clearing double, giving rookie right-hander Jerry Janeski his seventh triumph of the season in Chicago's triumph over the Angels.

Babe Ruth Note

Officers and team managers of the Babe Ruth League will meet Thursday night at 7:30 at the Civic Center to make plans for the Tag Day Promotion.

Bill Singer Shakes Off Illness, Blanks Braves 7-0

By The Associated Press

After he beat hepatitis, the Atlanta Braves were hardly a problem for Bill Singer.

Singer, making only his third start after spending 52 days on the disabled list recuperating from hepatitis, pitched hitless ball for 7 2-3 innings Tuesday night as Los Angeles trimmed Atlanta 7-0.

Clete Boyer busted up Singer's no-hit bid with a two-out single in the eighth and the weary Dodger right-hander was immediately lifted. Pete Mikkelsen, from whom Singer contracted the liver disease in spring training, finished up, allowing the Braves' other hit in the ninth.

Devils Attitude

Until Boyer's single, Singer had allowed only one base runner, walking Hank Aaron in the fourth. "I just had a devil may care attitude," said Singer. "I guess that's why I did so well. The hepatitis boy got 'em."

Elsewhere in the National League Monday, New York edged Chicago 12-10 in 10 innings, Montreal nipped Philadelphia 2-1, Pittsburgh rapped St. Louis 7-2, Cincinnati trimmed San Francisco 5-3 and Houston edged San Diego 2-1.

The Mets rallied for the tying runs with two out in the ninth on a single by Ken Boswell and then beat the Cubs in the 10th on Duffy Dyer's two-run homer.

Chicago, which dropped its fourth straight, overcame a seven-run New York fourth with five runs in the fifth. Billy Williams cracked four hits and drove in four runs for the Cubs, who had their National League East lead trimmed to 1½ games over New York.

Claude Raymond bailed Dan McGinn out of a ninth inning jam to preserve Montreal's victory over Philadelphia.

McGinn was working on a six-hit shutout when Rick Joseph and Jim Hutto opened the ninth with singles. Oscar Gamble sacrificed and Raymond came on. He surrendered one run on an infield hit by Ron Stone but then got Danny Doyle and Larry Bowa to end it.

Expos Win

The Expos scored the deciding run in the fifth when McGinn singled and came around on Marv Staehle's double.

Bob Robertson drove in three runs with a triple and two doubles leading Pittsburgh past St. Louis. Bob Moose went all the way, scattering nine hits.

Robertson's two-run triple keyed a five-run Pirate burst in the first inning.

Cincinnati used home runs by Tony Perez, Hal McRae and Lee May to whip San Francisco. Willie McCovey had a two-run shot for the Giants.

The victory kept the Reds a fat nine games ahead of LA in the National League West.

Jack Billingham stopped San Diego on eight hits, pitching Houston past the Padres.

Jimmy Wynn doubled and scored the first run of the game in the seventh and then doubled again to drive in the Astros' winning tally in the eighth.

Street Improvement Bonding Council Aim

The City Council, at its regular meeting Monday night, took the first steps toward bonding Manistique for a $148,000 five-year street improvement program.

The state will finance up to $90,000 with bonds to be paid off from motor vehicle fund revenues. An additional $58,000 in special assessment tax revenues will be collected from home owners and used for the curb and gutter work portion of the program.

A public hearing is scheduled for July 13, to cover special assessment districts.

Resolution of intent to adopt a bond authorization was approved. Notice of intent will be filed with the state.

Bonds Must Be approved

Approval of the bonding must be obtained from the Municipal Finance Commission, The bonds must then be advertised, sold and printed. These procedures will take at least 60 days.

In other business, residents from Bear Street requested action to close or improve the street due to the present dust conditions. Discussion was tabled until further investigation.

Richard Bonifas and Katherine LeBrausser represented the City Recreation Commission seeking clarification of wording in a five-year lease being offered to Thor and Florence Reque for their A&W drive-in. They were informed of a six-month cancellation clause, that it runs for five years, retroactive to July 1, 1969, is renewable and cannot be assigned. Bonifas explained that the drive-in is in the area of proposed recreation development and land may be needed when monies are available.

Council passed the resolutions approving the lease of property to the Reques.

Meeting Reviewed

Councilman Leo DeMars reviewed a recent meeting of the Board of Supervisors. The salary of County Dog Warden and the possibility of purchasing a snorkel for the fire truck was discussed. County representatives will be requested to appear at the next council session to discuss the issue of salary for warden.

Councilman Thor Reque reported on a Michigan Municipal League meeting which he attended recently in Marquette. Compulsory arbitration of municipal employees, district courts and U.S. 2 improvement were the topics of discussion.

Items on the agenda included the approval of application for fireworks permit for the 4th of July Committee.

A request of Miss Jessie Trudeau for abandonment of an alley at the rear of 623 Deer St. was referred to city attorneys for further investigation.

Licenses Transfers OK'd

The council, with exception of Leo DeMars, approved the demolition of a building on the corner of N. 5th and Caribou Street pending 30-day notice to owner, Delores Conner of Detroit.

Requests for transfer of liquor licenses were approved. The sale of Coluzzi's Bar, 325 Deer St. from James Coluzzi to Jack O. Reich, and sale of the Hub Bar, 204 S. Cedar from James MacKenzie to Mary Sue Holland.

A special meeting was set for Thursday evening to discuss the street improvement program and affairs of the city before the departure of City Manager Robert Noe on Friday.

World Traveler Makes City Stop

J. J. Thomas, the man who hopes to be the first man to ride around the world on horseback, arrived in Manistique on Monday afternoon.

While in Manistique he spoke with CBC, Toronto, in a phone interview for the program "As It Happens" to which he reports each Monday evening.

Thomas had dinner at the Tom Shampine residence, 620 Park Ave., where Shampine, one of the few remaining blacksmiths, put shoes on his horse "Doc."

From here he plans to travel to the Mackinac Bridge and through the Lower Peninsula where he will re-enter Canada.

Thomas, who "lives off the land," attributes the success of his travels to this philosophy, "Positive thinking surmounts all problems."

Highland Park Agrees To Buy DSR Terminal

HIGHLAND PARK (AP) — The city of Highland Park has agreed tentatively to purchase the Detroit Department of Street Railways terminal here for $1,760,000.

The action would clear the way for construction of a new DSR terminal on Detroit's East Side, city officials said.

This Detroit suburb had originally offered $1.6 million for the terminal but William Dietrich, DSR attorney, told Detroit city councilmen Monday that Highland Park officials have agreed to meet the city's asking price.

While governmental red tape has blocked progress on the new terminal for five years, the estimated cost of the project has jumped from $14.3 million to $20.3 million, city officials said.

Councilmen indicated they would approve the project despite the increased cost.

Street Improvement Bonding Council Aim

The City Council, at its regular meeting Monday night, took the first steps toward bonding Manistique for a $148,000 five-year street improvement program.

The state will finance up to $90,000 with bonds to be paid off from motor vehicle fund revenues. An additional $58,000 in special assessment tax revenues will be collected from home owners and used for the curb and gutter work portion of the program.

A public hearing is scheduled for July 13, to cover special assessment districts.

Resolution of intent to adopt a bond authorization was approved. Notice of intent will be filed with the state.

Bonds Must Be approved

Approval of the bonding must be obtained from the Municipal Finance Commission, The bonds must then be advertised, sold and printed. These procedures will take at least 60 days.

In other business, residents from Bear Street requested action to close or improve the street due to the present dust conditions. Discussion was tabled until further investigation.

Richard Bonifas and Katherine LeBrausser represented the City Recreation Commission seeking clarification of wording in a five-year lease being offered to Thor and Florence Reque for their A&W drive-in. They were informed of a six-month cancellation clause, that it runs for five years, retroactive to July 1, 1969, is renewable and cannot be assigned. Bonifas explained that the drive-in is in the area of proposed recreation development and land may be needed when monies are available.

Council passed the resolutions approving the lease of property to the Reques.

Meeting Reviewed

Councilman Leo DeMars reviewed a recent meeting of the Board of Supervisors. The salary of County Dog Warden and the possibility of purchasing a snorkel for the fire truck was discussed. County representatives will be requested to appear at the next council session to discuss the issue of salary for warden.

Councilman Thor Reque reported on a Michigan Municipal League meeting which he attended recently in Marquette. Compulsory arbitration of muncipal employees, district courts and U.S. 2 improvement were the topics of discussion.

Items on the agenda included the approval of application for fireworks permit for the 4th of July Committee.

A request of Miss Jessie Trudeau for abandonment of an alley at the rear of 623 Deer St. was referred to city attorneys for further investigation.

Licenses Transfers OK'd

The council, with exception of Leo DeMars, approved the demolition of a building on the corner of N. 5th and Caribou Street pending 30-day notice to owner, Delores Conner of Detroit.

Requests for transfer of liquor licenses were approved. The sale of Coluzzi's Bar, 325 Deer St. from James Coluzzi to Jack O. Reich, and sale of the Hub Bar, 204 S. Cedar from James MacKenzie to Mary Sue Holland.

A special meeting was set for Thursday evening to discuss the street improvement program and affairs of the city before the departure of City Manager Robert Noe on Friday.

World Traveler Makes City Stop

J. J. Thomas, the man who hopes to be the first man to ride around the world on horseback, arrived in Manistique on Monday afternoon.

While in Manistique he spoke with CBC, Toronto, in a phone interview for the program "As It Happens" to which he reports each Monday evening.

Thomas had dinner at the Tom Shampine residence, 620 Park Ave., where Shampine, one of the few remaining blacksmiths, put shoes on his horse "Doc."

From here he plans to travel to the Mackinac Bridge and through the Lower Peninsula where he will re-enter Canada.

Thomas, who "lives off the land," attributes the success of his travels to this philosophy, "Positive thinking surmounts all problems."

Highland Park Agrees To Buy DSR Terminal

HIGHLAND PARK (AP) — The city of Highland Park has agreed tentatively to purchase the Detroit Department of Street Railways terminal here for $1,760,000.

The action would clear the way for construction of a new DSR terminal on Detroit's East Side, city officials said.

This Detroit suburb had originally offered $1.6 million for the terminal but William Dietrich, DSR attorney, told Detroit city councilmen Monday that Highland Park officials have agreed to meet the city's asking price.

While governmental red tape has blocked progress on the new terminal for five years, the estimated cost of the project has jumped from $14.3 million to $20.3 million, city officials said.

Councilmen indicated they would approve the project despite the increased cost.

AMA Promises Fight Over 'Pill' Labeling

CHICAGO (AP) — The American Medical Association has promised a broad legal and legislative battle against a plan by the Food and Drug Administration to include a health warning in packages of contraceptive pills.

But FDA Commissioner Charles C. Edwards defended the use of a lay language warning about oral contraceptives as a "communications insurance policy" in the best interests of the patient.

The AMA's House of Delegates, meeting Tuesday at the organization's 119th annual convention, approved a resolution attacking the FDA plan as "a dangerous departure from present practice."

Dr. Edwards announced on June 10 that the health warning should be included with packages of the pill within 90 days.

The warning would point out possible dangerous side effects, such as an increased risk of blood clotting.

The AMA resolution asserted the proposal "intrudes on the patient-physician relationship" and would "interfere with the physician's decision to prescribe drugs by exerting undue influence."

Edwards, speaking to the Midwest Pharmaceutical Advertising Club, told the drug industry it would be "enlightened self interest" to supply more useful information about drugs in its medical communications to doctors.

"I think," the FDA chief said, "we tend to lose track of the fact that you are not selling new cars or TV sets, but rather you are selling products to professionals whose only reasons for being is the health and well-being of the people."

As for the required warning on contraceptive pills, he said:

"Our action was intended to supplement rather than intrude upon the normal doctor-patient relationship, and indeed in our judgment need not intrude. The physician has the same opportunity he has always had—to communicate with the patient at the time the prescription is written.

"The provision for the lay language insert is, rather, a kind of single 'communications insurance policy' in the patients' interest. The eseential consideration in this case—for a physician, for a manufacturer, and for FDA—had to be the protection of the patients' interest."

Alaskan Charged In Death Of Man From Michigan

KODIAK, Alaska (AP) — Kodiak Police Chief Jack Ryan said Tuesday a grand jury has indicted a Kodiak bar operator on two charges stemming from the shooting death of a Michigan man June 3.

Ryan said Don North, operator of the B&B Bar was indicted on charges of second - degree murder and assault with a deadly weapon.

Ryan said a superior court judge in Anchorage had set bond at $10,000. However, he said North had not yet been taken into custody Tuesday afternoon.

Shot to death outside the B&B Bar was Leonard B. Gallup, 23, of Howell, Mich. Ryan said the shooting followed an argument.

Remade Trainer Fails In Maiden Flight; Two Killed

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Two men were killed late Tuesday when the old Air Force trainer plane they had just finished reconditioning crashed on its maiden flight near Ann Arbor.

Killed in the crash were Bruce W. Barnett, 46, of Wayne, and Herman Rowe Jr. of Ann Arbor.

Sheriff's deputies said witnesses told them the plane took off and reached an altitude of about 200 feet when the motor apparently died and the plane spun into the ground.

The plane, an old AT-6 trainer, was purchased by the men as surplus from the Air Force.

The crash occurred at Young Filed, a small airport about two miles west of Ann Arbor.

The plane was equipped with dual controls and it was not learned immediately which man had been flying the aircraft.

Ann Arbor Pair Claiming World Motorcycle Mark

LONDON (AP)—John Farrell and his wife, Kipp, of Ann Arbor, Mich., arrived here Tuesday and claimed a world record by motorcycling through 26 countries on four continents.

Both 27, they said they spent two years and 26,000 miles on their motorcycle but they still want to move on.

"The most pressing thing on our minds right now," Farrell said during a brief visit to the American Embassy, "is to get to Afghanistan before the snows start in August. We've got a full year of our three-year trip left and it could be pretty unpleasant if we end up cycling through the snow."

What made these two graduates of the University of Michigan take to the open road?

"I was in law school and Kipp had just gotten her degree in business administration," Farrell said. "We'd been married three years but we were young and felt a strong desire to go out and test ourselves in some situation a little more challenging than writing a contract or analyzing a stock."

Foreign visitors to Britain in 1969 numbered 3.8 million, the Board of Trade reports.

Nixon Pushes Strong Arms Accord Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amid optimism over the SALT talks, President Nixon today called in his chief disarmament negotiator to hammer out a specific U.S. bid for an arms accord with the Soviet Union.

Both defensive antiballistic missiles and long-range offensive missiles seem likely to be included in the proposal which U.S. disarmament chief Gerald C. Smith will put forth on his return to the SALT—Strategic Arms Limitation Talks—at Vienna.

Some predict a limited agreement in principle may be reached by the two superpowers before the summer recess. It would take months, however, before any agreement could be formulated into a treaty.

Smith and two top aides at the Vienna talks flew into Washington Monday at an important point in the negotiations that began in Helsinki last fall and resumed in the Austrian capital two months ago.

The U.S. and Soviet envoys have been secretly exchanging views and concepts on how to clamp a lid on the spiraling big power nuclear arms race. The Americans believe the two sides should now get down to more specific propositions.

The latest official optimism about the Vienna proceedings came Tuesday from Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird. "The Strategic Arms Limitation Talks have, we think, moved along very well," the secretary told a London news conference.

One reason for the administration's hopeful tone has been what U.S. diplomats consider to be the Russians' business-like attitude in the closed negotiations.

The Kremlin has kept to its bargain of secrecy. Its negotiators have displayed sophisticated knowledge about modern strategic weapons. And, with a Communist congress due in Moscow this fall, some here believe the Russians will want to show something at home for their Vienna efforts.

Arthur Goldberg

Goldberg Wins In New York; Powell Beaten

NEW YORK (AP) — In a primary full of upsets and firsts, Democrats nominated former Supreme Court Justice Arthur J. Goldberg on Tuesday to oppose three-term Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Two veteran Democratic congressmen—Adam Clayton Powell and Leonard Farbstein—were defeated.

For the first time, the Democrats nominated a Negro, State Sen. Basil Paterson of Harlem, for lieutenant governor. Herman Badillo of the Bronx won a chance to become the state's first Puerto Rico-born congressman.

In his first bid for elective office, Goldberg, 61, defeated upstate millionaire Howard Samuels, 50. The state's first gubernatorial primary in nearly 50 years drew only 27 per cent of the Democrats despite perfect weather. The GOP had no statewide contests.

Another millionaire, Rep. Richard Ottinger of suburban Westchester County, won a four-man race to oppose GOP Sen. Charles E. Goodell, appointed by Rockefeller to complete the term of the late Robert F. Kennedy. Ottinger's massive spending for television advertising was the main issue.

Running against Ottinger were Paul O'Dwyer, Theodore Sorensen and Rep. Richard Max McCarthy.

Mideast Cease Fire Aim Of Government

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration is sounding out Israel and key Arab governments on a proposal designed to produce a Middle East cease-fire and revive U.N. efforts to negotiate a settlement.

The proposal has been discussed, according to available information, with Israel, Egypt, and Jordan. Other countries reportedly have been informed as well and Secretary of State William P. Rogers is due to discuss the proposal publicly this week.

Withdrawal Eyed

The U.S. initiative, it is understood, basically calls for Israeli withdrawal from most of the territory captured in the 1967 war in return for Arab commitments to accept Israel's existence and respect its borders. It comes as the Nixon administration is reported ready to sell new warplanes to Israel to offset increased military support to Egypt.

Israel asked for the planes last September and has pressed particularly hard for a decision since Soviet combat pilots began flying defensive patrols inside Egypt more than two months ago.

Israel May Get Jets

The Nixon administration, faced with warnings that a new sale of jets to Israel would further alienate the Arabs, has decided to make the vaguest possible announcement of its readiness to sell the Israelis at least part of what they want.

The emphasis, therefore, will be on the peace initiative, informants indicated, although U.S. officials are not optimistic about the outcome.

Rogers and President Nixon are known to have hoped the use of Soviet pilots in Egypt would create new interest in a peaceful settlement of the long Mideast conflict—instead of touching off a new and greater crisis.

Hence, in the administration's view the new approach to the Israelis and key Arab governments—and the parallel continuation of talks with Moscow on peace issues—is designed as considerably more than a diplomatic cover for the planes sale. It is, officials insist, a serious attempt to see whether the barriers to peace on both sides may be reduced.

Plan Almost Identical

Although the U.S. proposal covers much the same ground as a previous plan which fell through last year, administration advisers were reported somewhat encouraged Tuesday by what Israel Defense Minister Moshe Dayan, told a luncheon meeting with journalists.

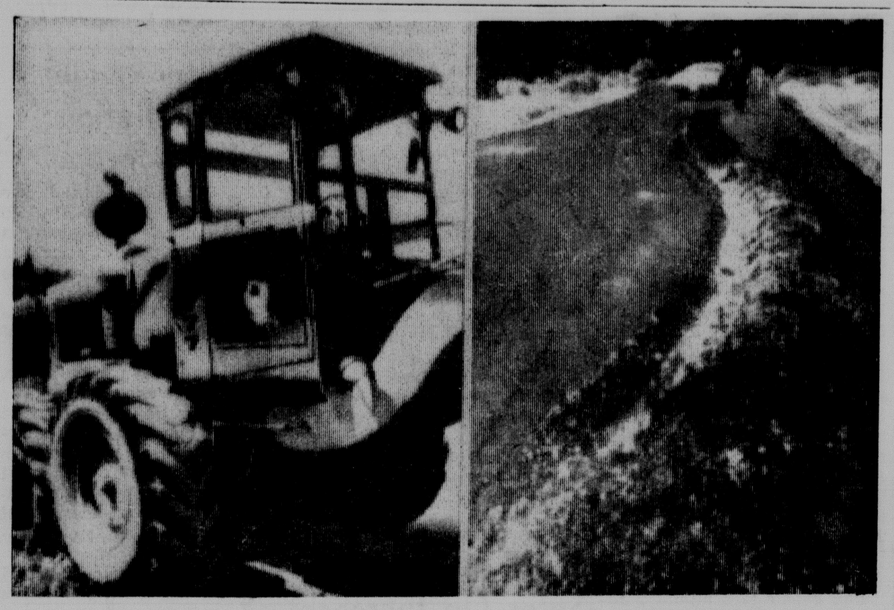

Normally a hardliner, he said Israel should be able to give up some of the territory, chiefly Egyptian, won in the 1967 six-day war in return for peace with the Arabs.

Response To Dayan?

This appeared to be a public response by Dayan to U.S. pressure for concessions on the territorial issue and it was taken in Washington as indicating a positive attitude toward negotiations.

According to diplomatic informants Soviet authorities have told American officials that both of the big powers should press Middle Eastern governments to get into serious peace negotiations under the auspices of the U.N. without further their delay.

The Russians are said to have argued this may be the best possible time for action.

U.S. Continues Air Raids Deep In Cambodia

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — The Cambodian military command disclosed today that American jet fighter-bombers, in an apparent major shift in U.S. policy, have attacked deep into Cambodia in direct support of Cambodian ground forces.

The announcement, which U.S. officials in Saigon would neither confirm nor deny, coincided with reports that North Vietnamese and Viet Cong units were marshalling east of Phnom Penh, and that heavy fighting had broken out again at Kompong Speu, 30 miles southwest of the Cambodian capital.

The U.S. air strikes helped break the month-long siege of Kompong Thom, a provincial capital 80 miles north of Phnom Penh, a Cambodian spokesman said. Neither the Pentagon nor the U.S. Command would comment, but this extension of the American air war appeared to be a sign of recognition by the United States that without some assist from strong U.S. firepower, the Cambodian forces might crumple under the Communist Command's growing pressure.

Maj. Am Rong, the Cambodian spokesman, said he could furnish no details on the exact location of attacks, the types of U.S. jets involved, when they first went into action or the results. But eyewitness reports on Tuesday from Kompong Thom and Skoun, another endangered Cambodian town, said U.S. propellor-driven OV10 aircraft had been marking targets for South Vietnamese jet fighter-bombers supporting Cambodian troops.

The U.S. Command in Saigon, apparently under strict orders from the Pentagon, has refused repeatedly to discuss U.S. air activity in Cambodia other than to repeat the Pentagon's admission Monday that American pilots were flying up to 100 miles inside Cambodia to attack North Vietnamese and Viet Cong supply lines.

WILLIAM KUNSTSLER, civil rights attorney and counsel for the defense in recent Chicago 7 conspiracy trial, poured a pitcher of water on hecklers Monday night after the man asked to speak at the University of Toronto, in Toronto, Canada. The heckler, F. Paul Fromme, 21, a student at the university and member of the conservative Edmund Burke Society, bothered Kunstsler during his speech and stepped onto the speaker's platform. Toronto police later issued a warrant for Kunstsler's arrest after Fromm was reportedly knocked unconscious following the incident. (AP Wirephoto)

Asks Updating Of UN Charter

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Philippine Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, one of the nine surviving original signers of the U.N. charter here 25 years ago, says the document is in serious need of updating.

Romulo spoke at a news conference upon his arrival Tuesday to take part in ceremonies marking the United Nations' silver anniversary.

"When we wrote the charter, none of us knew anything about the atom bomb," Romulo said. "Also, the charter is designed for open aggression only. Since 1945, new kinds of aggression have appeared: aggression by propaganda, aggression by subversion. We need a better definition of aggression."

Romulo, 71, was the Philippine delegate to the united nations until 1956, General Assembly president in 1949 and Security Council president in 1951. He currently is foreign affairs secretary for his country.

Romulo said the original plan was for the big powers to establish peace and for the United Nations to maintain it through the charter and good will.

But after World War II "peace was never established," he said. "The superpowers really made the United Nations itself the battleground."

He said the United Nations needs more teeth and called specifically for general adherence to decisions by the International Court of Justice. He said the United States is among the countries which ignore the court.

U.S. Marine Found Innocent Of Murder

DA NANG, Vietnam (AP) — A young Marine accused of unpremeditated murder in the deaths of 16 Vietnamese women and children was found innocent today after testifying he shot neither them nor enemy soldiers in Vietnam.

When the acquittal was announced, Pfc. Thomas R. Boyd, 19, Evansville, Ind., jumped up, his cheeks stained by tears.

"Thank God!" he shouted, hugged his civilian attorney, Howard T. Trockman, and then dashed outside the courtroom where several members of his company were awaiting the verdict.

He had been charged in the deaths of the Vietnamese Feb. 19 at Son Thang village, 27 miles south of here. He had faced a maximum sentence of life imprisonment.

Among those waiting outside the courtroom was Boyd's company commander, Lt. Louis R. Amort, 23, Little Rock, Ark., and Pfc. Samuel G. Green. Boyd, both laughing and crying, threw his arms around both men.

Green 18, of Cleveland, Ohio, was one of four Marines charged in the Son Thang case and goes on trial July 20. He is charged with 16 counts of unpremeditated murder.

Boyd, whose case was tried before a military judge, testified that before he came to Vietnam last July, his pastor told him one of life's most important lessons was: "Thou shalt not kill."

Members of Boyd's platoon testified they never saw him kill anyone in combat.

Boyd was the second Marine to be tried for killing of five women and 11 children during a patrol in the village 27 miles south of Da Nang.

Pvt. Michael A. Schwarz, 21, Weirton, W.Va., was convicted Sunday of premeditated murder and sentenced to life imprisonment. His case is being appealed.

Alexander Dubcek Fired Second Time

VIENNA (AP) — Alexander Dubcek, spearhead of the reform wave in Czechoslovakia two years ago, was fired again today.

CTK, the official Czechoslovak news agency, announced that President Ludvik Svoboda had removed the former Communist party chief from his post as ambassador to Turkey. The announcement said he would be assigned to other duties but gave no further information.

Dubcek returned to Prague from Turkey in May, ostensibly because his mother was ill. But there were rumors he would lose his embassy and might even be brought to trial.

Ottawa Bombing Fatal To Worker

OTTAWA (AP) — A bomb explosion damaged a Defense Department building in downtown Ottawa today and killed one person.

It occurred on St. Jean Baptiste Day, a holiday dear to the heart of French-Canadians. Separatists seeking to split Quebec away from Canada have made it an occasion for demonstrations in the past.

The explosion ripped away most of a wall section outside the defense communications room and another just above. Windows were shattered in an area of several blocks, and streets were littered with broken glass.

The communications room bore the brunt of the blast, and Jeanne St. Germain, a worker there, was killed. Two persons were taken to Ottawa General Hospital with multiple cuts.

Big Ship Contract Could Mean Trouble

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy's award of its costliest contract to a Mississippi shipyard "is to literally thumb its nose at the House of Representatives," charges a congressman who wants to give a Northern facility a piece of the action.

"This matter is not over by a long shot," Rep. Louis C. Wyman, R-N.H., insisted Tuesday after the Navy announced Ingalls Shipbuilding Division at Pascagoula, Miss., had landed the contract for assembly-line construction of 30 new destroyers. Ingalls is a division of Litton Industries.

Disclosure of the award, worth a potential $2.1 billion to Litton and costing a total $2.55 billion including government-supplied radar equipment and weapons, came shortly after the Senate Armed Services Committee rejected Wyman's proposal that at least two shipyards be contracted to build the destroyers.

Mississippi Democrat John C. Stennis, the Senate Armed Services Committee chairman, said the Senate panel struck from the pending military procurement bill Wyman's House-approved rider to spread the business to at least two shipyards.

Although the Navy's decision gave no part of the contract to a competing shipyard in Bath, Maine, Adm. Nathan Sonenshein told a news conference Tuesday night the pact carries a clause providing actual construction could be subcontracted if Congress decides to put Wyman's rider back in the bill.

Sonenshein, commander of the Navy Ship Systems Command, contended the contract cost would rise $600 million if construction is divided between two yards.

He said the Navy settled on the new $130 million Mississippi facility so that identical ships could be built on an assembly-line basis.

Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., said the Navy's action brings "an economic bonanza to our people at an ideal moment in our battle to overcome the effects of Hurricane Camille."

Hart Suggests $7 Billion For Police Forces

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., proposed today $7 billion in assistance to local police forces over the next four years as part of an Onibus Crime bill package.

The administration, Hart said, currently is asking a one-year law enforcement appropriation of $480 million.

Hart asked that the Safe Streets Act, under which money is now channeled to law enforcement agencies be further amended to:

—Allow unlimited use of federal grant money to pay police salaries. Only a third of any grant now can be used for this purpose.

—Reduce the local share of a matching grant to 10 per cent, from the current 40 to 50 per cent.

—Allow more federal money to go directly to the cities, rather than to state governments.

Hart proposed that the omnibus bill also include:

—A proposal for drug addiction treatment and rehabilitation and increased funds for drug law enforcement.

—A proposal to move federal court trials up to within 60 days

—A pornography control proposal.

—A federal reinsurance agency to enable inner city businesses to buy crime loss insurance.

—A federal program of life and disability insurance benefits for state and local law enforcement officers.

—A proposal to allow federal court action against anyone interfering with a citizens, right to free speech.

"The nation's crime problem, to a large degree, is the harvest of accumulated neglect and indifference to the urgent needs of our criminal justice system -a neglect that persists despite outrage and alarm at the crime rate," Hart said.

Col. Turner Dies, Was Top Speed Flyer In 1930s

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Col. Roscoe Turner, America's greatest speed flier of the 1930s, died Tuesday after a long illness. He was 74.

Turner was the only three-time winner of the Thompson Trophy back in the prop plane era. His pet lion "Gilmore" flew 25,000 miles with Turner in the early 1930s while the flier, a native of Corinth, Miss., was building up a reputation as a racer, an air show performer and a movie stunt pilot. Turner's movie credits included "Hell's Angels" and "Flight at Midnight."

He joined the Army ambulance service in World War I but transferred to the Army Air Corps and learned to handle both observation balloons and fighter planes.

He organized an aerial circus after the war and toured the South with a program that included stunt flying, wing walking and parachute jumps.

Kidnapings May Spark OAS Meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — Proposals to halt the current wave of Latin American political kidnapings are expected to spark sharp differences when the Organization of American States foreign ministers open their 13-day meeting this week.

The sessions open Thursday against a backdrop of kidnaping attempts against nine diplomats in Latin America over the last 10 months.

To counter diplomatic kidnapings, Argentina has proposed member nations impose "self-restraint" in granting asylum for political prisoners.

According to the Argentine theory, potential kidnapers would be less likely to abduct diplomats if there are no assurances it will result in the release of political prisoners.

Chile and Mexico have indicated opposition to the Argentine plan.

The permanent council of the 23-nation OAS formally condemned the use of violence as a political tool a month ago but left the question of what to do about it to the foreign ministers.

Nine diplomats, including three Americans, have been the targets of kidnaping attempts in Latin America since last September. Most have been released in exchange for the freedom of political prisoners.

Count Karl Von Spreti, West Germany's ambassador to Guatemala, was slain after the government refused to meet his captors' demands for the release of 22 prisoners and for ransom of $700,000.

The latest kidnaping victim, Ehrenfried von Holleben, West Germany's ambassador to Brazil, was freed last week after the government released 40 political prisoners.

The ministers also will consider the effect of the new OAS charter on the various social, political and economic bodies of the inter-American group.

WMU Will Honor Astronaut Trio

KALAMAZOO (AP) —Western Michigan University will award honorary degrees to Apollo 13 astronauts Capt. James A. Lovell Jr., Fred W. Haise Jr. and John L. Sweigert Jr. at its Aug. 14 commencement.

WMU President James W. Miller said the men will be honored for their courageous handling of their spacecraft after an in-space explosion of essential equipment forced the crew to abort its moon-landing mission and return to earth.

Apollo 13 "proved to the world that man is master of the machine and not a slave to it, a concept which much of our blase world elects to ignore," Miller said.

New Plan Generated To Starve Parochiaid

By DON HOENSHELL
Panax Staff Writer

LANSING — House Republicans plan to starve parochiaid to death by bargaining with their votes on a $92 million tax bill that Gov. Milliken needs to balance his 1971-72 budget.

The move is designed to block other major bills and a constitutional amendment that they estimate would cost $320 million.

Details of the strategy came out of a pre-session huddle of 27 House Republicans Monday night in the Capitol Park Motor Hotel here as pressure built for action on school aid.

Rep. Clifford H. Smart (R-Walled Lake), ranking Republican on the House education committee and its former chairman, presided at what others described as a "rump session."

School Bill Is Key

Smart said the massive state school aid bill, now compromised at $975 million and including $22 million for parochiaid, is the key to the plan but is not the only concern.

"There are some of us who opposed parochiaid but we ran up against The Establishment," he said.

There is no procedural way the $22 million for non-public schools can be taken out of the school aid bill, now in a House-Senate conference committee. Republicans have found a way—with the votes.

Smart and others inside the meeting said they would bargain to place a less costly school aid appropriation into a separate measure, the budget bill for the stte Department of Education.

This would take out parochiaid.

But to do it, they need enough anti-parochiaid votes to block passage of the bill repealing all but 12 per cent of the property tax credit now deducted from the state income tax.

Tax Bill Needed

Earlier in the day, House Speaker William A. Ryan said the tax bill would be needed to raise $92 million and balance the state budget at $1.762 billion, up $225 million from current spending.

Minority Republicans have 53 votes and the Democrats 57. Absentees or the flip flop of a small handful of pro-parochiaid votes would make the strategy work.

Smart said another Republican worry is the proposed constitutional amendment reducing the property tax ceiling for schools to 16 per cent of assessed valuation. The state average is 24 per cent. If voters approved, it would be effective next year.

Since this needs two-thirds votes of both Houses, or 74 votes in the House, Republicans could block it by holding back 17, assuming all 57 Democrats voted for it.

"This would take $4 billion out of the tax base and $320 million out of school budgets," Smart said. "If we put it on the ballot the way it's written we would be mandating the next legislature to a big tax increase or we'd be putting the schools in a box.

"We can't commit the next legislature to financing that kind of a bill."

Bargaining Lever

Smart said the group was also agreed to take a close look at special eduaction parts of the school aid bill, bus transportation and other sections.

"We're going to use the tax program as our lever in the bargaining," he said.

House Minority Leader Robert E. Waldron (R. Grosse Pointe) attended the meeting but refused to discuss it.

Rep. Russell H. Strange (R.-Mt. Pleasant), Republican caucus chairman, said he attended but would not go into detail on the agreement. He said:

"I had six of my seven school districts in Montcalm county represented in my office and the spokesmen all told me to hang tough against parochiaid."

He agreed that the agreement would not solve the problems of local districts who are bargaining with teachers on contracts for next fall.

But both he and Smart said the impact of any increase in school aid would not be felt locally until next March in any event so lawmakers have time to make changes.

The development, if pursued under ideal conditions, could sidetrack parochiaid and reverse the drive toward passage of the budget in time for a July 3 recess.

"That's our strategy," said Smart.

Miss America Day Planned

Miss America will be in Escanaba on Monday, July 13, for ceremonies dedicating the tower apartment for senior citizens, and arrangements for the events are being made by a local committee.

Members of the committee besides LaPlante are James Barr, president of the Jaycees, sponsor of the event; John Bissell, Claude Tobin, John Dulek and Howard Smale. Other citizens are expected to be called upon as the planning progresses.

Miss America Pamela Eldred will arrive in Escanaba by plane Sunday afternoon, July 12, will spend Monday here, and will leave on Tuesday.

The committee is inviting Secretary of Housing and Urban Development George Romney to give the dedicatory address.

MAN' S RELATIONSHIP TO nature — to the air, the water and the land — becomes a living reality to Summer Science campers, who are pictured here at work on a recreation project along the shore at Summer Island. Island Is 'World' To Science Campers

By CLINT DUNATHAN

On an island in Lake Michiagn is a school that is rapidly becoming a focal point for youth interested in the subject of evironmental health.

Summer Science Camp on Summer Island in Delta County will open its fourth season on July 27, with more students than ever before. Some will come from as far distant as Georgia and Florida.

Founder of the camp for high school youth interested in studying the natural sciences is Dan Stevens of Ann Arbor and Summer Island. His vision of a camp that combines study and an exciting vacation experience, inspired by a visit to beautiful Summer Island about 10 years ago, has became a busy reality.

Wildlife ecology, shoreline geology, historical archaeology, primary ecology, meteorology, and aquatic geology are included in the program stressing the natural sciences.

Man And His Future

"Our program includes those subjects now employed in approaches to environmental health," Stevens noted. "And the young people we are training are the type of people whose work and research are essential to man's future in the solution of environmental problems."

Rod Marlatt, one of the founders, is assistant director of the camp, and the "faculty" includes professors, graduate students, and instructors from a number of colleges and universities. Among the professional staff of nine will be instructors from Eastern Michigan University, Harvard, University of Michigan, Wayne State, Middlebury College, Vermont, and Michigan State University.

Since the camp is on an island, the auxiliary and maintenance people include men with experience in operating boats—the supply and transportation link with the mainland. Then there are cooks, of course, a nurse, and others on the staff.

There will be two sessions of Summer Science camp, each of four weeks, the first beginning June 27 and the second July 26. The 32 students at each session will come from Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, Maryland, Virginia, Georgia, Florida and Washington, D.C.

Four Area Students

Summer Science has received some favorable attention nationally, and has been favored with a gift of $60,000 from the Kresge Foundation for the construction of a hall. The building was started last year and is being completed this spring.

Six students will be at camp for the full eight weeks, including an Escanaba girl, Margie Mosenfelder, who is returning to continue an Independent study project in Archaeology. A first session camper will be her brother, Jim, who is interested in wildlife ecology. They are children of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mosenfelder.

Two other Escanaba area young people will attend Summer Science Camp as recipients of Rotary Club 50th anniversary special scholarship.

Karen Hivala of Escanaba Area Public High School and George Groos of Holy Name High School were selected by faculty representatives to receive the scholarships. George will attend the first session of the camp Karen the second; his interest is in geology, her's in archaeology.

Legion Chief Hits War Foes

MARQUETTE — J. Milton Patrick, national American Legion commander, has accused New York Mayor John Lindsay and Sen. Richard Goodell (R-N. Y.) of "creating disunity in the US by opposition to the war and attempting to make heroes of those who refuse to serve in it."

Patrick made the accusation at the annual Michigan legion convention in Marquette.

Patrick said that sending American troops into Cambodia was "the smartest move the president has made in the Southeast Asia War." He advocated continued use of American troops there after July 1 if warranted.

Theodore C. Marrs, deputy assistant secretary of defense, called Nixon's plan to use US troops in Cambodia a wise decision, despite its political repercussions. He said Nixon would keep his promises on troop withdrawls.

Delegates passed a resolution endorsing a $500 state bonus for Vietnam War veterans, the same as Michigan gave World War II and Korean War veterans.

In other convention action, Patrick Smith, Stambaugh, was elected commander of the Upper Peninsula Association.

Raymond Pawlowski, Menominee, was chosen 5th Zone Commander, succeeding Norman Ouelette, Munising.

Upper Peninsula Legion Association vice commanders picked were: Richard Hayes, Hancock; Philip L. White, Marquette; Edward Ahlgren, Rock, and Burt Mayotte, Sault Ste. Marie.

Newberry was selected as the site for the midwinter conference and Iron Mountain as the 1971 convention site.

Officers said entry was made by prying open a door, sometime during the past two days, and a tool box filled with tools, valued at about $100, was reported to have been taken.

Police are continuing their investigation.

For the last two years, Gross served as vice-chairman.

Gross served as a member of the State of Michigan Corrections Commission from 1964 to 1966, and has long been interested in the prevention and treatment of crime. Before joining Panax Corp. in May, 1969, Gross spent 29 years as an executive of the Boy Scouts of America.

In 1968, Gross was appointed to serve a two-year period on the Govenor's Commission on Juvenile Delinquency.

Reiss Shipping Line To Be Sold

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)— The American Steamship Co., operator of a Great Lakes fleet, will sell the Reiss Steamship Co. of Sheboygan, Wis., within two years as a result of an antitrust action by the government against American.

Buffalo-based American acquired Reiss, owner of 12 vessels, for $14.5 million a year ago as a wholly owned subsidiary.

Adam E. Cornelius Jr., president of American, said Monday his firm and the U.S. Justice Department had agreed to a consent decree for the sale.

The Justice Department suit charged that American's acquisition of Reiss tended to reduce competition in the Great Lakes steamship industry.

Cornelius said the agreement by American to sell Reiss "does not constitute any admission of any antitrust law violations."

Escanaba Real Estate Agents Win Certificates

ANN ARBOR—A class of 121 men and women will receive final certificates in real estate in recognition exercises at the University of Michigan tomorrow.

Among the graduates are two Escanaba persons, Mrs. Lucy M. Berglund of 716 3rd Ave. S., and Theodore W. Breitenbach, 116 S. 22nd St.

Students who achieve certificate have completed six required courses and two electives. The program is presented by the U-M Extension Service and Graduate School of Business Administration, with the cooperation of the Michigan Real Estate Association, its local boards, and the Division of Vocational Education of the Michigan Department of Education.

Railroad Service Back To Normal

SPRING ARBOR (AP)—Penn Central railroad service from Jackson to Elkhart, Ind., was restored Tuesday after railroad crews cleared the tracks of nine derailed cars from a 116-car, Detroit-bound freight train west of Spring Arbor in Concord Township.

Railroad officials said the cars tore up 300 feet of track before disconnecting at a siding.

The derailed cars were loaded with pipe or crushed stone.

Bill Proposed To Cut Consumer Hazards

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee says he will push for a bill giving a new federal agency power to eliminate product hazards blamed for the deaths of 30,000 Americans and injuries to 20 million more.

Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., made the announcement prior to today's opening hearing on the recommendations of the National Commission on Product Safety.

The commission presented its final report to the President Tuesday and urged creation of a new agency to deal with product hazards that cost the nation more than $5.5 billion a year.

Ask 5 Member Agency

The study group recommended establishment of a five-member agency with exclusive authority in the field of consumer product safety. An advocate with responsibility to represent only consumers in proceedings before the new agency and other regulatory boards would be named.

The commission, appointed two years ago by former President Lyndon B. Johnson, concluded that no federal agency has authority to enforce safety standards for consumer products. It said state and local laws are nonexistent or ineffective and manufacturers generally have failed to take the lead in safety.

Federal Rate Stressed

"Because of the inadequacy of existing controls on product hazards, we find a need for a major federal role in the development and execution of methods to protect the American consumer," the commission said. "Manufacturers have it in their power to design, build and market products in ways that will reduce if not eliminate most unreasonable and unnecessary hazards."

The commission defined consumer products as those used in or around the home, except foods, drugs, cosmetics, cars, insecticides, firearms, cigarettes and certain flammable fabrics—products regulated by other federal agencies.

"The exposure of consumers to unreasonable consumer product hazards is excessive by any standard of measurement," the study agency said.

The commission, which goes out of business Oct. 1, recommended consumers be permitted to file federal court claims for treble damages, individually or in class actions, against manufacturers which intentionally violate safety standards.

Penalties Proposed

The proposed bill would allow civil penalties of up to $500,000 and criminal fines of up to $50,000 against manufacturers found in violation.

The proposed consumer product safety commission would have authority to seek injunctions against and recall consumer products which failed to meet safety standards.

Mid-Month Auto Sales On Increase

DETROIT (AP) — Paced by record sales by industry giant General Motors Corp., the U.S. auto indsutry reported new car sales up sharply in the middle 10 days of June.

While sales for the year to date remain 8.2 per cent below the corresponding period of 1969, the four major U.S. automakers sold 13 per cent more cars in the June 11-20 period this year than last year.

GM, which dominates the industry with more than half of all domestic new car sales, reported selling 185,039 cars in the middle period of June, 35.7 per cent above the $26,365 sold in the period last year and eclipsing the record of 143,372 set in 1968.

Mack Worden, GM vice president-marketing, said that Chevrolet Division, GM's largest, ended a major sales incentive program June 20, while Pontiac and Buick Division have sales programs continuing until the end of the month.

American Motors Corp. also reported increased sales in the period.

Canada Ready With Pollution Fight Program

OTTAWA (AP) — Canada has committed itself formally to specific antipollution measures in the Great Lakes without a reciprocal agreement with the United States.

The action was taken Tuesday at a joint conference of Canadian and U.S. officials.

The Canadian commitments, some already announced, cover planning for spills of oil and hazardous materials, elimination of phosphates in detergents and modification of natural gas drilling in Lake Erie to conform with recommendations of the Canada - U.S. International Joint Commission.

A joint communique issued after the one - day conference said the United States still is making an intensive review of removing phosphates from detergents and no drilling for oil or gas is in progress in states bordering Lake Erie.

Need Awareness To Attain Goal Of Clean Water

What is the value of all the affluence, the pleasure in the "good life" if the air is no longer fit to breathe or the water fit to drink?

Kenneth Maki, director, water technology program, Bay de Noc Community College, posed the question in his discussion of "Water and Pollution" to the Rotary Club at its meeting at the House of Ludington Tuesday noon.

Joseph Laskar of the club's program committee introduced the speaker and the meeting was conducted by Thomas Straebel, Rotary Club president.

Maki offered the thought that Rotary and other service clubs might encourage public awareness of the pollution problems "and perhaps support organizations engaged in the environmental crusade."

Creeping Plague'

A graduate of Northern Michigan University, Maki has 10 years of associated experience including teaching, management and supervision of water purification programs. He will present a research report on the effects of phosphorous in activated sludge in Mexico City this coming September.

Although here in Northern Michigan we live in a virtually "pristine" environment compared to urban areas, there is a creeping pollution that edges nearer the north country, he said. Lake Michigan for example, was once clean its entire length; now it is less than half-clean.

The burden of man's pollution grows faster than nature or man can cope with it—"a creeping plague carried by winds and water"—and defies the beginning efforts at control, Maki noted.

Long On Words

What can be done about it? Maki advocated first of all that service clubs make pollution control one of their objectives, that they combine their effort with groups, and that they seek to bring local solutions to local problems.

Rotary and other organizations could adopt resolutions calling upon the federal government to keep its promises on pollution control financing, for Congress has been long on words and short on money, he said.

There is also the need to train the additional persons neded as technicians in the water quality program. In Michigan alone such "manpower needs" will triple in the next five years, he added.

More than all else, however, is the challenge to make the public aware that a problem exists and must be resolved, Maki said.

AFTER THE FIRES cooled in Crescent City, Ill., this was the scene of destruction that followed the holocaust when tank cars exploded after a freight train was derailed. Most of the town's business section and many homes were destroyed by the fire and explosions. The town, with a population of 600 persons, is south of Chicago. There were no deaths reported despite the immense damage. (AP Wirephoto)

County Planning Road Relocation At Fayette Park

One of the first steps toward the relocation of County Road 483 around Fayette State Park, preliminary to the construction by the state of a new park entrance roadway and parking lot, is being taken by the Delta County Road Commission.

The Commission has given legal notice of the abandonment of that portion of County Road 483 through the state park area, and the so-called "by-pass" county road east of the park will become a part of the primary county road system.

In its resolution of abandonment the Commission notes that the Department of Natural Resources is "to proceed with the construction of a new network of roads within the boundaries" of the park, and cites further that the "by-pass" road back of the park is "a shorter route" for through traffic.

Plans for the construction of a new entrance roadway and parking area for Fayette park were outlined by Rep. Charles H. Varnum (R-Manistique) in Escanaba recently.

He said that $100,000 for that work is available to the Department; that $130,000 in recreation bond funds is allocated for a visitor center; bringing the total funds for Fayette projects to $230,000.

Hopefully, the state is expected to invite bids for the improvements this year.

Attendance at Fayette park is expected to go about 15 per cent above last year's total of 111,000 visitors, said Park Manager James Kent. Slow in starting this spring, the number of visitors the past two weeks is now above that of a year ago and is increasing rapidly to erase the deficit.

Camping at Fayette is already up by about 25 per cent, but because of the expansion of the campground in the past couple of years there is not expected to be a "turn away" situation develop, Kent said.

The condition of County Road 483 from U. S. 2 to Fayette Park continues to be a deterrent to traffic, although some of the rougher sections are being repaired.

The Delta County Commissioners have petitioned the State Highway Commission to take over the 17 miles of County Road 483 to the park and maintain it as a state trunkline.

Pollution Grant

LANSING (AP)—The Department of Natural Resources, acting through the Water Resources Commission, has authorized a state grant of $130,000 toward a $260,000 water pollution abatement project at Laingsburg. Plans call for construction of intercepting sewers, a pumping station, two lagoons and a water retention pond.

Raps President For Treatment Of U.S. Indians

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP) — The director of Indian studies at the University of California blasted the Nixon administration for its treatment of Indians Tuesday in a speech at Sault Ste. Marie.

Prof. Lehman Brightman, speaking at a three - day Indian Youth Conference at Lake Superior State College, said Nixon made campaign promises to reorganize the Bureau of Indian Affairs and to put Indians on the school boards at Indian schools.

But he said out of 226 Indian school boards only one has an Indian on it.

Brightman, a Sioux - Creek Indian, said, "We have the largest unemployment rate in the United States but the Bureau of Indian Affairs, hires approximately 20,000 people and more than half are not Indians."

He said, "We're the only race of people in the country with a special bureau over them."

Brightman said the country spends more money in Vietnam in a single day than "on all of the 600,000 Indians in the United States in one year."

O'Hara's Eligiblity Being Questioned

LANSING (AP — A fellow Democrat is challenging the eligibility of James G. O'Hara, D-Mich., seeking reelection in the 12th Congressional District.

Joseph G. Savage of Roseville, who filed as a Democratic aspirant for O'Hara's congressional seat, questioned the legal status of O'Hara's claimed residence in Michigan.

Savage said that although O'Hara lists his legal residence as Utica he maintains his sole residence at Alexandria, Va., near Washington.

Since 1967, Savage claimed, the former O'Hara residence in Utica has been leased out to another couple, Savage said he determined from personal interviews that O'Hara and his wife had not lived in, conducted business from or kept their personal effect in the Utica home since 1967.

Savage asked the Board of State Canvassers to declare the nominating petitions filed by O'Hara invalid.

Bernard Apol, state elections director, said the matter was being researched through the attorney general's office.

Voting At 18

The Voting Rights Bill which includes a provision for lowering the legal age in all states to 18 was signed Tuesday by President Nixon. In signing the bill, the president directed the attorney general to seek a quick court test of the Constitutionality of the 18-year-old vote.

Like leading spokesman for both political parties, President Nixon was in favor of granting the right to vote to 18-year-olds. But he favored doing it by Constitutional amendment—like the 15th Amendment established the right to vote regardless of "race, color or previous condition of servitude" and the 19th Amendment which granted suffrage to women.

Congress was aware of the Constitutional question surrounding the matter of granting voting rights of 18, 19 and 20-year-olds. It took cognizance of this by including a provision in the bill for a quick court test of whether Congress has the power to fix voting ages by statute. Article 10 of the Constitution provides the problem, specifying that "The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people.

It is that provision of the Constitution that allows Georgia and Kentucky to allow 18 year olds to vote, that permits Alaska to allow 19 year olds to vote and that permits 20-year-old Hawaiian residents to vote.

Despite the Constitutional question, however, the President signed the bill because it includes more than just the 18-year-old provision. The bill originally was designed to extend the key provisions of the Voting Rights Act of 1965—an act which resulted in adding nearly a million blacks to the electorate in the deep South—and a veto by the president would have cancelled those provisions, too.

The right to vote at age 18 has been favored by most politicians for years. The question was placed on the ballot on Michigan just two years ago and the U. S. House of Representatives in sending the bill to the president favored the provvisions 272 to 132. Among those voting in favor of the measure was Rep. Philip E. Ruppe, Houghton Republican. Michigan's delegation favored the bill 13-6.

Even Vice President Spiro Agnew, who has strongly criticized some young people for some of their behavior, went on record supporting their right to vote upon reaching the age of 18. In a speech on the same day the House passed the bill, Agnew said:

"If a man is old enough to serve his nation at arms at 18, is he not old eonugh to vote? If a woman is considered mature enough to enter a lifetime contract of marriage at 18, is she not matrue enough to vote? . . . Once our young people are permitted the privilege of sounding off at the polls, there will be less need to sound off in the streets. They'll have the chance to be counted where it counts."

Eighteen-year-olds not only are considered old enough to fight for their country, they also are considered old enough to work and pay taxes, to stand trial in adult courts and to otherwise accept most of the obligations of an adult.

The action of the Congress and the President was on the right track. And if it's ruled unconstitutional by the Supreme Court, then an amendment to the Constitution is necessary.

A wrinkled purse-snatcher is being sought in Ironwood, where the daring incident took place at a public auction being conducted by the Jaycees. Mrs. Walter Oksa set her purse down and according to onlookers, a "wrinkled woman snatched it up and just took off running." The purse contained $50 in cash. Persons at the sale were able to give police an accurate description of the thief.

One woman has joined the official municipal "family" in St. Ignace, but a second quit because she was denied a pay raise. Mrs. Jean Kalbfleisch became the first woman to be appointed to the City Council, receiving unanimous endorsement from all council members to fill a vacancy created by resignation of Councilman Alex Beaudoin. At the same time, the council accepted the resignation of Mrs. Theresa Demmons, city treasurer the last 3½ years. Mrs. Demmons said she quit because her pay was not increased to compensate for a larger workload.

A dramatic decline in the early-summer visitor atendance at the Soo Locks is generally reflected in the business economy of Sault Ste. Marie, according to a survey conducted by the Sault Evening News. The number of visitors climbing the three observation stations at the locks is nearly 15,000 under the total for the time last year. An actual count of each person climbing one of the observation platforms is maintained by electronic counters at each of the stations. Attendance at the locks is down to 72,057 from 87,221 up to this date in 1969. Locks officials say that last year was a banner season, with a total of 899,200 persons climbing the platforms to see the ship movement in the locks. Motel operators, restaurant and gasoline service station proprietors say that business for 1970 is down about 22 per cent from last year. Tourist business was "way down," one service station owner said, although his local business is holding steady.

'Ethnic American' Is Ready To Start Revolt

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

In the late years of the nineteenth century William Graham Sumner, America's pioneer sociologist, wrote a famous essay on the "Forgotten Man."

The Forgotten Man was the long-suffering lower middle-class citizen who worked hard at his job, paid his bills and his taxes, built a house for himself with perhaps a second story to rent out to somebody else, and invariably found himself mulcted by the politicians to support pressure groups of one type or another who might or might not need the money. Some 50 years later Franklin D. Roosevelt misappropriated and perverted the title of the Sumner essay to cover the "third of the nation" that paid no taxes.

Well, it is a long time since we have heard of — or from — the original Forgotten Man.

But the other day, at a conference called by the Urban Task Force of the United States Catholic Conference in Washington, D.C., he reappeared in a new guise as the "ethnic American." (There are 40 million of these "ethnics," of recent European descent.)

And he found a spokesman, or rather a spokeswoman, in Barbara Mikulski of the Southeast Community Organization of Baltimore. She laid it on the line as a member of the "white ethnic working class" in accents that almost exactly paralleled the Sumner rhetoric.

"The ethnic American," she said, "is sick of being stereotyped as a racist and dullard by phony white liberals, pseudo black militants and patronizing bureaucrats. He pays the bill for every major government program and gets nothing or little in the way of return . . . He has worked hard all his life to become a 'good American;' he and his sons have fought on every battlefield — and he is made fun of because he likes the flag.

"The ethnic American is overtaxed and underserved at every level of government . . . Being a home owner, he shoulders the rising property taxes . . . yet he enjoys very little from these unfair and burdensome levies . . . If he wants to buy in the 'old neighborhood' he cannot get an FHA loan . . . His income of $5,000 to $10,000 per year makes him 'near poor.'

"He is the victim of both inflation and anti-inflationary measures . . . The public and private institutions have made him frustrated by their lack of response to his needs. At present he feels powerless in his daily dealings with and efforts to change them."

★ ★ ★

Sometimes the "ethnics" whose cause has been so eloquently presented by Miss Mikulski react in what the Rev. Paul Asciolla, an Italian-American newspaper editor from Chicago, calls "spastic" terms. They feel their jobs and homes are threatened by the blacks. But they aren't really racist. They don't want to go to George Wallace.

The danger, however, is that they will be driven to him for want of understanding by the "phony white liberals, the pseudo black militants and patronizing bureaucrats."

The dilemma of the "ethnic" American has been dramatically pinpointed by the recent election in Newark, N.J., where Kenneth Gibson, a Negro, easily defeated the incumbent Mayor Hugh Addonizio, of Italian background, in a runoff election to become the first black mayor of a big Northeastern city.

Gibson, an engineer, is a decent person, and we may be certain that he means it when he says he wants to bind up the community's wounds, to promote harmony, an dto reverse the trend of decay that is to be found in all the central cities of the nation. But his slate failed to win the Newark City Council, which stands six-to-three against him.

It will take more than easy promises to keep Newark from experiencing terrible troubles in the near future. Anthony Imperiale, a Councilman who heads a militant white North Ward Citizens Committee, is the very image of the "ethnic American" that was mentioned by Miss Mikulski in her "Forgotten Man" speech in Washington. Imperiale is rough, an expert at karate, and he doesn't trim his words. He seethes with a sense of injustice.

★ ★ ★

"I saw voters intimidated by the Black Panthers," he said in a post-election talk. And then came the clincher, which tells us what has happened to the U.S. "If anyone comes to our home to burn, loot or riot," he said, "I'm going to protect my home . . . Don't make this city turn into a bomb. If they start it, we'll finish it."

In other words, Imperiale is ready for "protective violence." The Black Panthers formed their original organization in the San Francisco Bay Area around this very concept of "protective violence" when they ostentatiously "picked up the gun." So we have the tinder laid on both sides, ready for the "defensive" match.

The psychological atmosphere is enough to terrify anyone. It won't dissipate until the "phony white liberals, the pseudo black militants and patronizing bureaucrats" mentioned by Miss Mikulski wake up to what they have done to poison our seats of learning and our communications with their misunderstanding of all our "Forgotten Men."

Will they wake up in time? I'd like to think so, but I have all my fingers crossed.

Rightful Owner Gets Back $50,000

GRAND RAPIDS (AP)—More than $50,000 found by two grade school pupils May 1 has been returned to its rightful owner.

Police said the money was returned to a guardian for the elderly woman whose savings of a lifetime were found in a table under layers of moldering cardboard.

An attorney for the woman said she suffers memory lapses. He said she and her late husband had saved the money at home after losing some of their savings in a bank failure during the depression.

Lower Voting In State Could Be Up To People

LANSING (AP)—Scarcely 24 hours after President Nixon signed into law a bill lowering the voting age to 18, the Michigan Senate has agreed to ask the people whether the state should change its voting age.

The Senate voted 27-6 Tuesday for a proposed constitutional amendment that would lower Michigan's voting age to 18.

The concept won approval in the House earlier.

Which Version?

But before voters decide the question in the November election, lawmakers must decide which version of the amendment should receive full legislative endorsement

Voters could express their sentiments only if the House passes the Senate proposal, introduced by Sen. Anthony Stamm, R-Kalamazoo, or if Senate acts on the House version, sponsored by Rep. Jackie Vaughn III, D-Detroit.

Michigan voters rejected a similar proposal by a nearly 2-1 margin in 1966.

Campus Unrest Cited

In early Senate discussion of the change, some lawmakers predicted that recent campus unrest and violence could boost that margin to 5-1 against a lower voting age."

There was no debate on the proposal Tuesday, however, as it squeaked through the senate with only one vote more than the two-thirds majority needed for passage.

Gov. William Milliken had urged the Senate late last week to approve the proposal.

Nixon signed the voting rights bill, including the lowered voting age provision, Monday. At the same time, however, he directed the attorney general to seek a speedy court test of the constitutionality of the 18-year-old vote provision.

Nixon Supports Move

The President has voiced support for the lower voting age, but said he believes that change should be made through an amendment to the U. S. Constitution.

State officials, meanwhile, say Michigan should endorse its own constitutional amendment—if it wants a lower voting age—in order to avert confusion during court tests of the federal bill.

In other action, Tuesday, the Michigan Senate approved a House-passed bill that would allow 18-year-olds to serve as delegates to state and national political party conventions.

The measure, passed 22-11, was sponsored by Vaughn.

Also passed and returned to the House for concurrence in minor amendments was a bill to lower the state aid penalty on schools that fail to conduct classes 180 days a year—as is required for full aid payments.

Section Deleted

The state currently reduces payments at the rate of two days' school aid for one day lost. Under the bill that had already been passed in the House, that reduction would be cut to one day's school aid for one day lost.

The bill further deletes a section of law that makes Saturday a mandatory school holiday. Senators passed the bill 31-2.

Opening lead—two of hearts.

This deal occurred in a team match. At both tables the contract was three notrump, but at one table it was made while at the other it was defeated.

At the first table, declarer followed low from dummy on the heart lead and won East's ten with the jack. When he then played the king of diamonds, West won with the ace and shifted to a low club. As a result, the defenders cashed four club tricks and South went down one.

At the second table, declarer also played low from dummy on the heart lead, but when East produced the ten, South won with the king!

This declarer realized that the contract would be in danger if West had the ace of diamonds and East had the ace of clubs. Moreover, he reasoned that if he won the trick with the jack West would almost surely shift to a club upon taking the ace of diamonds, since West would realize that South had the hearts triply stopped.

When declarer played a diamond at trick two, West won with the ace and led another heart. He naturally thought East had the jack, since it was difficult for him to imagine that South would win the opening lead with the king if he had the jack.

The ruse having succeeded, and with the contract now fully under control, declarer followed low from dummy, thus recovering the trick he had deliberately lost on the opening lead and finally winding up with ten tricks.

Whether West should have fallen into declarer's trap is not at issue. The real point of interest is that the second declarer was perfectly willing to relinquish a heart trick in order to increase his chance for the contract. He could afford to spurn the extra trick because it was not vital to his cause.

RUPPE REPORTS

Last week, the House of Representatives cleared for the President, legislation which would give the vote to the 18-year old. (The President signed the bill) While I had reservations about this provision of the Voting Rights Act, I supported the measure.

I have had the opportunity to speak with a number of young people, both in Northern Michigan, and at universities across the nation. It has become apparent to me that the vast majority of our young people are responsible, well-informed, and concerned with current events. I think that these upstanding young men and women, who have not received the national attention given to a radical minority, should have the opportunity to express their opinions in the ballot box. I further feel that our young men, who must defend our nation all over the world, should have the chance to help elect the national leaders who could determine their fate. For these reasons, I have continually supported a lowering of the voting age.

I had introduced legislation earlier this Congress, to provide for the 18-year-old vote by means of a Constitutional amendment. Such an amendment would have required the ratification of three-fourths of our states; I felt that the states should participate in the decision to lower the voting age nationally. However, my legislation did not pass through the House Judiciary Committee to the floor of the House.

I felt it necessary to support the Voting Right Act amendment, as the only current alternative. Our youth are deeply and personally affected by such issues as the war in Vietnam and the Selective Service system. Until now, they have had little opportunity to express their views constructively. I am convinced that the new right to vote will provide them with a means of registering their opinions, while stimulating an early interest in their civic responsibilities.

Philip Ruppe

Ann Landers

Bragging Mate May Be Shortchanged

Dear Ann Landers: What can a woman do with a husband who refuses to live within his income? He brags to everyone that he is going to buy his daughter a car for graduation when our own car isn't paid for yet.

The bills came yesterday and I see he bought himself another new suit and six new shirts. When I asked what was wrong with the shirts he has, he said, "They are white. Nobody wears white shirts any more." I told him a package of dye costs 25c and I would dye his shirts red or green if that's what he wants. He got mad and yelled and pounded on the table. I had to close the windows. My neighbor already has told me she feels sorry for me.

My husband never lets on when he's going to buy something. I learn of it when he brings home the box or when I see the bills. If I complain he says, "You're getting nervous." Of course I'm getting nervous. Who wouldn't get nervous being in debt all the time? I work at a part-time job to make extra money and all my extra money goes on his back. The minute I pay one bill, he runs up three more. At times I get so mad I swear I'll never again use my money to pay another bill of his, but if I don't pay his bills his name will be ruined in this town and it's my name and the kids' name, too. What do you see ahead for me? — Sea Of Debt

Dear Sea: More of the same. Your husband is an irresponsible juvenile. He also sounds like a compulsive buyer, which is a sickness. Tell him you are closing all joint charge accounts and if he wants to charge he can open an account under his name. When the bills come, the stores will dun HIM and not you. This might not be a cure but it puts the burden where it belongs.

★ ★ ★

Dear Ann Landers: My mother-in-law was one of the loveliest, kindest women who ever lived. The sorrow of her life was the poor relationship she had with her step-daughter, Martha.

Martha was out of control from early childhood and no one could get along with her. My mother-in-law had the patience of Job to live under the same roof with that hellcat. Martha is now 26 years old, has her own apartment and no one ever sees her unless she needs something.

The day my mother-in-law passed away, Martha went to her house and helped herself to all the choice silver, china and jewelry. She took the finest oil paintings off the wall and carted them off.

My husband is furious. He had heard his mother say many times that she wanted me to have her lovely things. He is threatening to sue his step-sister. I told him I would not permit it. Material things don't mean that much to me. Please back me up. He is on a rampage. — Blue Grass

Dear B. G.: I agree with you. But I do feel a lawyer should talk to Martha about a more equitable distribution of your mother-in-law's possessions since your husband has some legal rights.

How sad that your lovely mother-in-law didn't put her good intentions down on paper — in the form of a will. She could easily have made certain her possessions would be distributed as she wished them to be.

Administration Has Second Thoughts About PRR Loan

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Penn Central railroad loan guarantee, pure and simple, was just too hot a political potato.

Like a bridegroom with second thoughts after a hasty proposal, the Nixon administration left the property-rich but cash-poor railroad waiting at the church door. Without the $200 million the government promised, the road went bankrupt.

Question Remains

The questions remaining: Why did the administration make the promises? Why did it back out? What happened in between?

"I think one of the problems was that this is an administration with a lot of big business people and a lot of bankers," says a top congressional aide in the thick of the negotiations.

"They run to the thinking of being in the business community, rather than the government community. They felt there was nothing better they could do for the country than help out banks and get them out of trouble."

The administration backed away from the loan, the aide says, because it "could never have defended the decision publicly. Apparently cooler heads prevailed. There was the chance that the government would lose sizeable sums."

Political Mischief?

And a top official, who helped carry the ball for the White House, says "What really scared people was the potential for political mischief."

On one side was the administration with its friends, old ties and sympathies to big business —a vulnerable target on that score alone. On the other was a Congress, prodded by an unwavering Texas Democrat, unwilling to be criticized for possibly tossing away $200 million—or maybe more—in an election year.

According to the congressional aide, the decision was made in the high councils of government to help out the Penn Central "and then they went looking for a law to grant a loan under."

The vehicle decided on was the 1950 Defense Production Act, which provided a small or medium contractor could get a government guarantee to buy supplies necessary to carry out a specific contract. The act had never been used to bail out an ailing company.

Official Explains

The administration official explains the concern was that bankruptcy and receivership could disrupt the already inefficient operations of the Pennsy with serious repercussions on the financial market.

"The whole thing came up suddenly," he said. "The railroad began talking to Kennedy and Volpe in May."

Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy was at the May 7-10 gathering of the Business Council at Hot Springs, Va. Another who was there was Stuart T. Saunders, a Kennedy friend and Penn central board chairman until fired June 8.

Banking and railroad officials also met with Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe that month.

Despite wide knowledge in the financial community about the railroad's troubles, the efforts of bankers with the government went publicly unreported until June 9. At that time the White House called in a number of congressional leaders into the office of Senate Minority Leader Hugh Scott.

"They (the administration) arrived with large flip charts," says the congressional aide. "It was like a corporate session. They described the plight of the railroad and the seriousness of it and told of plans for the loan guarantee."

Expresses Concern

The aide says Texas Democrat Wright Patman, chairman of the House Banking and Currency Committee, expressed serious concern whether the Defense Department had the authority to lend the money. "To the Banking and Currency Committee it seemed a weird interpretation of the act as well as all the other questions it raised."

The administration official says Patman raised few questions at the meeting.

The official adds that "we went into the whole thing with a high degree of confidence we would get legislation" from Congress for $750 million loan guarantee authority to help the Penn Central and other railroads. The Defense Department would have been let off its $200 million hook once that authority was obtained.

"The whole thing hinged on the fact that the Defense Production Act would only be used for a short period," the official says, "on the theory it was the only power that the administration had.

"We had a definite interest in keeping the railroad running."

Confidence that Congress would buy the package, the official says, was prompted in part by the fact that Congress once before had set up such a fund—for the Interstate Commerce Commission between 1958 and 1963.

The Penn Central got a $24 million loan under the old ICC authority.

But Patman was still concerned. On June 11 he wrote Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, "the guarantee of hundreds of millions of dollars of capital to this corporation appears very risky under the figures presented by the administration . . . ."

Report Procedures

He told the board he wanted a report on its procedures in its investigation of the credit-worthiness of the Pennsy. And, Patman announced, his committee would hold hearings into the matter the week of June 22.

But on June 17, a committee staffer says, "we learned they had completed it (the loan investigation) and a courier was on a plane from New York with the papers, flying here to be met by someone from the Fed.

"He was going to meet him at the airport and drive to the Pentagon. It was really cloak and daggerish. They were continuing with the process despite the planned investigation. With the flight from New York we felt they were speeding things up to get around the investigation."

That night, Patman and five other members of his committee wired Navy Secretary John Chafee, urging "that you delay any final action on this matter until after the House Banking and Currency Committee has had a chance to thoroughly investigate this proposal."

At 8 a.m. the following morning, Patman telephoned David M. Packard, deputy secretary of defense, trying to persuade Packard to reconsider the plan.

Proposal Considered

The next day, June 19th, also at 8 a.m., Packard called back to say he had considered the proposal and felt he had to go ahead. Patman said he would rule that day.

That morning, at a committee hearing, Patman asked Comptroller Elmer Staats to investigate the entire matter. Staats promised the General Accounting Office would begin that afternoon.

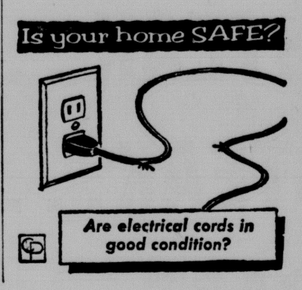

There were continuous high level meetings among administration officials that day.

"The growing feeling that afternoon was that the political aspects began to outweigh the positive asset," says an administration official. "What really scared people was the potential for political mischief. We knew they'd make hay out of connections and bankers' interests, the involvement of Nixon's old law firm."

Pentagon Backs

At 4:40 p.m. Patman again got a call from Packard. The deal was off. An announcement would be made shortly.

"In the light of growing uncertainty regarding the enactment of legislation," the Pentagon announcement said, it was decided not to go ahead with the guarantee. The White House was aware of the decision, a Defense Department spokesman said.

You can clean without phosphates.

No-phosphate products

Here are seven Amway products that contain absolutely no phosphate. Seven detergent and laundry products that will clean everything in your house, around your house, in your garage. . . including laundry. . .without putting one ounce of phosphate down your drain. Your independent Amway Distributor will show you how to use Amway's famous organic liquid detergent, L.O.C., along with Anti-Soil, Fabric Softener and Liquid drifab for your laundry, Dish Drops for your kitchen, and Car Wash for your garage. With no-phosphate products, clothes may not remain as white and bright as you're used to. . .but these Amway products will get your clothes truly clean and soft. . .make them water and soil resistant. . .even remove stubborn stains. . . without using one speck of phosphate.

Very low-phosphate products

And there are three more heavy duty Amway cleaners that contain such small amounts of phosphate as to be insignificant in ecology. Industroclean and Zoom (less than 1¼%)* make short work of cleaning toughest grease and grime on walls, floors, tile, machinery. Redu (under 3%)* bleaches out stubborn stains from clothes and fixtures. *(phosphate expressed as P_2O_5)

Low-phosphate yield concentrates

And when you use automatic laundry and dishwashing machines and need the high performance cleaning capability that only products containing phosphate can give. . .then you will clean best, most economically, yet use minimum phosphate by using these five concentrated products Amway makes for these special purposes. Percentages of phosphate by weight or volume are not a meaningful comparison . . .it's "grams per washload" that count. And, if you follow the Amway package directions for minimum amount use, you will use far less of Amway Concentrates than of ordinary cleaners, and put less phosphate in the water. Compare these Amway "grams of phosphate per washload" figures of Amway's current production with other brands of the same type of product:

	APPROX. PHOSPHATE PER WASHLOAD (P_2O_5) GMS.	OZ.	PHOSPHATE % IN PRE AS (P_2O_5)
SA-8 Laundry Detergent: in top-loaders	11-1/2	1/3	23.5%
SA-8 Laundry Detergent: in side-loaders	5-3/8	1/6	23.5%
Tri-Zyme Enzyme Pre-soak	10	1/3	20%
Dry Chlorine Bleach: in top-loaders	5	1/6	14.94%
Dry Chlorine Bleach: in side-loaders	2-1/2	1/12	14.94%
Smashing White Pre-soak Softener	10-1/2	1/3	14.81%
Dishwasher Compound for Machines	3-2/3	1/8	24.9%

Remember — it's not "phosphate in the box" or "phosphate on the shelf" that counts. . .it's phosphate "down the drain" that you are concerned about.

Amway's heavy duty formulas are so concentrated and so high in cleaning power that you need only small amounts to do the work. Of course, Amway uses only biodegradable surfactants in all of its detergent products. But whenever possible Amway also uses phosphate substitutes in its formulas to the extent they are available in the world market. So whether you feel you should use no phosphate, or very little phosphate, or low yield phosphate products. . . your independent Amway Distributor can serve you, right in your home, with the best products to do every cleaning and laundry job.

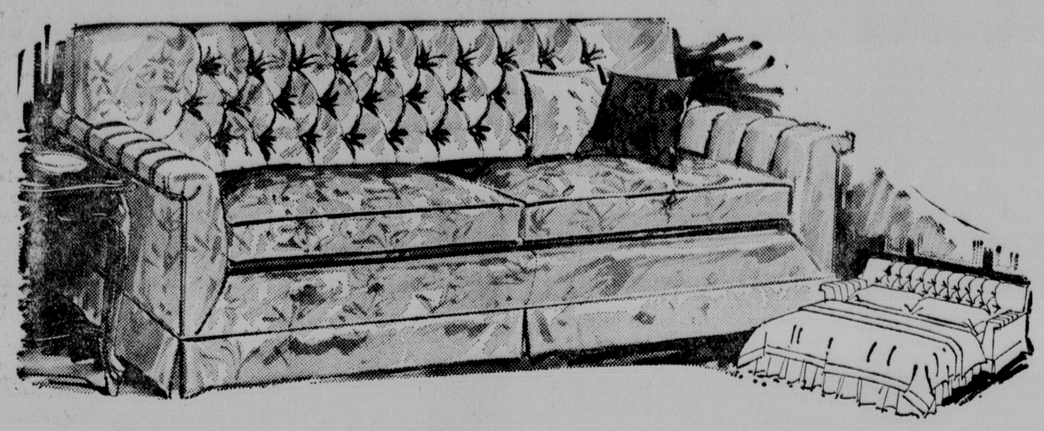

In the forefront for clean water.

Government Workers Are Truthful About Economy

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Nobody in government tampers with economic statistics to suit political ends. That is the proud reputation government workers seek to uphold, and it is generally agreed they uphold it well.

The May unemployment figure of 5 per cent, for example, obviously shocked and discomforted the administration, but it was released on schedule, as it generally is.

And figures showing a sharp rise in the cost of living followed by one day—and somewhat undermined—President Nixon's attempt to assure Americans that his anti-inflation campaign was close to the mark.

Errors Possible

Error, however, is another thing, and two highly regarded professors believe there is a huge one in the compilation of the Wholesale Price Index, one of the most widely followed barometers of inflation.

The index, they say, continues to rise lately when it should be falling. It is making the Nixon administration anti-inflation effort look poorer than it is. And it may even be upsetting Federal Reserve Board policy.

Stigler Confident

The thesis is put forth by George Stigler of the University of Chicago and James Kindahl of the University of Massachusetts and is to be published June 26 as "The Behavior of Industrial Prices" by the National Bureau of Economic Research.

Says Stigler, "I am absolutely confident that there has been extensive price cutting during the slowdown of the past six to eight months: but these cuts have not showed up in the government's WPI."

This means, Stigler adds, that the Federal Reserve has had imperfect data on which to base monetary policy. It means also that other government agencies have been misled in charting gross national product and productivity.

The problem, as the authors see it, is that the venerable WPI is based on prices that sellers list in their catalogs, taking into account only standard discounts.

Buyers Pay Less

However, the authors argue, buyers actually pay less through special discounts, tie-in sales, introductory offers, shipping concessions and so on.

They suggest that the index be adjusted for these more subtle discounts and other variables. Buyers, they feel, would be able to supply more accurate data than sellers. Then there should be a Buyers' Price Index.

Analysts at the Bureau of Labor Statistics are said to be interested in running a pilot study of the Stigler-Kindahl proposal but have been unable to convince Congress to supply the estimated $100,000 needed.

Won't Reduce Prices

The authors comment that a buyers' index might more accurately reflect a slowdown in the economy and explain the puzzling inertia of the Wholesale Price Index to reflect this slowdown.

Businessmen today may continue to list prices at a certain level, they say, rather than reduce them officially because of a feeling that inflation may continue and that the government may act one day to control further price hikes.

Senators Backing Safety Air Bag For Automobiles

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twenty senators joined Tuesday in a letter to Transportation Secretary John Volpe urging him to stand by his proposal to require all cars sold after Jan. 1, 1972 to be equipped with an inflatable safety air bag.

Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, chairman of the Senate consumer subcommittee, said he had circulated the letter because of what he termed mounting industry pressure to delay implementation of the proposed inflatable occupant restraint system popularly known as the air bag.

The senator's letter to Volpe said they had been informed his office had concluded "the air bag system, in its present state of development, has high reliability and will be effective in protecting occupants in most crash situations."

Upper Peninsula Students Tops In Acheivement

LANSING (AP) — Detroit's massive public school system produced the lowest scores in the first statewide assessment of student achievement according to preliminary findings released Tuesday by the State Board of Education.

Students in the Upper Peninsula scored highest on the tests, which were given to fourth and seventh grade students last winter, the board said.

The board released only very general findings Tuesday, but said that by the end of next month, every school board in the state would be given a school-by-school report on test scores in its district. Those results would not be made public by the state, the board said, but added that local administrators would be encouraged to report the results to the public.

Suggests Probe Of Rail Carriers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two congressmen have called for an investigation of all the nation's rail carriers following Penn Central's reorganization under bankruptcy laws.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits and Rep. Ogden Reid, New York Republicans, reported they would seek a joint congressional investigation. Moments earlier Javits announced he was prepared to introduce a bill to set up a $750-million loan guarantee program for railroads.

A similar bill has been introduced in the House.

The Penn Central reorganized under an order issued by U.S. District Judge C. William Kraft Jr. in Philadelphia.

Transportation Secretary John Volpe said he thinks the railroad will continue to operate normally if the bankruptcy case is handled properly.

The announcement of the reorganization caused a flurry of trading on the New York Stock Exchange Monday and the price of the stock closed at $6.50, down $4.63. Trading was delayed because of an influx of orders until just before the market's close, when 450,000 shares changed hands.

Labor Unit Aide

EAST LANSING (AP) — Dr. Daniel Sturt, director of the Rural Manpower Center at Michigan State University, has been named Director of the Farm Labor and Rural Manpower service with the U.S. Department of Labor effective Aug. 1. His responsibilities will include overseeing programs of job development and vocational training in rural areas.

Hospital Group Director Swings Back At Nader

LANSING (AP) — Ralph Nader's charges of accidental hospital electrocution of patients are "totally alien to the truth" in Michigan, according to H. Allan Barth, executive director of the Michigan Hospital Association.

Nader, known for his crusades in behalf of the consumer, accused hospitals in a Detroit speech June 16 of electrocuting 3,000 patients each year through faulty use of electrical equipment. Hospitals and physicians are covering up the true causes of deaths by usually atributing them to cardiac arrests, Nader also charged.

"Constant research, inspections and improvements are going on ceaselessly in all of our hospitals in Michigan to absolutely guarantee that every safety precaution is used for the welfare of our patients," Barth said Tuesday in reply to Nader's comments.

"If reported correctly," Barth said, "Mr. Nader's charges are totally alien to the truth as it exists, at least in Michigan."

3 Reappointments

LANSING (AP)—Gov. William Milliken has reappointed three members of the State Board of Boiler Rules for terms ending June 30, 1974. Renamed were John Johnston of Ferrysburg, Neil Vierson Jr. of Grand Rapids and Clarence Locke of Milford.

Briefly Told

1970 graduates of Bay de Noc Community College can pick up their diplomas in the student personnel office at the college.

Court Will Rule Of Grand Rapids' Official's Ouster

GRAND RAPIDS (AP) — City commissioners will go to court in an effort to remove Comptroller Jack Harper from his office because the comptroller is running for the State Legislature.

The commission voted 4-2 Tuesday to seek court action against Harper on grounds that the City Charter forbids holding city office while running for another post.

Harper has argued that he is a candidate for nomination in the Democratic primary Aug. 4. He is seeking a Michigan House seat from the 93rd District.

Jackie Gleason Granted Divorce

NEW YORK (AP) — Jackie Gleason has been awarded a divorce from his wife of 34 years, ending a precedent-setting case.

The decree was granted recently in state Supreme Court.

Genevieve Gleason obtained a legal separation from the comedian in 1954 on an uncontested charge of abandonment.

Under legal precedent in the state, only she could have begun a divorce action because he was viewed by the law as the guilty party.

However, in 1967 a new law added a two-year legal separation as a ground for divorce.

In the Gleason case, the state's highest court, the Court of Appeals, held for the first time that if the couple were legally separated for that time, it made no difference which partner initially had been designated guilty.

Mrs. Gleason will receive more than $100,000 a year in alimony.

A-Power Plant Running Into More Trouble

KALAMAZOO (AP) — Federal regulations could mean closing a nuclear plant on Lake Michigan, even if the Atomic Energy Commission allows it to open this year, an AEC hearing was told Tuesday.

Bert Atwood, a representative of the Department of the Interior, made the comment as hearing began on Consumers Power Company's Palisades plant near South Haven. The company is seeking an operating license from the AEC.

In a statement representing what he said are the views of the secretary of the interior, Atwood contended that the Palisades plant must conform to state and federal water quality standards or its license will terminate April 3, 1973.

However, Atwood conceded that no federal water quality standards have yet been established.

And Atwood said Michigan's present standards governing discharges of heated water into Lake Michigan are not acceptable to the Interior Department.

Atwood contended that the Palisades plant, as it is now designed, "will not be able to comply with state-federal standards when they are approved."

He would not specify what the standards for discharging heated water will be. Present plans call for the Palisades plant to discharge water at from 25 to 28 degrees warmer than that of Lake Michigan.

Eight other witnesses testified on the first day of the hearings. Only one, Donald Hanson, chairman of the Van Buren County Board of Commissioners, urged the hearing board to grant the operating license.

Hanson spoke of the jobs and power supplies the plant would provide, but other speakers warned of what they said were possible dangers from its discharges.

Examination Set For Detroit GI In Murder Case

JACKSON (AP)— Army Pvt. Frank K. Young, 21, of Detroit faced a July 2 preliminary examination today in connection with the beating death of a Wayne County social worker killed on a mercy mission to help a foster mother.

Young, stationed at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., was charged Tuesday with the death of Mrs. Carole Ann Christoff, 24, of Ann Arbor, whose body was found near an abandoned farmhouse west of here Monday. She died in a hospital early Tuesday.

Jackson County police theorized Mrs. Christoff picked up a hitch-hiker in her car en route to her Ann Arbor home from Detroit. Young was arrested in Mrs. Christoff's car near M-99 and I-94 near the Jackson-Calhoun County line. He was being held on an open charge of murder.

Takes PR Post

DETROIT (AP) — John W. Hushen, press secretary to Sen. Robert Griffin, R-Mich., and former Detroit News reporter, was named today as director of public information for the U.S. Department of Justice.

Atty. Gen. John M. Mitchell announced Hushen would replace current information officer, Jack C. Landau, in the $35,500-a-year job.

Young Indians Take Over U.P. Lighthouse Site

SAULT STE. MARIE (AP)—A group of young Indians planned today to take over the historic Iroquois Point Lighthouse, 25 miles west of here, which they claim is rightfully theirs under two ancient and long-ignored treaties.

Plans for "reclaiming" the lighthouse—built in 1870 and opened to tourists for the last three years—were made Tuesday by more than 100 youths of Indian descent attending an Indian youth symposium held at Lake Superior State College.

"The Indians plan to reclaim this land and structure as terms of the Treaty of 1836 and the Treaty of 1868 have never been honored by the government," said the Rev. James Williams pastor of St. Catherine's Parish which serves the Bay Mills Indian community.

He said the Indians would move into the lighthouse at 2 p.m. in action similar to the Indian takeover of Alcatraz Island off San Francisco, earlier this year.

Richard Ruppenthal, district ranger for the Hiawatha National Forest, an area including the lighthouse, said he is conferring with his superiors about response to the Indians planned seizure.

Briefly Told

The Promenders Square Dance Club of Escanaba will sponsor a dance on Saturday, June 27, at the Eagles Club, 608 Ludington St., Escanaba. Art Gorski will be the caller, with dancing from 8:30 to 11:30. All square dancers are invited.

Edward Sauter, Rte. 1, Escanaba, who became lost Tuesday afternoon in Ford River Township where he had been cutting trees under a permit issued by the Department of Natural Resources for a snowmobile trail, walked out of the woods about 10 a.m. today near Peterson's Gift Shop on M-35 south of Escanaba, DNR officers said.

The loftiest location in the United States is Mt. McKinley in Alaska, with an elevation of 20,320 feet.

Truckers' Point System Thrown In Milliken's Lap

LANSING (AP) — By the barest of majorities, the Michigan House has voted to join with the Senate in tossing Gov. William G. Milliken a political hot potato that allows truckers twice as many points against their driving licenses as many other motorists.

The bill, subject of strong lobbying efforts by the Michigan Teamsters' Union, changes the State Vehicle Code to allow a motorist to hold both an ordinary operator's license and a separate chauffeur's license.

Tax Rates Higher For Phone Firms

LANSING (AP) — Michigan telephone companies will be paying more than $4 million more in property taxes this year because of higher state valuation announced by the Board of Assessors.

The board, which fixes the value of certain utilities for property taxing, announced Monday that the final 1970 assessed valuations of the utilities reached an all-time high of more than $1.078 billion, compared with $1.012 billion for 1969.

Total taxes on the 1970 vaulation amount to nearly $51.03 million, compared with a total of $46.6 million for 1969, the board reported.

The board said 1970 assessed property valuation for Michigan's telephone and telegraph companies totaled nearly $865.1 million, up nearly $67 million from last year.

Valuation for express companies totaled $1.05 million this year, compared with $950,000 for 1969.

Valuation was down for railroad companies ($55,000), car loaning companies ($1.3 million) and sleeping car companies ($5,000).

only one or the other may be held now.

In addition, penalty points for traffic violations could be charged against either license. Thus, truckers could collect up to 24 penalty points over a two-year period, instead of the present maximum of 12 from both personal and on-the-job violations.

The 56-49 House roll call, exactly the minimum required for passage, came Tuesday after rejection of numerous amendments aimed at scuttling or restricting the new latitude proposed for cabbies, deliverymen, cross-country haulers and others in similar jobs.

Opponents moved a reconsideration vote today on the issue. One even called for Milliken to veto the bill. "I'd have no respect for the governor if he didn't veto this legislation," said Rep. Edgar Geerlings, R-Muskegon.

But Milliken's decision on the bill—he could let it become law without signing it—could not be made simply on the issue of party loyalties. The bill's prime sponsors in the Senate are GOP Appropriations Committee Chairman Charles O. Zollar of Benton Harbor and Democratic Minority Leader George S. Fitzgerald.

Opponents charged the bill circumvents the state's traffic safety program and pointed to statements from the federal highway administration's bureau of motor carriers, Michigan State Police and Secretary of State James M. Hare opposing it.

Under a federal decision effective Jan. 1, truckers whose licenses are suspended or revoked would face being barred by the Motor Carriers Bureau from interstate hauling.

The Michigan Traffic Safety Association, a private agency interested in driving and transportation affairs, said in its June 19 bulletin that Michigan Teamsters were attempting "to ram the bill through ..to reduce the risk of a driver receiving the federal penalty."

Some legislators also deplored what they hinted had been a bit of ramming by Majority Democrats, particularly House Speaker William A. Ryan, who sent the bill to the Committee on Roads and Bridges instead of Public Safety.

Rep. James Tierney, D-Garden City, public safety chairman, opposed the bill, and a member of his committee, Rep. Quincy Hoffman, R-Applegate, charged the bill had been reported out when no Republicans were present at the committee's meeting.

Rep. Raymond Smit, R-Ann Arbor, who sponsored most of the defeated amendments to curb the special privilege, said the bill "demonstrates the dismal performance of traffic safety in this state."

Supporters contended, however, that truck drivers, better and more careful because of professional pride and long practice, deserved special consideration.

Rep. Harold Ziegler, one of the few House Republicans to support the bill, said, "to compare the 5,000 miles a year that my 80-year-old mother drives against the 300,000 miles of the average trucker is absurd. They need a double standard and they should have it," he said.

Hormone Use Said Lowering Beef Quality

WASHINGTON (AP) — Widespread use of an artificial hormone in fattening cattle has lowered the quality of beef sold to consumers, according to officials of several meat packing firms.

But government officials, hormone manufacturers and other cattle industry sources dispute the packers' contention.

The hormone—known as DES—is fed to an estimated three-fourths of the 40 million cattle slaughtered annually in the United States.

Because it has caused cancer in laboratory animals, the amount of the hormone added to cattle feed is limited by federal law. The law also states "no residues" of DES are allowed in meat reaching consumers, and that no additives are permitted which harm the animal being fed them.

However, Agriculture Department records show that its inspectors have detected residues of the hormone in about 1 of every 200 cattle checked. Meat with residues is condemned when found, but one government official said "I don't see how you can keep it all out."

Several meat packers said in interviews that the hormone, also known as diethylstilbestrol or stilbestrol, reduces beef quality.

"Meat today is not up to the texture of meat as we've known it over the years," said one Los Angeles packing house executive. "We took it up with government meat inspectors and they said soft and mushy meat had no harmful effects. But you wonder."

Cal Santare of the Western States Meat Packers Association says stilbestrol has a tendency to dissolve the marbling fat in beef. "The meat is very soft and watery," he said.

Elections At-A-Glance

By The Associated Press

New York Primary

Arthur J. Goldberg, 61, former Supreme Court justice, Tuesday defeated upstate plastics millionaire Howard Samuels, 50, for the Democratic nomination to face Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller this fall.

Rep. Richard L. Ottinger was the victor in a four-man senatorial primary to oppose GOP Sen. Charles E. Goodell. State Sen. Basil Paterson of Harlem became the first Negro nominated for lieutenant governor in the state.

Veteran Reps. Adam Clayton Powell and Leonard Farbstein, both of Manhattan, lost bids for renomination.

S.C. Congressional

Rep. John L. McMillan won Democratic renomination, defeating Dr. Claud Stephens, a Negro by a wide margin in a runoff election.

Antiwar Vote

A resolution on the Boulder, Colo., municipal election ballot which urged prompt withdrawal of U.S. forces from Southeast Asia was defeated by 289 votes-4,690 to 4,401.

GM Offers Lunch To Nader's Unit

DETROIT (AP)—The leader of a Ralph Nader team that plans to investigate General Motors Corp. has received an invitation for lunch on Thursday from GM President Edward N. Cole.

John Finch, head of the team, said he received the invitation when he called Cole for an appointment.

Interviews are planned with the directors of other auto companies as well, Finch said.

A second-year law student at the University of Michigan, 26-year-old Finch heads the General Motors Improvement Project (GMIP) a team of 10 "Nader's Raiders" who will inquire into GM's "corporate responsibility" this summer.

Finch said his group wanted to talk to the other auto magnates to determine how GM's policies affect them.

Finch's appointment as head of the team was announced Saturday by Nader himself. Finch said he has already been working on preliminary spadework since mid-March.

Other members of the team include six law students, a business student and an undergraduate in sociology.

2 Filibusters Could Hinder Senate Work

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, already embarked on an unusual two-shift day, faces an even more unusual prospect—the possibility of having two filibuster—like debates going at the same time.

The chance arose Tuesday with the start of debate on a $4.5-billion education appropriations bill that carries three House-passed riders aimed at slowing school desegregation.

Debate began in the early evening after the Senate, under a special agreement to split its time, spent another fruitless day arguing a proposal to curb Indochina spending. Republicans have blocked a vote on that for more than a month.

Within two hours, however, the education debate broke off after Republican Leader Hugh Scott moved to strike a House-imposed rider legalizing the freedom-of-choice approach to school desegregation.

"I served notice there would be no vote tonight," said Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., who was active in losing efforts to retain the same amendments in education bills for the past two years.

Allen, who held the floor for days at a time in those earlier battles, denied any intention to filibuster.

He added, however, that he and other Southern Democrats expected to have quite a bit to say when debate resumed.

Allen and others also are expected to speak at length before allowing votes on efforts to strike the other two riders, outlawing busing of school children.

Market Recovers After Slow Start

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market recovered much of its sharp losses in moderately active trading today.

By noon, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 0.41 at 697.70. Early in the session the Dow average had been off more than 8 points.

Analysts attributed the sharp early slide to investor concern, about the possibility of further corporate liquidity problems in the wake of Penn Central's bankruptcy petition.

They said some selling interest that was on the decline was beginning to move back into the market.

Some analysts said part of the selling was emotional, although a genuine corporate liquidity problem existed.

Penn Central was up 3/8 at 8 by midday, however.

Declines still overwhelmed advances at noon on the New York Stock Exchange, with losing issues leading gainers by more than 4 to 1.

The Big Board ticker tape ran one minute behind shortly before noon.

Pet Casket Firm Expands In City

A firm which has been operated out of the president's basement is expanding and being relocated.

Hoegh Pet Casket Co., a division of Hoegh Industries, Inc., is moving into a building at 901 Minesota Ave. formerly owned by Mrs. John Wahowiak, whose late husband operated a shoe repair shop.

Denis Hoegh, president of the firm, pointed out that the building is being remodeled to accommodate the manufacture of pet caskets and will include a show room. He said response to national advertising has been good.

Dennis J. Hoegh

Founded in 1959

The caskets are constructed with four styrene shells, two of which are cemented together for the bottom and two for the top. The lid is made to fit in a groove in the bottom. A special adhesive is used to seal the casket. Two sizes are marketed.

The company was founded in 1959 by Roy Gaddis, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, nationally famous for his dog racing teams and his ability to train animals. Upon the death of his lead dog in 1959, Gaddis designed a special pet casket as a memorial to his dog and many of his friends and associates requested that he make one for their pets. Molds were made and the company was founded.

Purchases Business

In 1966 Hoegh, then an employe of the company, purchased the business and it was incorporated in Michigan.

Hoegh operated from the basement of his home at 505 Minneapolis Ave. until purchasing the building on Minnesota Ave. which will provide adequate space.

Lloyd Nyberg, 1123 Michigan Ave., is vice president of the industry. The corporation was formed by a group of businessmen from Escanaba and Gladstone.

The company deals directly with pet cemeteries throughout the world reached through advertisements in leading national and pet magazines.

Hoegh plans to exhibit at the Pet Industry Distributors Association show at the Conrad Hilton Hotel in Chicago July 17.

The program will open with devotions led by Mrs. Arthur Laughbaum. A trio composed of Mrs. Alcott Erickson, Miss Inez Nyberg and Mrs. Gilbert Larson will sing a Swedish song, "Lapp Flicken," and Mrs. Clifford Goodman and Alcott Erickson will play a piano duet, "Bjorneborgares March." The program will conclude with the benediction by The Rev. Kent Palmquist.

Hostesses for the evening will be Mrs. Kent Palmquist and Mrs. Harold Nelson.

Stock Prices Off 18 Points

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices plummeted Tuesday as repercussions of the Penn Central bankruptcy petition swept through Wall Street.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks fell 18 points to close at 689.11, a 2.51 per cent loss.

Analysts said investors were showing mounting concern over the financial position of other companies in light of the Penn Central's decision Sunday to file a bankruptcy petition for its railroad subsidiary.

Investor worries over Chrysler, for example, led to a large influx of orders that delayed trading until late in the afternoon, analysts said.

Although the company said it was operating on a profitable basis, it closed off $2.63 at $16.63.

When trading is delayed because of a large influx of orders, it generally means there is an imbalance of buy and sell orders and a price cannot be arrived at on the trading floor.

Penn Central, which did not open until the closing bell, gained $1.12 to $7.60. Analysts said they could not explain the stock's increase.

After the close of trading, the New York Stock Exchange Board of Governors announced the suspension in trading of 21 railroad bonds and six railroad stocks indirectly involved with Penn Central.

Exchange officials said Penn Central Transportation Co., the subsidiary, had notified the exchange it was not certain it could guarantee the interest and principle on some of the bonds. The exchange said the other bonds and stocks were issued by railroads whose incomes are partially derived from track leases to Penn Central.

The exchange said trading in the common stock of Penn Central Co., the parent company, was not suspended. It said Penn Central Transportation Co. bonds would continue to be traded under a special designation.

Developed By Rock Firm

'Yippo' May Mean 'Yippee' For U.P. Timber Producers

A machine by the impossible name of "Yippo" might well cause Upper Peninsula small woods producers to yell "Yippee!" if tests continue to show favorable results.

"Yippo" in Finnish means piece-worker and two Finnish residents of Rock are responsible for the development of this piece of machinery, which is a portable delimber and bucker for pulpwood productions. Upper Great Lakes Timber, Inc., UPCAP and friends have been helpful to Clayton Kanerva and Robert Koski, who claim they did not invent but "devised" Yippo.

Clayton Kanerva

One of the major problems facing Upper Peninsula woods industry is how producers can gear themselves to produce the

Robert Koski

pulpwood which will be needed as a result of Mead's expansion and expansion plans for other mills in the area.

Orders Increase

One such operation is K & K (Kanerva and Koski) of Rock. They have been timber producers and with Koski's particular inventive mechanical mind, they opened their own machine shop primarily for the maintenance of their own equipment.

As other operators, in a variety of ways, found a source for their own maintenance needs, K & K found itself with a growing load of maintenance orders. They sought business and came up with orders from such widely divergent places as K. I. Sawyer AFB for ground equipment maintenance and White Pine Copper for personnel cars.

As they found their own timber operations restricted by small contracts and limited stumpage, and harassed by decreasing availability of labor supply (the disappearing piece worker) they turned to their own inventive area to discover what kind of processor they might create. They had worked with Emil Gafner of Escanaba and some of his suggestions have been invaluable to them.

Cost Problem

The big problem of the producer in meeting the higher woods demand is that mechanization is the prime answer. But this means higher capital costs, and many producers cannot meet the financial demands of expensive equipment.

K & K set to work on a low cost unit. They could not come up with one that would demand from $40,000 to $100,000 which is the price range for most of the sophisticated models now on the market.

The results of their efforts was Yippo — a portable unit which can be towed to any location. This machine will handle an entire tree, limbs and all, that have been cut in any stand and skidded to a landing from which Yippo operates.

Full trees are inserted into the processor, with a loader attached to the machine, and the tree is drawn through a set of blades which delimb it, into a saw which cuts it into standard 100-inch lengths and then drops to pieces into a cradle, from which they can be loaded into truck or pulp deck.. With cradles at either side, it is possible to process two species at the same time and sort them while the machine is in operation. The Yippo processor can be handled by one man.

Cuts Man Power

Benefits from such a machine are many. It cuts down the number of men required, when manpower is in short supply. One man can process 15 to 20 cords of pulpwood a day provided, of course, the stand has the capacity to bring that supply to the machine. Thirteen cords a day for such an operation is considered the breakeven point. The entire operation of felling, skidding and machine processing can be done by three men, in contrast to the five to seven required by conventional methods.

The machine will sell for well under $20,000 and would be the only equipment a small producer would need in addition to his own skidder which is basic machinery for any operation.

Machine Mobile

"We have built a very mobile machine, one which can be moved from place to place with a pick-up truck, and easily towed on the highway with a dolly attachment that goes with the unit," said Bob Koski.

Clayton Kanerva, the other partner, pointed out "Like most of us in northern Michigan we have been searching for new answers for the man seeking to make his living in the woods. Timber, Inc., has put it correctly — we need new answers for more production, for more efficiency, better pay and profits. And this involves a master question: How do you do all this in the face of the disappearing woods piece workers.

"While we have a metal fabricating plant, our woods problems have been highly important to us. It was natural, then, we would turn to our resources within the metal shop for some of the answers," he said.

Get Assistance

"With the wonderful assistance of UPCAP we were able to negotiate loans to put our metal shop on a modern basis. With the assistance of Timber, Inc., we have been able to test Yippo on other acreages. Emil Gafner made the valuable suggestion we add the delimber to the original bucker.

"Both Bob and I are aware of the availabilities on the present market. But they were too rich for our blood, and, we knew, far beyond the budgetary abilities of most of the producers in the Upper Peninsula. With such equipment a breakeven point was out of sight. With Koski's inventive turn of mind, we looked to our own shop and successively came up with a skidder, then a combination skidder and bucker and, finally, Yippo was born, combining the capacities of skidding, delimbing and bucking, plus cradling for loading facilitation."

There is more to the K & K story.

The machine has been tested and technical reports are available for the trade. It will be further tested and there is every indication Yippo will meet many of the answers. It is not the complete answer, but for K & K it means no return to the old days and the old methods, and it means an opportunity to stay in the black on all its operations.

Hope For Rock

But a human interest story goes beyond that.

Robert Koski and Clayton Kanerva are products of Rock, a small town. Its main street dwindles into a lane between abandoned farms that were once productive farm units supporting families. Some of these are now retirement houses for people who still like the rural atmosphere, find the quiet tempo of a small community to their liking and the low-budget living compatible with low incomes.

And Rock's youngsters graduate from high school and look elsewhere for employment—and for opportunity. The farms remain abandoned, the small business is slowly fading out.

Kanerva, however, remembers the days when, as a boy, he used to see farms and farm crops instead of deserted homes and land returning to wild grass and second growth.

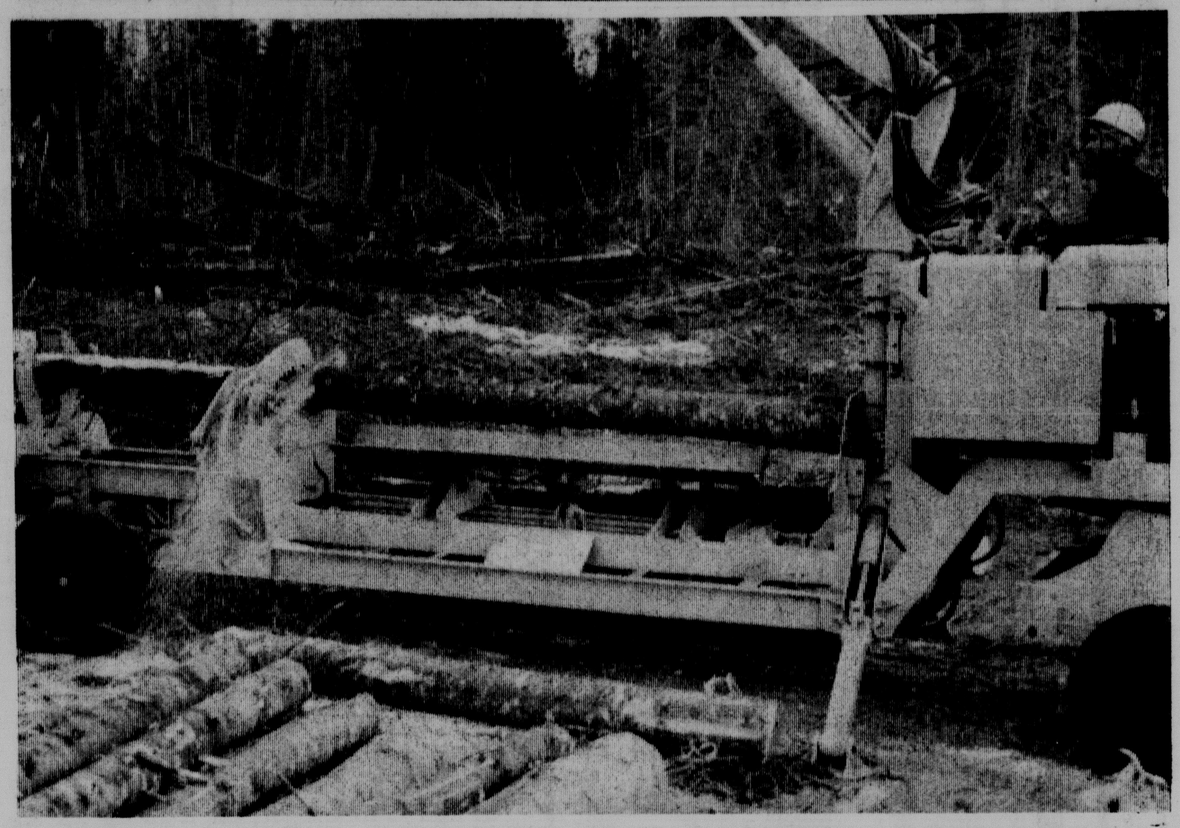

Crossroads of U.P.?

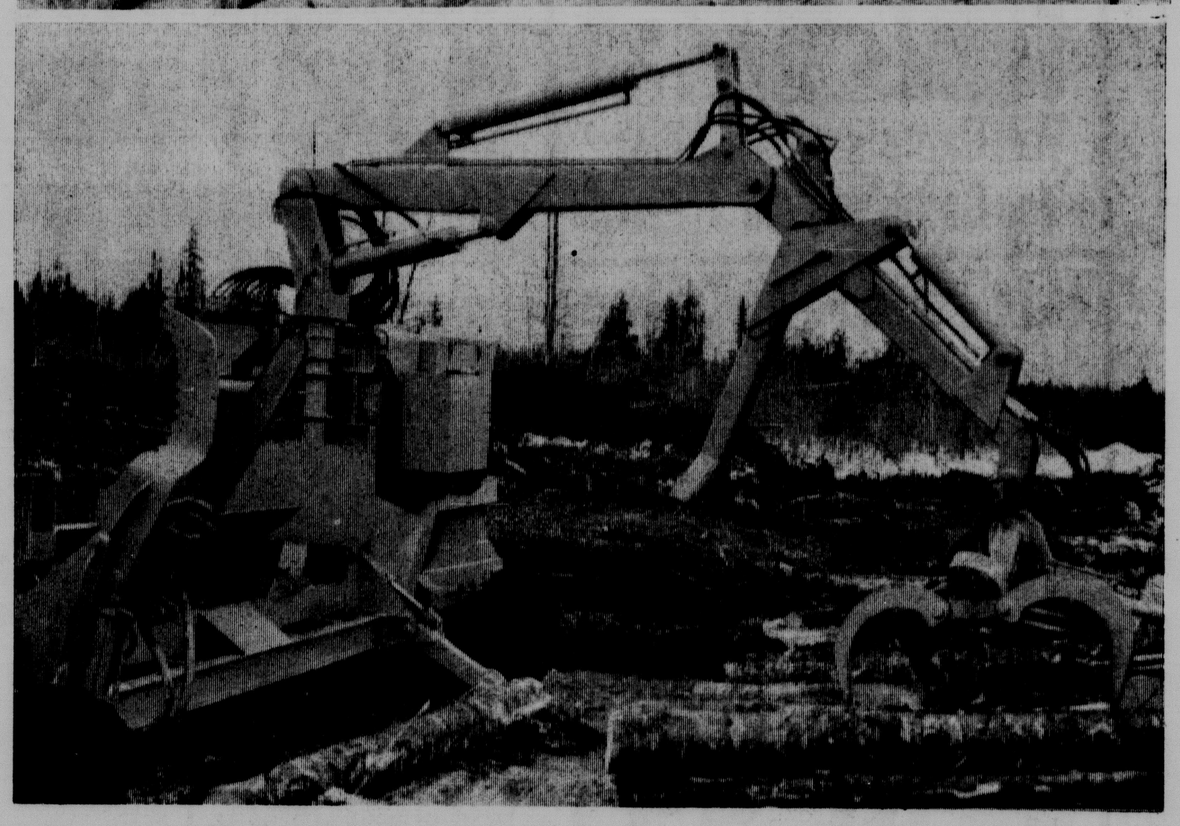

He would like to see it change and he would want to help make the change possible. He wants to see Rock the cross roads of the Peninsula, located as it is almost in the geographic center of the north straits country. He would want to see farms again, a bustling community a place for high school graduates to find that employment and opportunity they now seek elsewhere.

Whether Koski and Kanerva live to see this dream come true is a question. But "Yippo" could mean a location in Rock for an established business. It could mean just a couple more men being hired, a few more families being located and supported. It could mean a great service for the area.

Then maybe, Kanerva, at heart himself a piece-worker, and Bob Koski, who feels deeply the same dreams Kanerva discusses, maybe the two of them might just live to see a mechanical piece worker — the Yippo — help make that dream come true.

THE 'YIPPO' TIMBER HARVESTING MACHINE developed by K&K Manufacturing Co. of Rock has shown great promise in efforts to speed up timber harvesting. Top, an entire tree is carried to the machine. Center, the tree is sawed into standard lengths. Below, the delimbed pulpwood logs are piled.

Bargain-Hunting On Sunday Hectic Affair

By SHIRLEY CHRISTIAN

NEW YORK (AP— We met on the D-train platform of the Columbus Circle subway station.

I was late. I'm always late. I've been late for Jim Garrison and the Queen of England, so it doesn't upset me.

"We were taking the next train whether you were here or not," said Sue, who I suspect was a 6-month baby.

Thus began the quest to find fashion success on a Sunday morning on the Lower East Side.

Narrow, dirty Orchard Street already was jammed when we arrived. We started searching out the promised bargain spots. Everyone else was doing the same.

We fought our way into the first shop and started shoving back the dresses on the packed racks. Mary was ecstatic.

"This is $90 on Fifth Avenue," she said and pointed to a $60 tag on one of those things with the see-through midriff.

Three-piece pants suits hung on racks above us with enticing $7 price tags. Mary tried on the skirt and jacket and stood before a mirror.

"That's an Eisenhower jacket," I said. "My mother used to have one."

Mary, who still has a "Ted in '72" button, couldn't resist the bargain, even for politics.

At the next stop, a man was selling dresses outside for $2.

"They'll cost $5 inside," he yelled as we went through the door.

The outer room was pandemonium, the second room was twice as bad, and to get there we had to squeeze through a hall about three feet wide crowded with racks of clothes and people going both directions.

People were ripping dresses off hangers and yelling for saleswomen. Ten or more people were lined up outside each of the tiny dressing rooms, and impatient men waited around the edges. One desperate woman undressed and began trying on dresses in the midst of it all.

The crowd took away our enthusiasm, and we fought our way to the sidewalk, almost as crowded by now.

We stopped at the entrance to a handbag store. "Too many people inside. You'll have to wait," said a man at the door. "Fire laws, you know."

We waited, and waited, and waited some more. He finally signaled us inside. We took a number —— No. 164, and an uncountable number ahead of us. Another wait.

I edged up to a counter and started to look at the five or six purses lined up on top.

"Those are my wife's bags," snapped a male voice at my elbow.

Next to us, a woman with a Norell scarf over her shoulder was waving two crisp, one hundred dollar bills to get a salesman's attention.

Sue finally bought a handbag. "Eight dollars cheaper than uptown," she bragged.

And me? I bought nothing — and promised myself an airline ticket to the wide open spaces.

Tart Cherry Crop Increase Expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — This year's crop of tart cherries in five Great Lakes states is expected to total 147,200 tons, an increase of eight per cent from 1969 and 14 per cent more than 1968 output, says the Agriculture Department.

Production was estimated larger in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Wisconsin but down one per cent in Michigan because of poor weather conditions, the department said.

The five-state area accounts for most of the nation's tart cherry production, estimated nationally this year at 156,850 tons.

Changes Proposed In Ads Concerning Workers' Sex

DETROIT (AP) — The Michigan Civil Rights Commission has taken steps to remove from newspaper want ad sections all classifications by sex.

The commission is warning 400 private employment agencies and all Michigan employers that they will be prosecuted for unlawful discrimination if they continue to advertise job openings in classified columns under the headings "Male", "Female", "Men" or "Women".

The commission is sending the agencies and employers a directive informing them that all advertisements must "be placed in a position or worded in such a manner as to make it apparent that jobs are available without regard to sex."

While ordering newspapers to revise their want ad sections to eliminate the sex classifications, the commission directive reminds employers that law prohibits age and sex discrimination unless "based on law, regulation, the requirement of any federal or state training or employment program or on a bona fide occupational qualification."

The commission said it reserves sole right to determine when a "bona fide occupational qualification" permits an employer to refer to sex in his ad.

Michigan Jobless Number 224,000

DETROIT (AP)— Michigan's percentage of unemployed remained at 6.2 in mid-May, unchanged from a month earlier, with 224,000 reported idle over the state as a whole.

The Detroit area unemployment rate was 5.8 per cent for both months, with 101,600 reported idle in mid-May.

Michigan's unemployment rate is fifth highest in the nation, according to the State Employment Security Commission.

The commission reported unemployment compensation paid out in May totaled $18.2 million, bringing 1970 payments to $104.3 million and lowering available funds for benefits to $600.3 million.

The state's total labor force was reported to have been 3,581,800 in mid-April and to have advanced to 3,600,700 by mid-May, with entrance of college and high school graduates accounting for most of the gain.

Good Street Lighting Essential For Safety

NEW YORK (AP) — Are your community's streets adequately lighted? If they're not, the consequences can be fatal, says the Street and Highway Safety Lighting Bureau.

Less than 10 per cent of America's residential streets are adequately lighted the Bureau reports, adding that the rate of violent crime and of auto accidents is many times higher on dark than on well illuminated streets.

The Bureau offers the following advice in judging a community's street lighting:

1. Check to see that fixtures are at least 20 to 30 feet above the roadway. This assures adequate lighting coverage.

2. Are light poles more than 150 feet apart? In a well-designed system, the interval between lights is 150 feet or less.

3. Make sure that the fixture reflects light directly on the street and that it is open on the bottom.

4. For proper lighting, the light should shine downward in a cone shape, extending up and down the street. It should not be concentrated around the pole.

5. Light poles should be simple and uncluttered. Esthetic considerations aside, signs on poles, although sometimes difficult to avoid, may be lethal if there is an accident.

6. Finally, from a distance, look up and down the street to make sure that the light covers the road and the sidewalk uniformly, and does not just form puddles under each pole. Check to see whether objects or persons can be seen halfway between pole locations.

If your street doesn't measure up to the guidelines, the Bureau suggests that you and your neighbors mount a campaign for improvement. Begin by consulting your city engineer, police chief, Chamber of Commerce and local utility.

Michigan, Ohio Battle Over Lake Line Differences

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Michigan has until Sept. 1 to file briefs in its federal court dispute with Ohio over the water boundary between the two states.

At stake in the prolonged dispute are rights to minerals under 210 square miles of Lake Erie's murky bottom.

Michigan claims its border with Ohio extends into the lake at just a slight angle to the land border as established in the Northwest Ordinance of 1787. Ohio says the border runs into the lake at a 45 degree angle to the land line.

U.S. District Judge Albert Marais, sitting in Toledo, gave Michigan until Sept. 1 to present its case in briefs at a hearing Monday.

Possible Cutbacks In Banger Sports

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Possible cutbacks in the University of Wisconsin's intercollegiate athletic program were under discussion Tuesday following criticism of the school's athletic department expenditures.

Athletic Director Elroy Hirsch was unavailable for comment on a report from the State Bureau of Audit which cited deterioration of physical plant and an overabundance of athletic staff positions.

But William H. Aspinwall, department business manager, said Hirsch has been considering the reduction of up to a half dozen sports to a "club" level in an effort to cut costs.

Aspinwall listed the non-income producing sports which might be dropped as gymnastics, fencing, crew, tennis and golf. He said cutbacks were also being considered in track, swimming, wrestling and baseball.

'Suitcase' George Brunet

Ex-Copper Country Hurler Stops Floundering Tigers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cesar Gutierrez, who set a major league record by hitting seven for seven Sunday failed to collect a hit as the Tigers went down to defeat 6-2 at the hands of the Washington Senators Tuesday night.

The Bengals face the Senators again tonight in the nation's capital.

George Brunet, who is from Allouez in the Copper Country and the only U.P. player in the major leagues, is now Washington's well-traveled starting southpaw. Brunet has turned stopper for Ted Williams' slumping Senators and apparently found a home at the age of 36.

Helps Snap Slump

Brunet, who came to the Senators from Seattle-Milwaukee in a winter deal, has played in 15 minor league cities and with eight major league clubs, helped Washington snap a five-game losing streak Tuesday night, beating Detroit 6-2.

The left-handed evened his record at 5-5, scattering six hits in seven innings before leaving for a pinch runner. He also gave Washington its only other victory in nine games, whipping the Minnesota Twins 3-1. last Monday.

Brunet, a 6-foot-1, 205-pounder who lives in Anaheim, made his pro debut in 1953 at Shelby, N.C., and has since been to such spots as Seminole, Okla., Crowley, La., Vancouver, B.C., and Hawaii.

He finally made it to stay in the majors in 1964 with the then Los Angeles Angels and was voted their all-time left-hander by Angel fans.

Tuesday night, Brunet's supporting cast of Tim Cullen, Paul Casanova and Wayne Comer, provided the punch.

Lolich Beaten

Cullen stroked a solo homer, Casanova, a two-run shot and Comer drilled a two-run double in the Senator's seventh inning that finished Tigers' starter Mickey Lolich. Mike Epstein also unloaded a solo roundtripper for the Senators.

Lolich, Detroit's ace left-hander, hasn't won since May 28 and has only two victories in two months as his record fell to 6-8.

His run-scoring single drove in both runs off Brunet in the fourth.

In tonight's game Detroit's Earl Wilson (4-4) is scheduled to be on the mound opposing the Nats Jim Bosman (6-6).

The Tigers are now nine games behind Al East leading Baltimore with only one week remaining before D-day, the return of suspended pitcher Denny McLain.

McLain is posted to hurl the July 1 Detroit-New York game at Tiger stadium.

Aaron Tests Eyes With Loud Fouls

By HANK AARON
Of Altnta Braves

The most important thing for a young hitter to learn is that he must be aggressive at the plate. Don't be lazy at the plate. Attack the baseball.

I believe that you must go out and get the ball, hit when it's out in front rather than wait until it passes the plate.

When I'm at the plate I watch different things that certain pitcher's do. For instance, take an Abernathy. Ted was with Cincinnati last year and got in a lot of games (78) and now he's with the Cubs.

He is the most unorthodox pitcher in baseball. He throws the ball from way down under, and sometimes fools you by bringing his motion from the direction of third base. He's strictly a relief pitcher and you don't see him too much. But with him I watch his left knee and try to pick the ball up from there. You get a better chance to watch this motion from the on deck circle. It's always good to study a pitcher when you're standing or kneeling in the "on deck" circle.

With some pitchers I try to pick the ball up from their shoulders and with some others I try to pick it up from their waistline. It all depends on how the pitcher is delivering the ball.

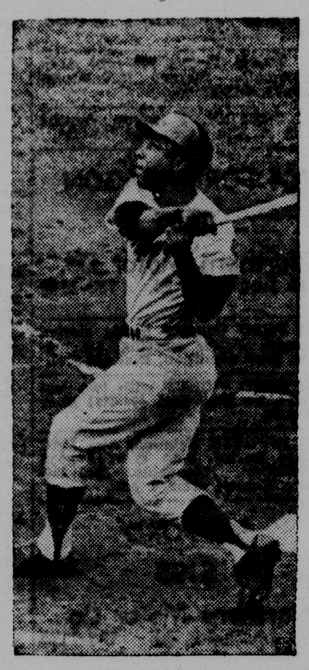

I try to hit the ball back through the middle but even then I try to hit the ball hard, whether it's over the plate, inside or outside. Some of the better hitters tell you when you're in a slump to try to hit the ball up the middle. That will help you to keep your head still.

But I like to get in there and hit the ball real hard. I like to hit it foul a couple of times, but real hard, and then I feel like I have my eye on the ball.

Some hitters get set for the fastball and then adjust to the curve. It all depends on the type of pitcher you are facing. When Sandy Koufax was pitching you had to just hope you could hit anything he threw up there. It's the same way with Bob Gibson. He's fast and he's always moving the ball around. Tom Seaver and Juan Marichal are that way, too.

With some pitcher I look to hit their curve ball and then I find I can hit their fastball. That's only because they are not that overpowering.

When I'm in the batter's box, or even in the on deck circle, I'm always studying the pitcher. Once I put on the uniform I'm steadily concentrating on the pitcher.

Milwaukee Edges Sagging Twins

By The Associated Press

Pinch hitter Gus Gil cracked a two-out, two-run double in the ninth inning to give the Milwaukee Brewers a narrow 4-2 triump over the Minnesota Twins.

In other American League contests, Boston ripped Baltimore 6-1, Kansas City nudged Oakland 7-5, and Chicago drilled California 7-3.

Gil slammed his game-winning hit off reliever Ron Perranoski, who had just entered the game.

"I was looking for a fast ball down the middle. That's where it was," Gil said. And Perranoski agreed.

"I got behind 0-and-2 and had to come in with a fast ball," the left-hander said. "I didn't want to walk him. You need a shock like this so that you won't think the game is as easy as it looks."

Roof Homers

Phil Roof connected for a bases-empty homer for the Brewers while George Mitterwald had a two-run shot for the Twins.

Ray Culp fired a three-hitter and the Red Sox smashed 12 hits, including home runs by Tony Conigliaro and Rico Petrocelli to snap the Orioles' winning streak at five games.

Conigliaro's two-run homer—his 14th of the season—keyed a three-run Boston fifth off loser Jim Palmer, 10-4, making it easy for Culp, 6-7, who struck out eight.

Lou Piniella's bases-loaded fly ball fell for a triple and keyed a four-run Kansas City first inning and Cookie Rojas socked his first homer of the season as the Royals took a 5-1 edge over the A's after two innings.

A's Defeated

Joe Keough's two-run single in the fifth proved the difference while Reggie Jackson, who misjudged Piniella's drive, drilled his 10th circuit of the season for the A's.

Bill Melton slugged a three-run homer and Syd O'Brien added a bases-clearing double, giving rookie right-hander Jerry Janeski his seventh triumph of the season in Chicago's triumph over the Angels.

Babe Ruth Note

Officers and team managers of the Babe Ruth League will meet Thursday night at 7:30 at the Civic Center to make plans for the Tag Day Promotion.

Bill Singer Shakes Off Illness, Blanks Braves 7-0

By The Associated Press

After he beat hepatitis, the Atlanta Braves were hardly a problem for Bill Singer.

Singer, making only his third start after spending 52 days on the disabled list recuperating from hepatitis, pitched hitless ball for 7 2-3 innings Tuesday night as Los Angeles trimmed Atlanta 7-0.

Clete Boyer busted up Singer's no-hit bid with a two-out single in the eighth and the weary Dodger right-hander was immediately lifted. Pete Mikkelsen, from whom Singer contracted the liver disease in spring training, finished up, allowing the Braves' other hit in the ninth.

Devils Attitude

Until Boyer's single, Singer had allowed only one base runner, walking Hank Aaron in the fourth. "I just had a devil may care attitude," said Singer. "I guess that's why I did so well. The hepatitis boy got 'em."

Elsewhere in the National League Monday, New York edged Chicago 12-10 in 10 innings, Montreal nipped Philadelphia 2-1, Pittsburgh rapped St. Louis 7-2, Cincinnati trimmed San Francisco 5-3 and Houston edged San Diego 2-1.

The Mets rallied for the tying runs with two out in the ninth on a single by Ken Boswell and then beat the Cubs in the 10th on Duffy Dyer's two-run homer.

Chicago, which dropped its fourth straight, overcame a seven-run New York fourth with five runs in the fifth. Billy Williams cracked four hits and drove in four runs for the Cubs, who had their National League East lead trimmed to 1½ games over New York.

Claude Raymond bailed Dan McGinn out of a ninth inning jam to preserve Montreal's victory over Philadelphia.

McGinn was working on a six-hit shutout when Rick Joseph and Jim Hutto opened the ninth with singles. Oscar Gamble sacrificed and Raymond came on. He surrendered one run on an infield hit by Ron Stone but then got Danny Doyle and Larry Bowa to end it.

Expos Win

The Expos scored the deciding run in the fifth when McGinn singled and came around on Marv Staehle's double.

Bob Robertson drove in three runs with a triple and two doubles leading Pittsburgh past St. Louis. Bob Moose went all the way, scattering nine hits.

Robertson's two-run triple keyed a five-run Pirate burst in the first inning.

Cincinnati used home runs by Tony Perez, Hal McRae and Lee May to whip San Francisco. Willie McCovey had a two-run shot for the Giants.

The victory kept the Reds a fat nine games ahead of LA in the National League West.

Jack Billingham stopped San Diego on eight hits, pitching Houston past the Padres.

Jimmy Wynn doubled and scored the first run of the game in the seventh and then doubled again to drive in the Astros' winning tally in the eighth.

CHARLEVOIX (AP) — Former University of Michigan golfer Tom Pendlebury outshot 278 other entrants with a fine 35-34—69 Tuesday to lead at the halfway point of qualifying for the 59th Michigan Amateur Golf Championship.

The bulging field was to be trimmed to the low 63 and ties today with the final 18-hole qualifying round of medal play held at both the Belvedere Golf Club in Charlevoix and Shanty Creek Lodge about 20 miles south. Match play begins Thursday at Belvedere.

Defending champ Pete Green of Franklin, who is exempt from qualifying, fired a 35-35—70 at the 6,453-yard Shanty Creek course, joining five others at 70 Tuesday. Belvedere is 6,611 yards, and both courses are par 72.

Pendlebury, a young schoolteacher from Trenton, "ought to be a pro. He's unbelievable," according to one of his playing partners, Chuck Bond of Flint.

"The way he was playing he could have shot a 64 just as easily as a 60," said Bond, who finished 40-37—77.

"I think he would have given (Tony) Jacklin a good run for his money," he added, referring to Britisher Jacklin's weekend victory in the U.S. Open Championship in Minnesota.

Pendlebury qualified for the U.S. Public Links Championship just prior to his trip to Charlevoix.

Bunched with Green at 70 were Dr. Wayne Kramer of Flint, Gene Hunt of Grand Blanc, Melvin "Bud" Stevens of Livonia, Steve Presser of Huntington Woods and Jack VanEss of Grand Rapids. All but VanEss shot their rounds at Shanty Creek.

Stevens is a three-time winner of the Michigan Amateur. Other former champions competing are Bill Newcomb, U-M golf coach from Ann Arbor, Glenn Johnson of Grosse Isle and Don Stevens of Birmingham.

Newcomb shot a 37-34—71, Johnson 36-35—71, Don Stevens 41-37—78, and Bud Stevens 35-35—70.

Those with 75 or better Tuesday stood the best chance of qualifying, with the cut probably to be made at about 150-151 for 36 holes.

Last year's runnerup, Mike Fedewa of Portland, fired a 36-39—75 at Shanty Creek Tuesday. As a 19-year-old last year, he surprised everyone by reaching the finals only to lose to Green 2 and 1.

Street Improvement Bonding Council Aim

The City Council, at its regular meeting Monday night, took the first steps toward bonding Manistique for a $148,000 five-year street improvement program.

The state will finance up to $90,000 with bonds to be paid off from motor vehicle fund revenues. An additional $58,000 in special assessment tax revenues will be collected from home owners and used for the curb and gutter work portion of the program.

A public hearing is scheduled for July 13, to cover special assessment districts.

Resolution of intent to adopt a bond authorization was approved. Notice of intent will be filed with the state.

Bonds Must Be approved

Approval of the bonding must be obtained from the Municipal Finance Commission, The bonds must then be advertised, sold and printed. These procedures will take at least 60 days.

In other business, residents from Bear Street requested action to close or improve the street due to the present dust conditions. Discussion was tabled until further investigation.

Richard Bonifas and Katherine LeBrausser represented the City Recreation Commission seeking clarification of wording in a five-year lease being offered to Thor and Florence Reque for their A&W drive-in. They were informed of a six-month cancellation clause, that it runs for five years, retroactive to July 1, 1969, is renewable and cannot be assigned. Bonifas explained that the drive-in is in the area of proposed recreation development and land may be needed when monies are available.

Council passed the resolutions approving the lease of property to the Reques.

Meeting Reviewed

Councilman Leo DeMars reviewed a recent meeting of the Board of Supervisors. The salary of County Dog Warden and the possibility of purchasing a snorkel for the fire truck was discussed. County representatives will be requested to appear at the next council session to discuss the issue of salary for warden.

Councilman Thor Reque reported on a Michigan Municipal League meeting which he attended recently in Marquette. Compulsory arbitration of municipal employees, district courts and U.S. 2 improvement were the topics of discussion.

Items on the agenda included the approval of application for fireworks permit for the 4th of July Committee.

A request of Miss Jessie Trudeau for abandonment of an alley at the rear of 623 Deer St. was referred to city attorneys for further investigation.

Licenses Transfers OK'd

The council, with exception of Leo DeMars, approved the demolition of a building on the corner of N. 5th and Caribou Street pending 30-day notice to owner, Delores Conner of Detroit.

Requests for transfer of liquor licenses were approved. The sale of Coluzzi's Bar, 325 Deer St. from James Coluzzi to Jack O. Reich, and sale of the Hub Bar, 204 S. Cedar from James MacKenzie to Mary Sue Holland.

A special meeting was set for Thursday evening to discuss the street improvement program and affairs of the city before the departure of City Manager Robert Noe on Friday.

World Traveler Makes City Stop

J. J. Thomas, the man who hopes to be the first man to ride around the world on horseback, arrived in Manistique on Monday afternoon.

While in Manistique he spoke with CBC, Toronto, in a phone interview for the program "As It Happens" to which he reports each Monday evening.

Thomas had dinner at the Tom Shampine residence, 620 Park Ave., where Shampine, one of the few remaining blacksmiths, put shoes on his horse "Doc."

From here he plans to travel to the Mackinac Bridge and through the Lower Peninsula where he will re-enter Canada.

Thomas, who "lives off the land," attributes the success of his travels to this philosophy, "Positive thinking surmounts all problems."

Highland Park Agrees To Buy DSR Terminal

HIGHLAND PARK (AP) — The city of Highland Park has agreed tentatively to purchase the Detroit Department of Street Railways terminal here for $1,760,000.

The action would clear the way for construction of a new DSR terminal on Detroit's East Side, city officials said.

This Detroit suburb had originally offered $1.6 million for the terminal but William Dietrich, DSR attorney, told Detroit city councilmen Monday that Highland Park officials have agreed to meet the city's asking price.

While governmental red tape has blocked progress on the new terminal for five years, the estimated cost of the project has jumped from $14.3 million to $20.3 million, city officials said.

Councilmen indicated they would approve the project despite the increased cost.

92 Pass Visual Testing Program

The Alger-Schoolcraft Health Dept. and the Manistique Area Schools recently sponsored a pre-school vision testing program. All of the 92 children tested, passed the examination.

Slips verifying that the child has had his vision tested will be sent directly to the schools.

This program has been a cooperative service to the community by the area schools and the local health dept. to help families meet their responsibilities as required by State Law.

AMA Promises Fight Over 'Pill' Labeling

CHICAGO (AP) — The American Medical Association has promised a broad legal and legislative battle against a plan by the Food and Drug Administration to include a health warning in packages of contraceptive pills.

But FDA Commissioner Charles C. Edwards defended the use of a lay language warning about oral contraceptives as a "communications insurance policy" in the best interests of the patient.

The AMA's House of Delegates, meeting Tuesday at the organization's 119th annual convention, approved a resolution attacking the FDA plan as "a dangerous departure from present practice."

Dr. Edwards announced on June 10 that the health warning should be included with packages of the pill within 90 days.

The warning would point out possible dangerous side effects, such as an increased risk of blood clotting.

The AMA resolution asserted the proposal "intrudes on the patient-physician relationship" and would "interfere with the physician's decision to prescribe drugs by exerting undue influence."

Edwards, speaking to the Midwest Pharmaceutical Advertising Club, told the drug industry it would be "enlightened self interest" to supply more useful information about drugs in its medical communications to doctors.

"I think," the FDA chief said, "we tend to lose track of the fact that you are not selling new cars or TV sets, but rather you are selling products to professionals whose only reasons for being is the health and well-being of the people."

As for the required warning on contraceptive pills, he said:

"Our action was intended to supplement rather than intrude upon the normal doctor-patient relationship, and indeed in our judgment need not intrude. The physician has the same opportunity he has always had—to communicate with the patient at the time the prescription is written.

"The provision for the lay language insert is, rather, a kind of single 'communications insurance policy' in the patients' interest. The eseential consideration in this case—for a physician, for a manufacturer, and for FDA—had to be the protection of the patients' interest."

Alaskan Charged In Death Of Man From Michigan

KODIAK, Alaska (AP) — Kodiak Police Chief Jack Ryan said Tuesday a grand jury has indicted a Kodiak bar operator on two charges stemming from the shooting death of a Michigan man June 3.

Ryan said Don North, operator of the B&B Bar was indicted on charges of second - degree murder and assault with a deadly weapon.

Ryan said a superior court judge in Anchorage had set bond at $10,000. However, he said North had not yet been taken into custody Tuesday afternoon.

Shot to death outside the B&B Bar was Leonard B. Gallup, 23, of Howell, Mich. Ryan said the shooting followed an argument.

Remade Trainer Fails In Maiden Flight; Two Killed

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Two men were killed late Tuesday when the old Air Force trainer plane they had just finished reconditioning crashed on its maiden flight near Ann Arbor.

Killed in the crash were Bruce W. Barnett, 46, of Wayne, and Herman Rowe Jr. of Ann Arbor.

Sheriff's deputies said witnesses told them the plane took off and reached an altitude of about 200 feet when the motor apparently died and the plane spun into the ground.

The plane, an old AT-6 trainer, was purchased by the men as surplus from the Air Force.

The crash occurred at Young Filed, a small airport about two miles west of Ann Arbor.

The plane was equipped with dual controls and it was not learned immediately which man had been flying the aircraft.

Ann Arbor Pair Claiming World Motorcycle Mark

LONDON (AP)—John Farrell and his wife, Kipp, of Ann Arbor, Mich., arrived here Tuesday and claimed a world record by motorcycling through 26 countries on four continents.

Both 27, they said they spent two years and 26,000 miles on their motorcycle but they still want to move on.

"The most pressing thing on our minds right now," Farrell said during a brief visit to the American Embassy, "is to get to Afghanistan before the snows start in August. We've got a full year of our three-year trip left and it could be pretty unpleasant if we end up cycling through the snow."

What made these two graduates of the University of Michigan take to the open road?

"I was in law school and Kipp had just gotten her degree in business administration," Farrell said. "We'd been married three years but we were young and felt a strong desire to go out and test ourselves in some situation a little more challenging than writing a contract or analyzing a stock."

Foreign visitors to Britain in 1969 numbered 3.8 million, the Board of Trade reports.
